PREFACE

This little family history is based on what the compiler believes is a new concept in genealogies — one which will give a far more interesting picture of the family and help to cement more firmly the ties among our kin.

Instead of being devoted to a single branch it is an attempt to draw together the various branches which have emigrated to the United States. By tracing these branches back into the homeland we are able to add our kin still living there as well as those in other parts of the world. All this will tend to lead us to those connecting links which eventually will give us a correct picture of the family as a whole — surely a worth while project.

Of course this volume is not complete but it is an earnest attempt to make a solid foundation upon which others can build. This world is shrinking fast in terms of communication and transportation and more and more we find that we must develop global thinking. This certainly applies to families just as much as to any other basic factor, and the time has come for us to think of our world wide kinsmen, the family as a whole.

To assemble a reasonably complete record of our kinsmen and their forebears will not be easy but it can be done. Probably it is beyond the efforts of one individual but, like this book, it can be accomplished by the joint efforts of many. It may take several generations but if the findings of many individuals are collected in a central depository, available to all, eventually the fragments can be assembled into one whole. Too often individuals have found the pleasure that comes from building their family trees but have failed to leave copies of their work where they would be of assistance to others. In assembling this volume the compiler has inevitably gleaned considerable material which was not used. This he plans to put into manuscript form and deposit with the New England Historic and Genealogical Society of Boston where it will be available to others. If you do not feel you can publish your findings why not have them typewritten and deposit a copy there along with mine? Someone in the years to come will benefit.

The material covered by this book has been chiefly drawn from the original sources: vital and probate records, deeds, cemetery records, etc., plus the various town, county and state histories. Practically all the Scottish records were taken from the publications of Register House, Edinburgh, and from the original parochial registers which have been collected and are now stored there available to the public. Footnotes to indicate the sources of the material have been omitted. The small group which would use them should find in the text sufficient clues to enable them to locate the original source.

One of the joys of compiling a record similar to this is the contact, personally or by mail, with an ever widening circle of kin. Their interest in the project and their wholehearted unselfish assistance is heart warming. Unfortunately it is not possible to mention by name all of those who have helped but the compiler does wish to extend to them all his sincere thanks.

There are a few, however, whose support has been so outstanding that their names should be known to all. These are: A-316 Charles M. Carruth, a keen genealogist himself, who extended his aid when the project was commencing; J-117 Charles E. Corruth, whose lifelong, intimate knowledge of that branch in Vermont furnished many of the answers to the tangled lines of Corruths and Coruths there; K-15 Mrs. Hattie C. Welch who made much of the "K" branch possible; L-11 Miss Mary M. Chadwick and L-15 Mrs. Angus Caruth who made available their family archives; O-122 Blaine W. Carruth, who had compiled so much of his own branch and who so generously contributed his work, and O-117 Miss Nancy Carruth, my first correspondent in Scotland, whose loyal unflagging interest and help has continued from the start. Lastly, mention must be made of A-350 Col. Gorton V. Carruth who read the manuscript and from his long professional experience was of inestimable assistance in the final preparation of the book.

To all these and many others the compiler and the family are deeply indebted. It has been a happy experience and the friendships and acquaintances made have furnished a rich reward in addition to the day by day pleasures of a simple hobby.

CHAPTER I

CARRUTHS IN SCOTLAND AND IRELAND

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY

The Carruth family originated in Scotland in the county of Renfrew. In spite of the similarity of name it has no known connection with the Carruthers family of the county of Dumfries.

Renfrewshire extends along the south bank of the Clyde river from about Glasgow to the mouth of the river. It is subdivided into irregularly shaped parishes. In the parish of Kilmacolm among the properties included within the barony of Duchal there was a farmstead or group of farmsteads known as Carruth or the lands of Carruth.

No authentic derivation has been found for this place-name. James Murray, M.A., in his history of Kilmacolm Parish, (1898) in a chapter on "Etymology of Local Names" attempted to fix the original significance of one hundred and twenty-three place names within the parish. This was done in conjunction with the Professor of Celtic at Edinburgh University. Carruth was one of seventeen place names of which they "did not even dare to hazard a guess".

We know that no Carruth ever owned this property although we do have records of their living there. There is no reason to believe that Carruths were ever anything but commoners in Scotland; tenant farmers, craftsmen and labourers. The records of the gentry are voluminous and if there were Carruths among them that fact would be readily ascertained. Nevertheless, it was from these lands that the family took its surname so our surname is of the type known as a place-name. Scottish antiquarians are in agreement that such surnames are derived from the places, not the place-names from the surnames.

The use of surnames is comparatively recent in the world's history. The custom was introduced into England by the Norman knights during the invasion and later spread to Scotland. Its development was gradual and since it was adopted first by the land-owning gentry and later by the commoners it was probably well into the thirteenth century, if not later, before there were any Carruths as such. Prior to that time only given names were used. These newly adopted surnames were of several different types: place-names such as ours; trade and occupation names, steward (Stuart), clerk (Clark), weaver (Webster), baker (Baxter), etc.; patronomic, where "son" was added to the father's given name; and others. What is of especial interest to us is the fact our ancestor or ancestors selected the place-name type and since that place was a comparatively small piece of property it may well be there was only one original Carruth, which is an unusual occurrence. This probability of there having been but one original Carruth is strengthened by the smallness of the family and the concentration of the family records of the past within a few miles of the point of origin. If it is so all Carruths are cousins.

Of course this would not apply to those adopted into the family nor those who took the name for their own selfish purposes such as a certain Jewish shopkeeper who adopted it "for business purposes", as he said. Also there are many colored people, descendants of former slaves, whose ancestors, when liberated from bondage, selected Carruth, or more often Caruth, as a surname. Slaves had no surnames. When they became freedmen it was just as advisable for them to have surnames as it was for any other citizens. They adopted whatever names appealed to them, in some cases those of their former owners.

The standardized spelling, CARRUTH, appears to have become the generally accepted form by the latter part of the seventeenth century. Prior to then we find many variations. These reflect not only what the clerk originally wrote but also the best attempt of someone to decipher the old writing at the time the document was published. Some of these found in the old records are:

CARRUTH	CORRUTH	COLRUTH	CURRUTH
CARUTH	CORUTH	CORRUITH	CURITH
CARROTH	CORRITH	CORRUTHE	CURRUTHE
CARRETH	CORRUTE	CORRUICH	CULRUTH
CARRAITH	CORUTE	CORRUCHT	CORRINTH

It is easy to account for many of the variations. If the letter "a" is carelessly made with an open top it becomes a "u". If the last stroke is not brought down properly it become an "o". The "l" in the above Colruth and Culruth was simply an "r" carried higher than its mate. We have the same problems in deciphering the modern records.

However, all the original Carruths who came to America in the eighteenth century, with possibly one exception, spelled their name "Carruth". This statement is based on these men's signatures to original documents such as wills, administration papers, etc. The one exception may have been I-1 Peter Coruth. The fact he signed his will with his "X" mark may indicate that he was illiterate or it might have been due to his physical condition at the time.

While the form CARRUTH has been standard in Scotland for at least three centuries the shorter form, CARUTH, has been developing in Ireland and is reflected in those families which have emigrated during and since the nineteenth century. These emigrants and their descendants are traceable today through this spelling not only in America and the British Dominions but also in Scotland and England.

Although the original Carruths who came to America from Ireland all personally used the longer form it does not follow that the records are that way since the records were actually written by other individuals who did not take pains to get the spelling correct. We have all had the same experience even at this late date. Some variations are interesting. When B-5 Samuel was married, the clergyman, a stranger to Samuel, recorded the name as Keruth. Evidently Samuel gave his name in a nasal twang. Another extreme is the service record of Isaiah who appears on the rolls of Morgan's Virginia Riflemen as Cruth. Probably he grunted his name to the recruiting officer.

Nevertheless, as with probably every other surname, variations have developed. Of these there are only three known forms which have been used over a period of two or more generations; CARUTH, CORRUTH, and CORUTH. The first has been used by some of the southern branches, coming into usage after the families left North Carolina. It is also used by branches which came from Ireland in the nineteenth century. The latter two forms were used by second and later generations of two Vermont branches which came direct from Scotland; J-14 James and J-27 William. Both James and William themselves used the CARRUTH form.

An exhaustive search of the Ryegate, Vermont, records indicates the deviation was largely due to a careless town-clerk. The first town-clerk, James Whitelaw, was evidently an educated man who took great pride in his work. His old records today are clear, neat, and legible. He was in office until 1829 and during that period every reference to James or any of his family is clearly written "Carruth". He was followed by a William Grey and from then on the name is seldom spelt twice alike in succession. For example, the school reports list the family as follows: 1830, Coruth; 1831, Curuth; 1832, Coruth; 1833, Corruth; 1834, Coruth; etc. It was the same with militia lists, tax lists, etc. It is probable also that, as clerk, he made out many of the deeds in which the grantees' names vary as badly as the above school records. One member of the family advanced the theory that a great part of the trouble traced from the deeds, many of the old folks feeling that they must stick to the spelling of their name on the deed, otherwise it might affect their ownership in some way. William's family, although in an adjacent town, evidently had their records, to a limited degree, contaminated by contact with the earlier group.

THE FRAUDULENT COAT OF ARMS

Numerous members of the family have been intrigued by the alleged coat of arms and family origin as given in Arthur J. Carruth's genealogy of "The Descendants of James Carruth of Phillips-ton". These he ascribed to a booklet written in 1895 by a John Carruth Campbell of Muirkirk, Ontario. A third less serious assertion, not ascribed to Campbell, was the statement that "CAR-RUTH was originally spelled CARRAIG, being a Gaelic word, 'carr' meaning rock and 'aig' being the diminutive, hence small rock".

The compiler found, early in his research, that the first two claims are false and the third is not supported by Celtic scholars. Hence he could not understand why Campbell should have published such a booklet.

The alleged coat of arms features the shakefork or sheavefork which constitutes the arms of the Earls of Glencairn, one of the branches of the numerous Cunningham clan. To justify the use of these arms on the alleged Carruth coat of arms the following origin of the Carruth surname was given:

"Near Renfrew close to the river Clyde in Bonnie Scotland is today a gentleman's house called Carruth. For many years the large and distinguished clan of Cunningham has lived in this vicinity. Early in the 17th century one John Cunningham who lived on the place called Carruth styled himself John of Carruth to distinguish himself from the many other John Cunninghams in that neighborhood. His descendants adopted Carruth as their surname."

Such a tale is, of course, arrant nonsense. The Scottish records show this property was in the possession of John Semple of Carruth from at least 1602 to 1611 and previously had been held by Roberto Sempill de Corruith, presumably his father, since 1573. Hence, if a John Cunningham was seated there early in the 17th century, it must have been later than 1611. There are many authentic records of Carruths in the 1500's. Therefore, this statement that the Carruth surname originated through the descendants of such a John Cunningham of Carruth changing their surname is ridiculous.

The alleged coat of arms was a more serious matter since it involved the misuse of some other person's property. Armorial bearings, in Scotland, when properly registered, are the property of certain individuals and their rights are protected by law. This shakefork or sheavefork is properly registered. This misappropriation of the arms of the Earls of Glencairn, even though it was done outside the jurisdiction of the Scottish courts was, nevertheless, an improper action to say the least. Publishing such a coat of arms reflects on the whole Carruth family, many of whom are still living in Scotland, highly respected in their communities.

It was easy to expose the falseness of the story but difficult to expose the person originally responsible since at first no trace was found of such a John Carruth Campbell or the booklet. There was no question as regards the integrity of Arthur J. Carruth. He was apparently the unwitting victim whose genealogy unfortunately served to broadcast the deception world wide.

Shortly before going to press Col. Gorton V. Carruth found among his father's papers the long sought proofs of the deception. These are a series of letters of John Carruth Campbell of Muirkirk, Ontario, and his client Mrs. Elisabeth S. Rogers of Philadelphia, Pa., to Mr. Hayden Carruth. These original documents are being deposited with the New England Historic Genealogical Society of Boston where they may be consulted by future researchers.

Campbell identifies himself as a grandson of J-3 James and Janet (McKinley) Carruth and states that he was, "a crusty old bachelor living in a fence corner midway between Muirkirk and Highgate". It is obvious from the correspondence that he was an amateur genealogist keenly fascinated by the heraldic trappings of the peerage. His letter head bears a coat of arms which he states is that of the Campbells and he speaks of having found a coat of arms for the McKinlays. He also had compiled "sketches" or "trees" of the Campbell, McKinlay and Barr families but evidently did not design a coat of arms for the Barrs, because, as he says, "The records of the peerage have not been burdened with their names". In addition to the above, he had fabricated a Carruth lineage falsely claiming descent from the Earls of Glencairn through the alleged John Cunningham of Carruth. As yet, he had not designed the coat of arms nor published the lineage due to lack of funds.

His correspondent, or client, Mrs. Elisabeth S. Rogers, was of a different background but, nevertheless, keenly interested in her ancestors. She mentions being a Colonial Dame with thirty names upon her entrance papers and naturally it would have pleased her vastly to add Carruth to the list. She had already traced her line to a Margaret Carruth and James Brisbin of Northumberland, Saratoga County, N. Y. Campbell connected her Margaret to his own line, (the "J" branch of this genealogy), through an alleged Peter Carruth, a blacksmith of New York City. Although this connection was of no value to Mrs. Rogers as a Colonial Dame, nevertheless descent from the Earls of Glencairn naturally was attractive.

Oddly enough, Campbell's description of his Peter, the New York City blacksmith, leaves little doubt that he is referring to our I-1 Peter. The difference is in the two lists of children. I-1 Peter mentions in his will only James, Mary, William and Elizabeth. Campbell gives Peter's children as Is(abel), John, William and Margaret, born between 1780 and 1790. The Kilmacolm Parochial Register does not indicate any Peter born to J-1 John and Isabel (Shearer) Carruth.

The pedigree which Campbell constructed for Mrs. Rogers may be interesting to some of our readers. The Croquends referred to is, of course, Craighends and the Carncairn should be Cairncurran.

Yours (signed) John C. Campbell"

This pedigree enables us to trace what was probably working in Campbell's mind. The fraud is based on those entries in the Kilmacolm Parish portion of the 1695 Poll Tax Roll. Those entries are: William, a cordoner (shoemaker) in Dennistoune, and John, "in" the family of the Earl of Glencairn. The "in" denoted a servant, not a member "of" the family. Campbell's desire was to make John, at least, a member "of" the family. This he accomplished by utilizing one of the ways in which surnames originated four hundred years earlier. At that time the landed gentry who had no surnames often took the names of their properties as surnames.

Campbell must have felt tolerably safe in his deception since not many in America would know the significance of "in" as used in the 1695 Poll Tax Roll, or the time of the period when surnames were being derived from place names. But since he must have known of the Carruths in the other parishes and burghs, if there was any truth in his claim to great knowledge of the family and the area, it is probable that his original plan was to claim descent from the Earl for his branch of the family only. Hence, to satisfy Mrs. Rogers' interest in the peerage, he sought to tie her line to his. However, she rejected this attempt, and this probably led him to formulate his claim that the whole family, not just his branch, had its origin with the alleged John Cunningham of Carruth.

Mrs. Rogers found through her own efforts that (24) Margaret was probably of the same generation as (23) Peter and therefore could not have been his daughter. The plebeian occupations of Campbell's ancestors also jarred her sensibilities. However, Campbell's tactful withdrawal of the questionable Peter and emphasis on the thesis that all Carruths derived from the Cunninghams in the manner outlined, was successful and she agreed to help finance his "sketch".

Thereupon Campbell commenced designing a coat of arms for the Carruths. He writes, "Carruth from Galic Carragh a rock or stone was the root I did of the shield. I never saw the stone but such are all over the world in memory of the fights among us with the Grants but if you find another more suitable coat of arms I will be well pleased".

Also in another letter we learn the authority for the statement that CARRUTH was originally spelled CARRAIG. Campbell writes, "I am getting the cuts Sterityped and will write the motto Carraig and (Carrick) Fhamhair the Grants Rock as I believe the name Carruth came from this Carraig".

In fairness to Campbell we must point out that much of this material is in the form of copies of original letters from Campbell to Mrs. Rogers. Mrs. Rogers copied the letters or made extracts which she enclosed with her letters to Mr. Hayden Carruth. We have no way of checking the accuracy of these copies.

The correspondence indicates one hundred booklets were printed but, to date, none of them has been found by the compiler.

LANDS OF CARRUTH AND CARRUTH HOUSE

So far we have not found enough of the old records to build a complete story of the lands of Carruth but we do know they formed a part of the lands granted by Walter, High Steward of Scotland, to his follower, Ralph de L'Isle and were the property of the Lyle family for upwards of three hundred years.

Also the composition of the lands of Carruth is not definitely known but they probably comprised three or more farmsteads of which two were Carruth and Carruthmuir or Upper Carruth.

In the sixteenth century financial troubles beset the Lyles and on the 26th January 1530-31 there was an Act of the Lords of Council interdicting Lord Lyle from selling his lands. There were, at the time, several reversions made to him by different individuals for portions of his properties. One of them, John Semple of Fulwood, was interested in the "landis of Colruth" to the extent of five hundred "merkis".

Ten years later a Decreet was issued ordaining John, Lord Lyle, to warrant the lands of "Corruth" and "Ester Branchell" or lands of equal value to John Semple of Fulwood. This apparently was done, Lyle substituting West Branchell for East but turning over Carruth. (21st March 1540-41)

Then, Lord Lyle, overlooking the fact that he had already warranted Carruth to Semple, sold several pieces of his property, including the lands of Carruth, to William, Earl of Glencairn on the 14th September 1545. The outcome of both Semple and Glencairn holding warrants for Carruth is typical of those days when "might made right". Then there were no public registers where land transactions could be recorded as a safeguard. Each person held his own documents and woe betide him who lost his. If he stood in well with the Crown he might have new charters issued confirming his ownership but there probably were numerous palms to be "greased" in such a case. What happened was not, of course, due to the Carruth incident. It was all a part of the feuds between the great families which the Crown did not succeed in controlling for another century but the Carruth property did play a very minor part. The story comes out in an action by John Semple of Fulwood against a group of twelve of the gentry, including the Earl of Glencairn, who, with two hundred of their followers, sacked and burned Semple's Place of Kirkmichael. Part of Semple's loss was a long list of charters, etc., in which the "landis of Carruth and Westbankhall (West Branchell) haldin of the Lord Lyle" appears. With that out of Semple's possession Glencairn got busy and obtained from Queen Mary, under the date of 11 June 1546, a new charter confirming Lyle's original charter of 1545 to Glencairn for "Corrucht" and the other properties.

Twenty years later there develops an apparent conflict in the ownership of Carruth. A certain "Roberto Sempill de Corruith" in one and "de Corruthe" in the other was witness to charters in 1573 and 1593-94. Later a "John Semple of Carruth" was made a burghess of the Burgh of Dumbarton in 1602. He also represented Dumbarton at the Conventions of the Royal Burghs from 1604 to 1611 inclusive. Such use of the connective "of" is in the sense of "belonging or pertaining to", expressing possession and its converse: "The owner of the house" or "the house of the owner". A similar use of the connective "in" simply denotes residence on or within the property and might apply to a tenant farmer for example. Such being the case it is natural to assume that Carruth had passed again into the hands of the Semples and that John was the son and heir of Robert and that the property had passed to him.

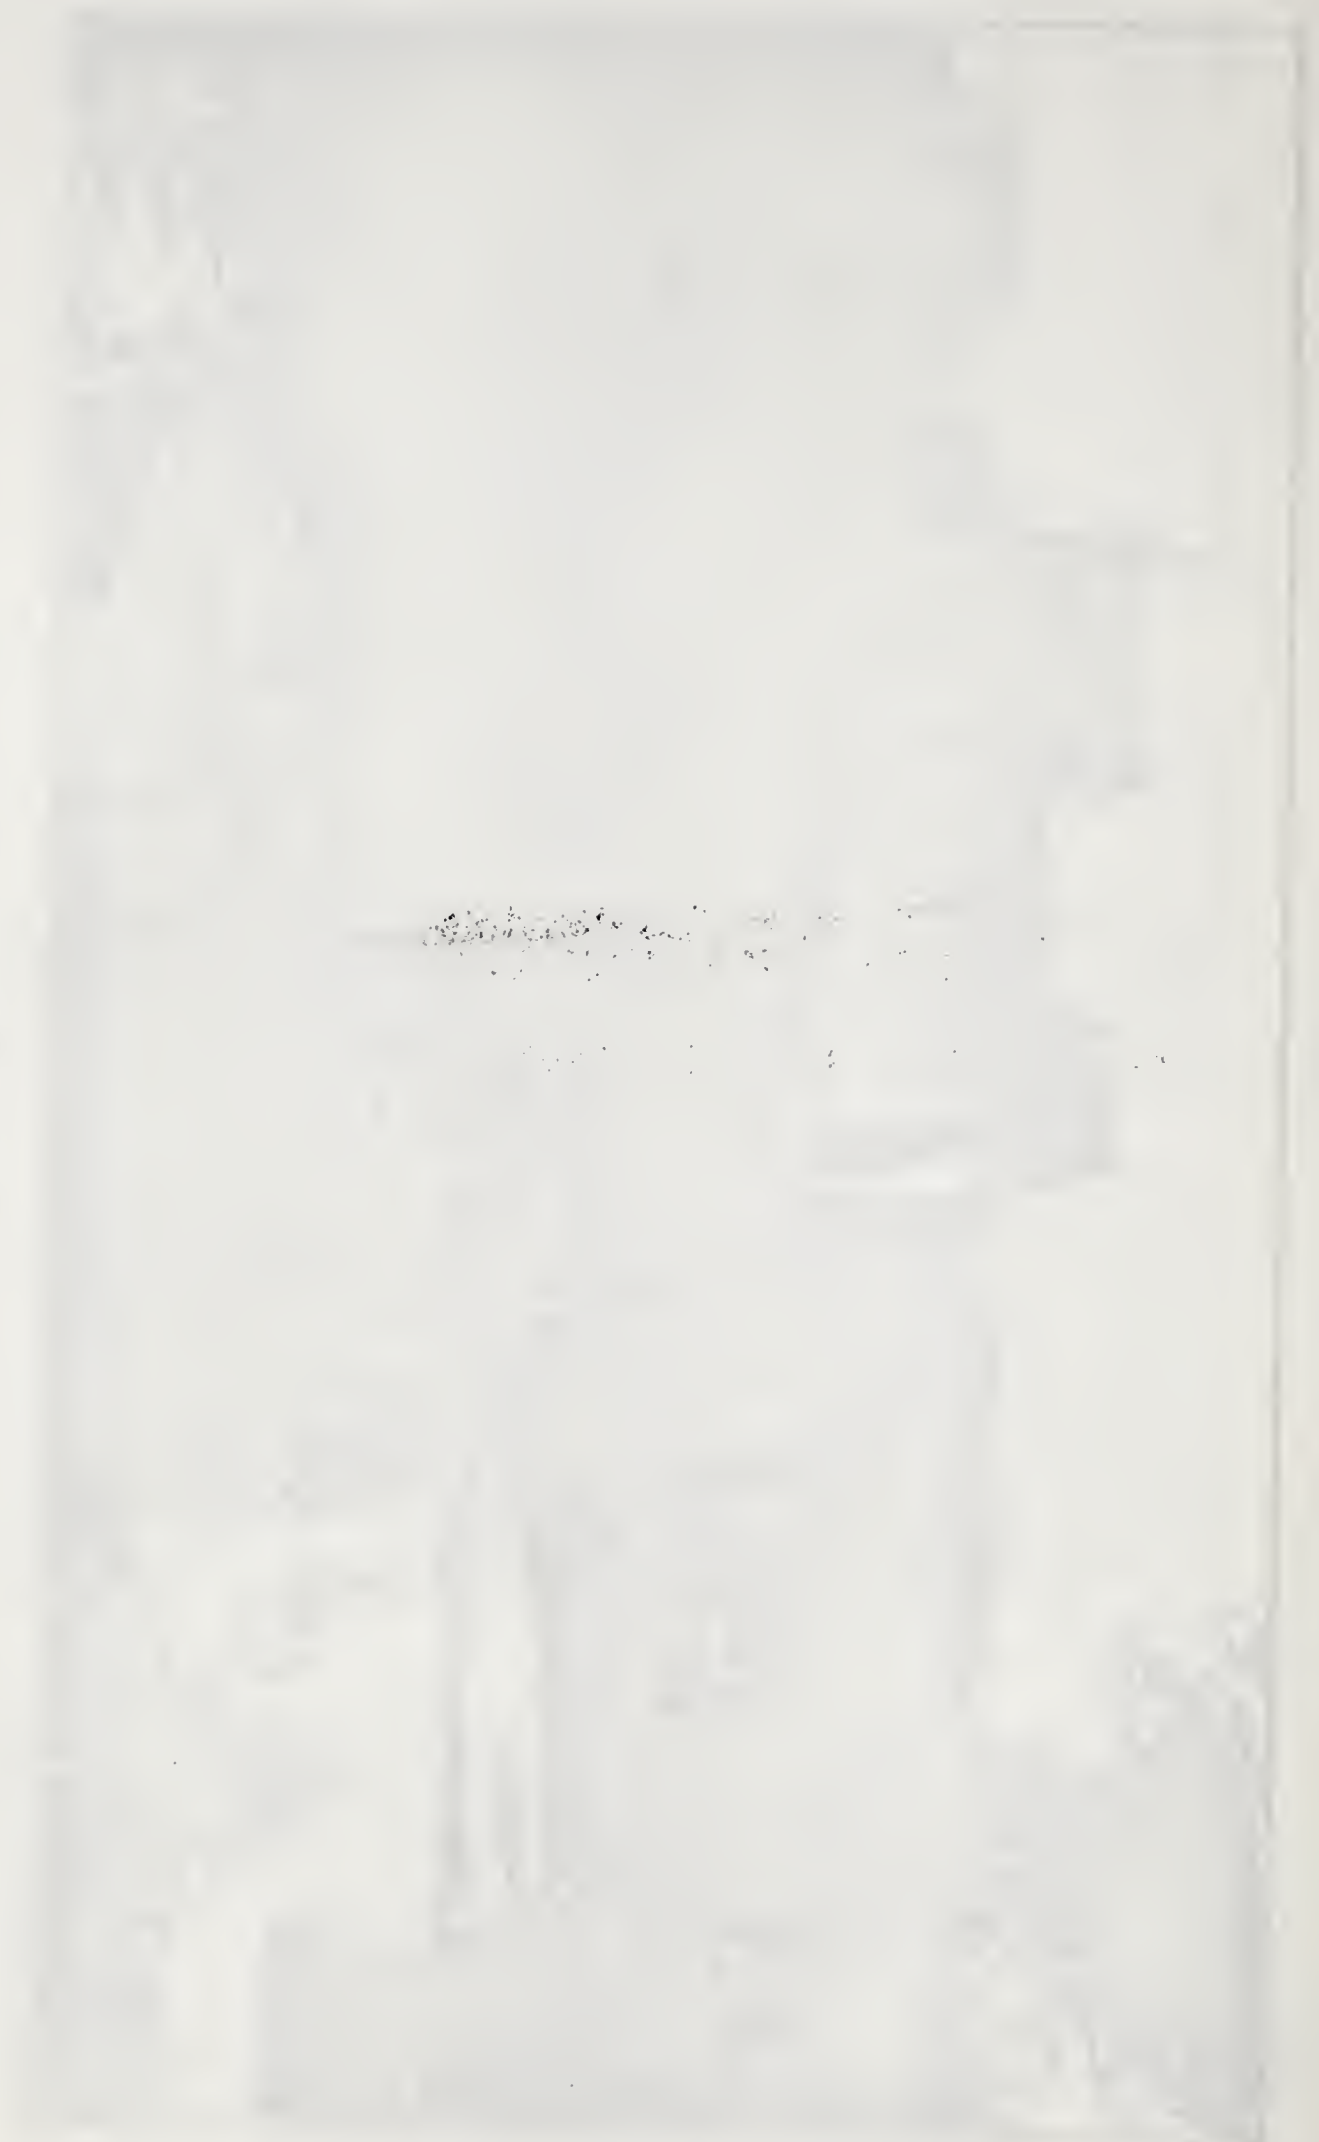

However, two years after Robert Semple of Carruth witnessed that first charter there is an Instrument of Sasine (21 April 1575) infesting William, Earl of Glencairn, as heir of his father Alexander, Earl of Glencairn, in certain lands including that of "Corruith". It is interesting to note that among the witnesses are three tenants in Carruth (possibly indicating three farmsteads on those lands) one of whom was an Alexander "Corruich". This was practically half a century prior to the time the Carruth family was supposed to have originated according to a certain hoax which was successfully foisted upon one of the branches of the family some years ago.

This hoax was based on the fact that the Earls of Glencairn constituted one branch of the numerous Cunningham clan. It was claimed that the Carruth family derived from a certain John Cunningham of Carruth who lived there in the early part of the 1600's. His descendants were supposed to have dropped their Cunningham surname and adopted Carruth instead, thereby becoming the original Carruths. This highly imaginative tale was accompanied by an alleged "coat of arms" in which the arms (shakefork or sheavefork) of the Earl of Glencairn appears. Unfortunately for those who would like to believe this fanciful tale we have records of Carruths extending back to one who was probably born during the era of the voyages of Columbus. (See Scottish Carruths)

The next record we find of Carruth is in the Poll Tax Roll for 1695 where it was listed as a part of The Land of Cairncurran which was the seat of the Cairncurran Cunninghams, (not the Earls of Glencairn line). Murray's "Kilmacolm" tells us that in 1722 William Cunningham of Cairncurran moved the family residence to a new site where he built a house which he called "New Cairncurran" where the mansion of "Carruth" now stands. This first New Cairncurran was pulled down in 1782 by his son, another William, who erected another and larger house on the same site.

DOUNE CASTLE

The last of the Cunninghams of Cairncurran sold the estate in 1820 to William MacDowall.

With the change of ownership the house lost its previous name and now became known as "Carruth House". Here Murray makes the odd statement that it was so called after an old family possession of the Mac Dowalls in Wigtonshire. This naturally creates a doubt that the present Carruth House is located in the original lands of Carruth. Fortunately "The Register of the Great Seal of Scotland" contains copies of several Wigtonshire charters mentioning the land of "Carruthtre" and its variant spellings; i.e. "Corruthtre" etc., but all carrying the distinctive "tre" ending. While we have not attempted to trace this property down to Mac Dowall ownership still it is reasonable to assume that this is the Wigtonshire property to which Murray refers. There is no doubt in the compiler's mind that Murray actually intended to simply point out the similarity of the names of the two properties in Renfrewshire and Wigtonshire. If Mac Dowall had named the house for the Wigtonshire property, it would have been "Carruthtre House".

Carruth remained one of the properties of the Mac Dowall family until about the period of World War I when it was acquired by Sir John Cargill. The accompanying illustration of "Carruth House" was enlarged from a snapshot made by the compiler in 1950 with the permission of William Cargill Esquire, who also has, very kindly, assented to its publication here.

SCOTTISH CARRUTHS

The following records of the early Scottish Carruths are by no means complete. They have been extracted chiefly from the published records available in our libraries here in the United States and not even all such volumes have been searched. The publications are those of Register House, Edinburgh; Scottish Record Society; Laing Charters; and the various county, parish, and burgh histories. In addition to this source of material there must be a wealth of material available in the archives of Edinburgh and London.

Nevertheless the volume of records here is sufficient to indicate the geographical location of the early groups and their social status. Any genealogical records based on them would be pure conjecture.

To date the earliest Carruth found is a "Walter Carroth", witness to a charter at Doune Castle, Perthshire, in 1540. Who he was, from whence he came and what brought him to Doune, we may never know. The one fact we can be sure of is that he must have been a mature man at that time, hence was probably born near the turn of the century; the era famous for the voyages of Columbus. At the time of this charter a James Stewart was Captain of the Castle. There was also a Stewart family seated at Beltrees in Lochwinnoch Parish, Renfrewshire, a short distance from the lands of Carruth. What the relationship was between the two Stewart families is not known but we do know Carruths were living in Beltrees in 1610. It is possible that Walter may have been a retainer of the Stewart family, it not being uncommon for such adherents to witness documents similar to this. Anyone interested will find the charter in "The Register of the Great Seal of Scotland".

The next Carruth record comes a generation later when an "Alexander Corruich", tenant on the lands of Carruth, witnessed an Instrument of Sasine in 1575 (see lands of Carruth).

This was followed by a couple of court cases. In the first (1591) James, Earl of Glencairn and a group of his followers were put under bonds to keep the peace. Two of the followers were "Johnne Corrinth" in Auchinbothie and "William Corrinth" in Dennistown. In the second case (1598) Sir William Livingstone of Kilsythe and a group of his followers, including "Johnne Corrinth" in Easter Greneyairdis (East Greenyards) were also bonded to keep the peace.

Then in 1607, a "Johnne Corrinth", a burghess of Dumbarton, was witness to a bond. Unfortunately there is nothing here to show his relationship to Z-1 William; possibly father or brother.

The next year, 1608, saw the passing of "Isobell Corruith" spouse of William Luif in Linthills, Lochwinnoch Parish, and in the settlement of her estate we find references to her father, "John Corruith" in Biltrees and her brother William, also there.

Her death was followed in 1618 by the passing of "John Corruith" in Risk, Lochwinnoch Parish, and there are references here to his only son William (address not given), his brother "William Corruith" in Corruith and a "Margaret Corruith" in Branchell, (relationship not given).

All of the preceding Carruths are obviously adults and must have been born in the sixteenth century. Also, since only a small percentage of the total Scottish population appears in these source records the same must be true for the families making up that population. Hence, the above Carruths are undoubtedly only a small percentage of the Carruths of that century. The distribution of this group is also interesting: One in Perthshire (Walter, 1540, in Doune) one probably Stirlingshire (Johnne, 1607, in East Greenyards); one Dumbartonshire, (Johnne, 1607, Burgh of Dumbarton); and the balance all Renfrewshire, two living on the lands of Carruth and the rest from one to five miles from Carruth.

Now comes a new era of emigration from Britain, one with a completely new concept. Previously emigrants were those in flight from the Crown who fled to the Continent, chiefly France and the Low Countries. There they stayed, not as settlers but as exiles, awaiting the day that things might quiet down at home and they could return. Now the flight turned westward, the English heading toward the new lands of America and the Scots to King James' Plantation of Ulster in Northern Ireland. This time there was no dream of returning home; they were all leaving for good; all fleeing from something in the homeland.

It was near this time that some John Carruth left Scotland for Ireland. Which "Johnne" it was we will probably never know but in 1628 he landed in the Armagh Manor Court in Ireland where he was fined for assault. (See Scotch-Irish Carruths)

In Scotland the previous year, 1627, the Privy Council recorded an action for assault against William Cunningham, fiar of Cairncurran, William Blaikburne in Carruth and others, their accomplices which included an "Alexander Carruth" (address not given). This Alexander may well be the one who appears on a 1631 muster roll in the Belfast, Ireland area, this action for assault providing the stimulus for his emigration. By 1631 there were at least four adult male Carruths in Ireland and from then on their numbers steadily grew. (See Scotch-Irish Carruths)

It was also during this period that Janet Neill, spouse of Z-1 William was tried as a witch, the account of which appears in a separate section of this chapter. And this also was apparently the period when the Carruth family originated according to the indefinite dating in that hoax referred to elsewhere. (See Lands of Carruth)

Then there is a complaint in 1637 to the Privy Council by the Commissioners anent the illegal sale of tobacco by certain individuals including a "Robert Corraith" in the Burgh of Dumbarton. This Robert obviously is of the generation preceding that of Z-6 Robert. It is probable that he was a son of Z-1 William. The lack of further records regarding him in Dumbarton may well be due to his removing to Ireland to escape the one hundred merk penalty.

From now onward the Carruth records are far too numerous to list here in their entirety. This is due not so much to the actual increase of Carruths, although there was naturally a normal increase in the population, but because there are many more records available for the seventeenth century than for those preceding. Naturally, the further back we go the greater percentage of the documents of that period have been destroyed or lost. Then, too, the seventeenth century saw the starting of the parochial registers in Scotland with their records of births and/or baptisms and marriages. The death records were not kept so meticulously. These give us our first chance to commence genealogical records of value, the family of Z-1 William and Janet (Neill) Carruth being an example of the seventeenth century records. Of course they are not complete; the clerks were human and also over the years sections were lost or destroyed but the government has done an excellent job in salvaging everything possible and making them available to the public at Register House, Edinburgh.

One more seventeenth century record should be included for its historical value. In the Privy Council records for 1686 are five depositions from the trial of a group of Covenantors at Dalry, Ayrshire. Here we have a vivid picture of the religious troubles of those days and the suppression of the Presbyterian Church. Among the prisoners were "Jean Caruthe" and her husband William Cunningham together, with her sister "Hellen Carute", relict of John Findlay, all three resident in Wester Kirkland. They, with others, were guilty of holding religious services late at night in their homes and barns.

From the start of the eighteenth century onward the Scottish parochial registers contain a wealth of genealogical information and from 1855 onward they are complete.

THE DUMBARTON WITCH

In the Register of the Privy Council, dated at Holyrood House, 19 February 1629, appears the following Commission.

"Commission under the Signet to William Sempill of Foulwod, Walter McAwlay of Ardincaple and James Hall, provost of Dumbartane, or any two of them as justices, to hold courts and try Janet Donnald, spouse to Umphra Colquhoun, burgess of Dumbartane, Janet Neill, spouse to William Carruthers, burgess there and Margaret Hunter, spouse to Peter Donnald, sailor there, who have long been suspected of witchcraft. Signed by Mar, Hadintoun, Marshall, Wintoun, Seafort, Carnegie, Sr. Thomas Hoip, Hamiltoun, and Sr. George Elphinstoun."

The above Commission was issued three months after Janet Neill, the spouse of Z-1 "William Corruith", had already been brought to trial. The court convened at Dumbarton on the 20th of November 1628: James Hall, provost; John Fallisdaell and George Bell, baillies of the Burgh; John Sempill of Aikenbar, Thomas Fallisdaill, William Colquhoun, George Buchanane, and Robert Watsoun, persons of the Council; Mr. William Blair, minister of the Burgh; Mr. Robert Watsoun, minister at Cardross; and Mr. William Stirling, minister at ———; together with the school-master of the Burgh.

The charge: "Janet Neill, spouse of William Corruith, burgess of this burgh, is suspect of witchcraft and sindrie presumptiounis".

The court could get nothing satisfactory from her, that is, satisfactory to the clergymen, "thairfor they conclud that the said Janet be ferder tryit and examinat and serchit gif sche hes the devillis mark on her body whereof she is insensibill, and for the better tryall thairfor to cut and cow hir hair gif neid be".

What the final outcome was we do not know as the old records are incomplete. All three of the accused; Janet Neill, Janet Donnald and Margaret Hunter were in the tollbooth 9 January 1629. On the following June 19th the other two were still in the tollbooth but there is no mention of Janet Neill. Later, November 27th Janet Donnald was found guilty and sentenced to death.

SCOTCH-IRISH CARRUTHS

The first Carruths known to reach America arrived in the period of 1730-40 with the Scotch-Irish migration of that time. Their descendants constitute, by far, the greatest number of Carruths who have resided in the United States. Since their arrival there have been others whose source was Northern Ireland.

Many of this group know that they are of Scotch-Irish extraction but do not know what it means believing it may refer to a cross between persons of Scottish and Irish blood. Briefly, it refers to persons of pure Lowland Scottish extraction who were colonists in either the Irish Plantation of Ulster or in the counties of Antrim or Down. They were Presbyterians, dissenters from the Established Church of England and, to put it mildly, were not on friendly terms with the native Celtic Irish who were as rabidly Roman Catholic as the Scots were Presbyterian. Not only in those days but down to the present time there is extreme intolerance in Ireland between the various sects calling themselves Christians and worshipping the same God. Their clergymen and priests have kept the fires well fanned.

It was partly because of this trait of intolerance that James I selected this type of colonist for the Plantation, using both English (Congregational) and Scottish (Presbyterian) dissenters knowing they would never join with the native Irish (Roman Catholic) against the ruling class (Church of England). It was the old "divide and rule" policy. Many French Huguenots (Protestant) fleeing from the massacres at home also joined the colonists and in the course of time the phrase "Scotch-Irish" has been loosely used to cover all Protestants from Northern Ireland, whether originally Scottish, English or French, since the Scots predominated. The Carruths, of course, had a Scottish background.

There is no room here to give the history of this unfortunate Plantation but if the reader is interested we would recommend Hanna's "The Scotch Irish", a standard work on the subject. Copies are probably available in all good libraries.

The burning of the Public Records Office at Dublin with the loss of parochial registers, wills, etc., means that the reconstruction of the Carruth family lines in Ireland will be difficult. The Public Record Office at Belfast is assembling in its archives what data it can obtain and already through this material we have been able to clear up the background and relationship of C-1 Adam, D-1 Alexander and E-1 Walter (see later — Will of James Carruth of Ballymartin Parish — 1727) and also identify the geographical background of K-1 James and L-2 George, all of which helps. We can also reconstruct a faint picture of the family in the early days of the colony and trace a shadowy continuity through the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

In the early seventeenth century the Carruths were centered in three definite geographical locations. First, in the east, were those centered in and around the town of Belfast in County Antrim and extending across the border of County Down to the lands of Holliwood (Holywood). Second, in the central section, they were located in southern County Tyrone near the town of Dungannon. Third, in the west, there was a William who first appears in the muster roll of 1631 in the Barony de Raphoe, County Donegal. Eleven years later (Aug. 1642), during the great uprising, he is again listed on the muster roll for the same area, after which the family name disappears from the available records of this section. He and his family may have been wiped out in this uprising or removed elsewhere.

The Belfast group first appear in the muster roll of 1631 when Archibald and Alexander were serving from the lands of Holliwood. Their arms were given as a sword and a pike apiece. The next muster roll, 26 Apr. 1642, in a foot company of Col. Arthur Chichester's regiment, mustered at Belfast, appear the names of John, Walter and Thomas. Chichester probably drew these men from his estates north of Belfast; Ballymartin, Templepatrick, Carnmoney, etc. The following year, in an assessment levied on every inhabitant of the town of Belfast, Archibald was assessed five shillings and Walter three shillings. Evidently Archibald was either the senior or more prosperous of the two. Walter appears in two more records of this period; 14 Nov. 1644, Walter Caruth, chapman, was admitted as freeman of the town of Belfast and again on the 13 Aug. 1645 he was assessed for one-fourth of one horse on an assessment made for twenty-six baggage horses to go out with the regiment. In the Hearth Money Rolls for 1669, County Antrim: an Alexander is listed in Killeade Parish, Mazareen Barony; William and another, whose given name was omitted, were in Lambeg Liberties [Lisburn], Belfast Barony. These complete the records found to date of the group around Belfast in the seventeenth century.

In the eighteenth century, based on records now available, the eastern group was still in and around Belfast, most of the records pertaining to the parishes of Templepatrick, Ballymartin and Carnmoney. The one exception was the emergence of a new center a little further north. In the Petitions of Protestant Dissenters in 1775 there appears in Ballymena Town and Neighborhood John Coureeth and Robert Coreeth. Later a colony of Carruths grew up in and about Ballymena, County Antrim.

Now to pick up the picture in the central portion. This stems from an item dated 9 Apr. 1627 in the Calendar of Armagh Manor Court Rolls. The item, roughly translated from the original Latin reads, "Found John Caruth made assault on Patrick Roe McKenney and drew his blood contrary to the peace of our Lord the King and he (John) pleaded for mercy: — fined six shillings, eight pence". Evidently just the outcome of a brawl at a local fair but it is especially interesting since there are not many records of Carruths in this central area. Hence the probability is great that the lines of K-1 James and L-1 James are closely allied and probably descend from this lusty John.

Then follows a gap of one hundred and twenty-eight years in the records located so far. In 1755 we find a Mary Carrouth living in Mulnagore, Pomeroy Parish, County Tyrone. There is no proof but she may have been related to James Cruth of Magheramulkenny, Clonoe Parish who died near 1762. John Cruth, linenweaver, also of Magheramulkenny, relationship not known, was appointed Administrator of James' estate and filed an Armagh Administration Bond 6 Dec. 1762.

At this time another James, the father of L-2 George of Coal Island, enters the Clonoe Parish picture. He is thought to have resided in Dungannon at this period (1765) when he leased real estate in the townland of Anaghmore, Clonoe Parish. Since this lease was in 1765 and the other James died three years earlier there may have been two separate branches in southern Tyrone in the middle of the eighteenth century both of which sent members to America. K-1 James was from the Magheramulkenny branch and the children of L-2 George from the Dungannon-Coal Island branch. However, George of Coal Island was known to have had brothers James and John and these may have been the Magheramulkenny Carruths. Pomeroy and Clonoe Parishes are in southern County Tyrone near the towns of Dungannon and Coal Island.

MASSACHUSETTS SCOTCH-IRISH CARRUTHS

The background of the two Scotch-Irish Carruths who settled in Massachusetts, A-1 John and B-1 William, has not yet been found but two facts would seem to indicate they were not from the same branch as those who settled in North Carolina.

If they had been it seems reasonable to assume some traditions would have come down, especially so from the South. Since the Massachusetts group left first the later group would most certainly have known of their going and would have tried to locate them in the new land but each group appears to have believed they were the only Carruths in America. The first reference found indicating northern knowledge of southern Carruths comes in the third generation. A memoranda in the family Bible of A-31 William (1790-1849) states, "there were persons of that name in South Carolina and Tennessee". William may have gotten this from his brother A-25 James who spent the winter of 1800-01 in South Carolina and/or Georgia as a woodcutter.

Secondly, the repetitive use of the given names of Alexander, Robert and Walter by both the southern U. S. branches and the Irish area from whence they came. Walter has appeared for many years in connection with the lands of Ballypalady, and Alexander has been very much in evidence in connection with the lands of Craigarogan. Robert is also common within that area. All three have been common to our southern U. S. branches but none of them were used by the Massachusetts branches.

Discovering the background of the Massachusetts Carruths should provide some very fascinating research.

NORTH CAROLINA SCOTCH-IRISH CARRUTHS

The background of the three Carruth families who settled in North Carolina has now been cleared up by the finding in Belfast, Ireland of the abstract of the will of James Carruth of Ballymartin Parish, County Antrim.

Previously it had been clouded by the unsupported statement in Egle's Pennsylvania Genealogies — 1896 — p. 440 that Elizabeth (Carruth) McCormick, the wife of Thomas McCormick, "was the daughter of Adam Carruth and sister of Walter Carruth, both early settlers in Hanover Township, Lancaster County, Pa." This misstatement has been responsible for a number of erroneous lineages published in various genealogies, both Carruth and McCormick.

Egle's misstatement was bad enough but some one seized upon it and, with the addition of a vivid imagination, compiled an article which was published, unsigned, in Tylers Quarterly — 1922 — Vol. 3, pp. 171-2-3 in which the background of these Carruths was further distorted. Then, three years later, the article was used in The Abridged Compendium of American Genealogy, Vol. 1, p. 540 as an authentic lineage.

We know now from this will of James of Ballymartin that C-1 Adam, D-1 Alexander and E-1 Walter were brothers. That F-1 Elizabeth (Carruth) McCormick could not have been the daughter of C-1 Adam since they were of the same generation. She may have been their sister but that yet remains to be proven. E-1 Walter had no son Adam as claimed in the Tyler's Quarterly and Abridged Compendium lineages.

Research shows definitely there were three male Carruths in Hanover Township, Lancaster County, Pa., with the Scotch-Irish group who arrived near 1735-40. These three were the progenitors of the numerous branches of the family in the Southern States. They were: Walter whose warrant for 100 acres was dated 31 May 1742; Adam, whose warrant for 100 acres was dated 30 Dec. 1743, and Alexander who died in Lancaster County in 1739. The Registry Office at Lancaster has the original inventory of his estate dated "November ye 29th, 1739" and the original Administration Bond dated January 1st, 1739/40 in which Adam Carruth, John Heuston and James Huggins appear as Bondsmen, Adam Carruth as Administrator and John Allison and Susan Wright as Witnesses.

These facts agree with the family traditions in the South with but a slight variation. The traditions invariably state that there were three brothers who came from Ireland, one of whom went North and the other two settled in the South. Actually no records have been found in America to prove that they were brothers. That was found in Ireland, but Adam and Walter did go south and although Alexander died in Pennsylvania his widow and children went south with her brothers-in-law.

All three families removed to North Carolina where they settled in that part of the Granville Grant which is now the southeast corner of Iredell County, close to the borders of Rowan and Cabarrus Counties. Copies of their indentures to the land are at the Registry in Salisbury. Walter's indenture dated 2 May 1753 was for 302 acres on the headwaters of Coddle Creek, on both sides of the creek. Widow Jean's, (or Jane's) indenture, dated 28 Feb. 1755 was for 630 acres lying between the headwaters of Coddle Creek and Rocky River. It was bounded on the east by the plantation of Walter Carruth. Adams' indenture, dated 30 Jan. 1755 was for 333 acres on the waters of Rocky River adjoining Widow Jean's plantation. Here we have the three families reunited on a solid block of 1265 acres. Surely the relationship must have been close.

Recent research (1950) in Eire and Northern Ireland has given us what is, without doubt, the proof of parentage of Adam, Alex-

The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the car was the cold. It was a sharp contrast to the warm blanket I had been sitting under. I looked up at the sky, which was a pale, hazy blue. The air was still, and the silence was broken only by the distant hum of traffic. I took a deep breath, feeling the cool air fill my lungs. The world around me seemed so different, so much more real. I walked towards the building, my steps echoing on the wet pavement. The architecture was modern, with clean lines and large windows. I entered the building, and the warmth of the interior greeted me. The receptionist smiled at me, and I followed her to my room. The room was spacious and well-lit, with a large bed and a desk. I sat on the bed, looking out the window at the city below. The lights of the city were visible in the distance, and the sound of traffic could be heard. I felt a sense of peace and tranquility. I closed my eyes and took another deep breath. The world was so beautiful, so full of life. I smiled to myself, feeling grateful for the moment. ander and Walter. Elizabeth's relationship to them is still unproven but we know she was not Adam's daughter. This proof of parentage is found in the will of James Carruth of Ballymartin Parish, County Antrim.

WILL OF JAMES CARRUTH OF BALLYMARTIN PARISH — 1727

In the Public Record Office, Belfast, Northern Ireland are abstracts of wills proven in the Connor Diocese. The originals were in Dublin and were lost when the Records Office there was destroyed by fire. Among these abstracts is that of a will made by James Carruth of the townlands of Ballypalady, parish of Ballymartin, barony of Belfast, County Antrim. The will was made 11 April 1727 and proven 22 January 1727/28. The abstract reads as follows:

"James Carruth of Ballypallidy, in Ballymartin parish in Belfast barony, county Antrim; $\frac{1}{2}$ farm to wife and minor son Alexander; other $\frac{1}{2}$ to son James; to son John the land now in John's possession; a colt to John's son James Carruth; to son Walter the lease of Bally (illegible); goods equally in 4 shares between wife and sons Alexander, James and Adam: Executors, sons John and James; Overseers, Arshebal Brown and John Huggen; Witnesses, Walt. Carruth, Adam Carruth; Probate to Executors at Antrim before Wm. Boyde, Vicar General; Inventory attached dated 22 January 1727, signed by John Janigon, Josias Innes, John Carruth, James Carruth."

Ballymartin Parish lies about six miles north of the city of Belfast. According to the "Parochial Registers and Returns" (Pub. Rec. Off. — Dublin — Probate) the old records for Ballymartin were incorporated with those of Carnmoney Parish which adjoins Ballymartin on the east. The compiler also found Ballymartin records in Templepatrick Parish which adjoins it on the south. These lands through this area are part of the old Chichester Estates referred to previously in reference to the muster roll of 1642.

From this will of James it is evident John, James Jr., Walter and Adam were all of full age; John and James Jr., were executors; Walter and Adam were witnesses, the executors probably being senior in age. Therefore these four must have been born prior to 1707. We know from his gravestone that Walter died 19 Feb. 1769, aged 66 yrs., so if the gravestone is correct he was born between Feb. 1702 and Feb. 1703. This leaves ample time for the birth of two additional children between Walter's birth and 1707. One of these could have been Adam and the other Elizabeth whose birth is given as about 1705 in the McCormick genealogy.

Referring to John's bequest, "the land now in John's possession", may refer to a farm in the townlands of Craigarogan, Templepatrick Parish, about two miles south of Ballypalady but this is not yet proven. There has been a colony of Carruths in that area for a long period.

James Jr. who took over the homestead may or may not have been married at the time. However, Carruths have lived on the townlands of Ballypalady to the present day (1950) and presumably are descendants of James Jr.

There is no way for us to identify the farm Walter was operating, the record is illegible, but it was leased land and the running out of the lease, in the middle 1730's, may have been one incentive for Walter's emigration.

As to Adam, this will is the only record of any Adam Carruth found in all the numerous records searched covering the six counties of the Irish Plantation plus Antrim and Down.

No daughters are mentioned in the will either directly or indirectly through designated sons-in-law. Whether John Huggin was a son-in-law is not indicated. The Overseer of the will, John Huggin may have been the John Huggin who married a Mary Carruth, 12 Jan. 1715 (Carnmoney Records-Presbyterian Church, Pub. Rec. Off., p. 108 Belfast). Also, it will be remembered there was a James Huggin or Huggins who was a settler in Hanover Township, Pa., where he was a Bondsman on the Administration Bond given by Adam Carruth re the estate of Alexander Carruth. There was also a James Huggin who settled in the Coddle Creek area of North Carolina where his plantation was near or adjoined the Carruths.

Elizabeth (Carruth) McCormick (1705-1766) who married in Ireland near 1728 may or may not have been a daughter of James Carruth, the father of Adam, Alexander and Walter. The Carnmoney baptismal records for 1717 and 1719 show conclusively there was another branch of Carruths in that area at that time. There were also several branches of the McCormick family represented in the Carnmoney baptismal records from 1712 onward hence the reference to Londonderry in the Pennsylvania Genealogies and McCormick Family Genealogy may be misleading. She definitely was not the daughter of Adam Carruth, an early settler in Hanover Township. Whether she was the sister of Walter Carruth, an early settler in Hanover Township remains to be proven.

SCOTCH-IRISH CARRUTHS IN WORLD WAR I

Following the 1914-18 war The Presbyterian Historical Society of Ireland published a Roll of Honour containing a list of over 24,000 names of their congregations who served. The roll is not complete. Several congregations made no returns. In large industrial populations, especially Belfast, large numbers of Presbyterian young men joined the colors who were not identified with church life and whose names therefor did not find their way to the Congregation lists. They estimate that probably 2,000 names are missing.

Besides these known members of the Carruth family there may have been, in fact probably were, others of different faiths who served and their records may come to light later.

CHAPTER II

CARRUTHS IN AMERICA

PIONEERS

The first Carruths in the American Colonies of which records have been found to date are those from Ireland. They were a part of the great exodus of Scotch-Irish during the first half of the eighteenth century. In this exodus were two groups of Carruths, one settling in Worcester County, Massachusetts and the other in what is now Dauphin County, Pennsylvania. The Massachusetts group, A-1 John and B-1 William were half-brothers according to family tradition. The Pennsylvania group, C-1 Adam, D-1 Alexander and E-1 Walter were brothers and F-1 Elizabeth (Carruth) McCormick may have been their sister but this has not yet been proven.

Since these first arrivals there has been a small but steady trickle of Carruths arriving. The following tabulation of these pioneers is known to be incomplete, notably in the case of arrivals during the great Irish immigration of the nineteenth century. All dates of arrivals are necessarily approximate. For convenience in identifying and indexing an alphabetical designation has been assigned each pioneer to be used in conjunction with the numerical designation within the branch. For example: John of Northboro, Massachusetts is designated A-1; his children being A-2, A-3, A-4, etc. William of Barre, Massachusetts is B-1 and his children are B-2, B-3, B-4, etc.

COLONIAL AMERICANS

The history of a family is, of course, the history of the country in which they live. Hence, down through the years we find the Carruths taking part in each major event the same as their neighbors, each doing his small part in shaping the affairs of the nation.

When the Scotch-Irish poured into Massachusetts Bay Colony, in the early part of the eighteenth century, the eastern part of the colony, up to and including Middlesex County, was fairly well settled. There were also settlements along the Connecticut River Valley but the section between was still almost unbroken wilderness. Twice, in this section, settlements had been made at Worcester only to be driven out and destroyed by the Indians. However, in 1713 a third settlement was started at Worcester which, this time, was to prove successful, largely due to the influx of the Scotch-Irish who poured into and rapidly settled what was to become Worcester County. (A-1) John settled in that part of Westborough which was later to become part of Northborough. His half brother, (B-1) William appears in the records of several towns, chiefly Worcester, before he finally settled down in Rutland District (Barre).

At the same time, to the south of them in Pennsylvania, another group of Carruths were founding three more branches which were later to spread westward with the tide which formed the new states of the south and south-west. (C-1) Adam; (D-1) Alexander, (E-1) Walter, and (F-1) Elizabeth (Carruth) McCormick all settled in that part of Lancaster County which later became Dauphin County. While they were there the colonies to the south recognized the value of these tough, turbulent Scotch-Irish as settlers for a buffer area between the hostile Indians and the older settlements along the coastal plain. Large grants of lands were made at low prices to attract them.

By 1755 the families of Adam, Alexander and Walter were settled in North Carolina on the grant made to Earl Granville in that section, which later became Iredell County. Adam lived for a period in Augusta County, Va., before removing to North Carolina. In North Carolina the three plantations adjoined; Adam, 333 acres; Widow Jean (Alexander died in Pennsylvania), 630 acres; Walter, 302 acres. The three plantations were purchased — fee simple — from the Right Honorable John, Earl Granville, Viscount Carteret and Baron Carteret of Hawns, in the county of Bedford, in the Kingdom of Great Britain. Each plantation cost, regardless of size, three shillings proclamation money, plus a rental of three shillings sterling or four shillings proclamation money annually, per one hundred acres, making, for example, Adam's cash rent thirteen shillings, four pence yearly. This cash rental was payable semi-annually and there were other considerations.

In the meantime Elizabeth (Carruth) McCormick and her family removed from Lancaster County to Cumberland County, Pa., where she died in 1766. She was the pioneer mother of the great McCormick family which rose to fame and fortune in the agricultural implement industry.

There was an unidentified John "Caruth" who was one of the signers of a petition to the Court of Augusta County, Va., in 1753-4. A generation later there were two Carruths who served from Virginia in the Revolution; Isaiah and Patrick, who also have not been identified. These may indicate another Carruth branch in Virginia headed by this unknown John.

THE FRENCH AND INDIAN WAR

For all practical purposes the era of the original pioneers closes and that of the second generation commences with the French and Indian War. Now, for the first time the names of the young men of the second generation appear in the public records alongside those of their fathers. No records have yet been found to show that any of those in the southern branches participated in the war but the Massachusetts Archives give the following service records of her sons.

(A-1) JOHN: served on the Crown Point Expedition in the fall of 1755 as "Centinel" in Capt. John Fay's Company, Col. Josiah Browne's Regiment. He was also, in 1757, a member of the Alarm List in the 2nd Company of Militia in Westborough commanded by Capt. Bezealeal Eager.

(A-2) JOHN JR: was a private in the Train Band of the 2nd Company of Militia in Westborough commanded by Capt. Bezealeal Eager.

(A-3) JAMES: who evidently had been "bound out" to a Nath'l Oak of Bolton, volunteered for service in 1756 as a private with Capt. Timothy Houghton's Company, Col. Jonathan Bagley's Regiment and was with them at Fort William Henry in the summer of 1756 on the Crown Point Expedition. Less than two years later he entered the service again as a private from Bolton in Capt. Asa Whitcomb's Company, Col. Jonathan Bagley's Regiment. They were in the fighting at Ticonderoga, Bagley's Regiment making the charge on the right.

(A-4) JONAS: was a private in the Train Band of the 2nd

Company of Militia in Westborough commanded by Capt. Bezealel Eager.

(A-5) EPHRAIM: according to family tradition died while a soldier in the French and Indian War. A careful search has failed to find any record of his service with the Massachusetts Colonial Forces but tradition is usually based on fact although it may be distorted in the re-telling.

(A-6) NATHAN: in 1760 was mustered into a company in His Majesty's service under the command of Capt. Thomas Penniman. This was a composite company made up of drafts against Militia companies in ten towns. He served as a private for twenty-three weeks, three days.

(B-1) WILLIAM: served in the Crown Point Expedition as a private in a company of Minute Men under the command of Capt. Samuel How. He also served again in the summer of 1757 on the alarm for the relief of Fort William Henry as a private in Capt. James Caldwell's Company, Colonel Rudgel's Regiment.

Kent's "Northborough" credits a John Carruth as joining the expedition to Halifax in 1754, citing Dr. Allen's "History of Northborough" as authority. Nothing authentic has been found to substantiate this statement.

During the final two decades of the Colonial era all of the original first generation Carruths passed away with the sole exception of (B-1) William. The second generation married and established new farms and plantations, in each case spreading out to new lands with the trend toward the west or frontier. In most cases the distance in miles was not great; that was to come with the succeeding generations who were to join in the great migrations which peopled the middle west and south and were eventually to continue west until the Pacific Coast was settled.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

So far as is known the only Carruths in the Colonies at the time of the Revolution were those in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

In New Hampshire was H-1 James, newly arrived from Scotland, who refused to sign the Association Test. However, he was not molested or classed as a Tory since he agreed not to take up arms against the colony and was willing to pay his just share of the taxes.

In Massachusetts, in addition to the sons of the original pioneers, there was newly arrived G-1 Thomas, a mariner at Marblehead. No record of war service has yet been found for him. Old B-1 William, the last of the original pioneers, was too old for active service but he did serve as constable in the town while the younger men were away. Those who served were Ensign A-2 John Jr., Corporal B-5 Samuel and privates A-3 James, A-4 Jonas, A-8 Josiah, A-11 William and A-13 Ephraim. Of these A-11 William was the only casualty known. He joined the Continentals and died in service, the second son to have been lost in military service. His brother A-5 Ephraim supposedly having died in the French and Indian War.

In Virginia Isaiah "Cruth" served with Morgan's Riflemen and later when they were incorporated into the 9th Continental Regiment of the Line his name was changed on the rolls from "Cruth" to "Caruth". Patrick "Carrath" served with the 2nd Virginia State Regiment.

In North Carolina unquestionably all the male Carruths served with their militia companies but the records available are not as complete or precise as could be desired. C-5 John is the outstanding member of his family as he continues to be until his death. He appears among the captains commissioned 12 February 1779 but is referred to as a major in Gen'l Joseph Graham's history and that rank is acceptable to the D.A.R. His gravestone in the Buffalo Baptist Church cemetery in Cherokee County, S. C., carries the title of colonel which he may have received in the militia after the war or it may have simply been honorary. E-4 John was also appointed Captain, 12 February 1779.

In South Carolina a John "Caruth" served as a private in Capt. Ezekiel Polk's Company of Rangers, according to a return dated 11 July 1775.

THE FIRST CENSUS (1790) OF THE UNITED STATES

The first census of the United States, taken in 1790 affords an excellent opportunity for a check on the members of the family in this country at that time as well as the locations of the new homes of the younger generation.

This census covered the original thirteen states plus Kentucky, Tennessee, Vermont and Maine but the returns for Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, New Jersey, Tennessee and Virginia were lost or destroyed, probably when the British burned the Capitol at Washington during the War of 1812.

These records were, of course, originally written in the field by the individual census takers and the spellings of the surname show the variations which are commonly found in searching the public records. These families all used the "Carruth" form themselves. The census was by geographical subdivisions and showed the names of the heads of all families found. Following the names of the heads of the families there were five columns listing the number of persons in that family in each specified classification. These classifications were:

- Column 1, Free white males of 16 years and upward, including heads of family.
- 2, Free white males under 16 years.
- 3, Free white females, including heads of family.
- 4, All other free persons.
- 5, Slaves.

This gives us a check on most of the members of the family at this time but the census taker seems to have missed the family of G-1 Thomas in Marblehead, Mass. Also it is fairly certain there were Carruths in Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia whose records were lost.

Shortly after the census J-14 James arrived and settled in the Scottish community at Ryegate, Vt. This community was unique inasmuch as it was not composed of settlers from the older American settlements but was wholly a Scottish company formed in Renfrewshire. They organized with the definite intent of forming a community where, as they thought, they could lead a life similar to that at home. Each member of the company was to receive a town lot and an outlying farm and they had visualized renting that farm to a tenant and living themselves, like gentlemen on the town lot from the rental paid by their tenant. They quickly found that this was not feasible and that to survive they would have to work their lands themselves. It is greatly to their credit that they readily adapted themselves to the actual conditions and built up a prosperous God fearing community in the adjacent towns of Ryegate, Newbury, Topsham, and Groton, Vermont.

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

When the original family members arrived, back in 1730-40, the colonies of that day were settled almost wholly on the coastal plain. The newly arrived Scotch-Irish were planted along the western fringe of those settlements between them and the Allegheny mountain range. Here they were to serve as a buffer group between the older settlements and the wilderness. By the time the new century opened what had been frontier where our original ancestors had settled, had by now, been cleared and the former vacant lands were settled solidly with the growing generations. Already rising land values in the cleared sections had forced some of the young families to penetrate the mountain barrier and their messages back home telling of fertile valleys and rich plains ahead were drawing more and more of their relatives and former neighbors into the new lands.

In the north the building of the Erie canal, furnishing employment for thousands, drew many of the young men and their families out of New England never to return. Many settled on the rich lands of central and northern New York while others pushed on to the flat lands of the Holland Patent in the western part of the state. The completion of the canal in 1825, furnishing comfortable and inexpensive transportation for families and their household goods increased the westward tide into a flood that poured on into Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and ever westward.

In the south it was the same story of need of cheap land where a man could build a home and raise a family. Great blocks of Indian lands were thrown open to settlement in Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia and the people poured over the mountains to take advantage of the opportunities of grants to Revolutionary soldiers, land lotteries and low-priced state grants to ordinary settlers. The family of Hon. George W. Caruth of Little Rock, Ark., Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the kingdom of Portugal in 1893, had a tradition which illustrates some of the difficulties encountered in this westward migration. According to tradition his grandfather, C-6 Walter, with his family, crossed over the old Wilderness Road from North Carolina to Tennessee. Enroute the party was attacked by Shawnees. During the fight they captured and scalped Mr. Caruth's grandmother who would have died if she had not been rescued by her husband. She lived for many years but was obliged to wear a silver covering where the scalp was cut.

Later the tide flowed across Alabama and down Mississippi to Louisiana and across the Mississippi River to Missouri, Arkansas and on into Texas. Then Texas was torn away from Mexico and set up as a republic, later being annexed to the United States.

One of the family, Gen. James Pinckney Henderson, a grandson of C-5 Col. John Carruth, took a leading part in the formation of Texas. General Henderson, the son of Major Lawson and Elizabeth (Carruth) Henderson was born in Lincoln County, N. C., 31 March 1809. In 1835 he removed from North Carolina to Madison County, Miss., where he commenced the practice of law. The following year he removed to Texas where he was commissioned by Governor Burnet to return to the United States and recruit for the Texas Army. Upon his return to Texas he was appointed Attorney General of the Republic by President Houston followed by an appointment as Secretary of State. In 1837 he was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary from the Republic of Texas to France and England. During his term of service the independence of Texas was recognized by both England and France. In 1840 he returned to Texas from France and commenced the practice of law. Four years later he was one of the two Ministers sent to Washington to negotiate a treaty for the annexation of Texas. They had but little trouble in negotiating a treaty with Mr. Calhoun, the United States Secretary of State, but the Senate rejected it. Later the resolutions of annexation were passed. In 1845 General Henderson was elected Governor of Texas and the following year to command of Texan troops in the field in the Mexican war and was one of the commissioners appointed by General Taylor to negotiate for the surrender of Monterey. He was appointed a major-general in the Army of the United States and Congress voted him a sword for his services in that battle. In 1857 he was chosen to fill a vacancy in the Senate at Washington, D. C., where he died 4 June 1858, in office.

THE WAR OF 1812

No records have been found of any Carruths seeing combat service in the War of 1812 but North Carolina did mobilize some of her militia and the records show the following Carruths called into service with the Rutherford County troops.

1812

Leroy Carruth, 12th Company, Detached from the 2nd Rutherford Regiment.

1814

Ephriam Carruth, Rutherford County 3rd Regiment.

Leander P. Carruth, Rutherford County 3rd Regiment.

It is certain they never left the state and very probable that they never left the county.

SETTLEMENT OF UTAH (1847-48)

Among the early settlers of the present State of Utah was a group of five children of William and Mary (Barr) Carruth of Birkenhead, Houston parish, Renfrewshire, Scotland, members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was organized as a religious body in 1830 in the western part of New York State and early established a community with a temple at Kirtland, Ohio, near the present site of Cleveland.

In June 1831, Joseph Smith, with a small body of men left Kirtland, as missionaries, and established themselves in Missouri, locating first in Jackson county, then Clay county and finally in Caldwell county. By 1838 their numbers had grown to several thousand and at this time they were joined by the group which had been left at Kirtland.

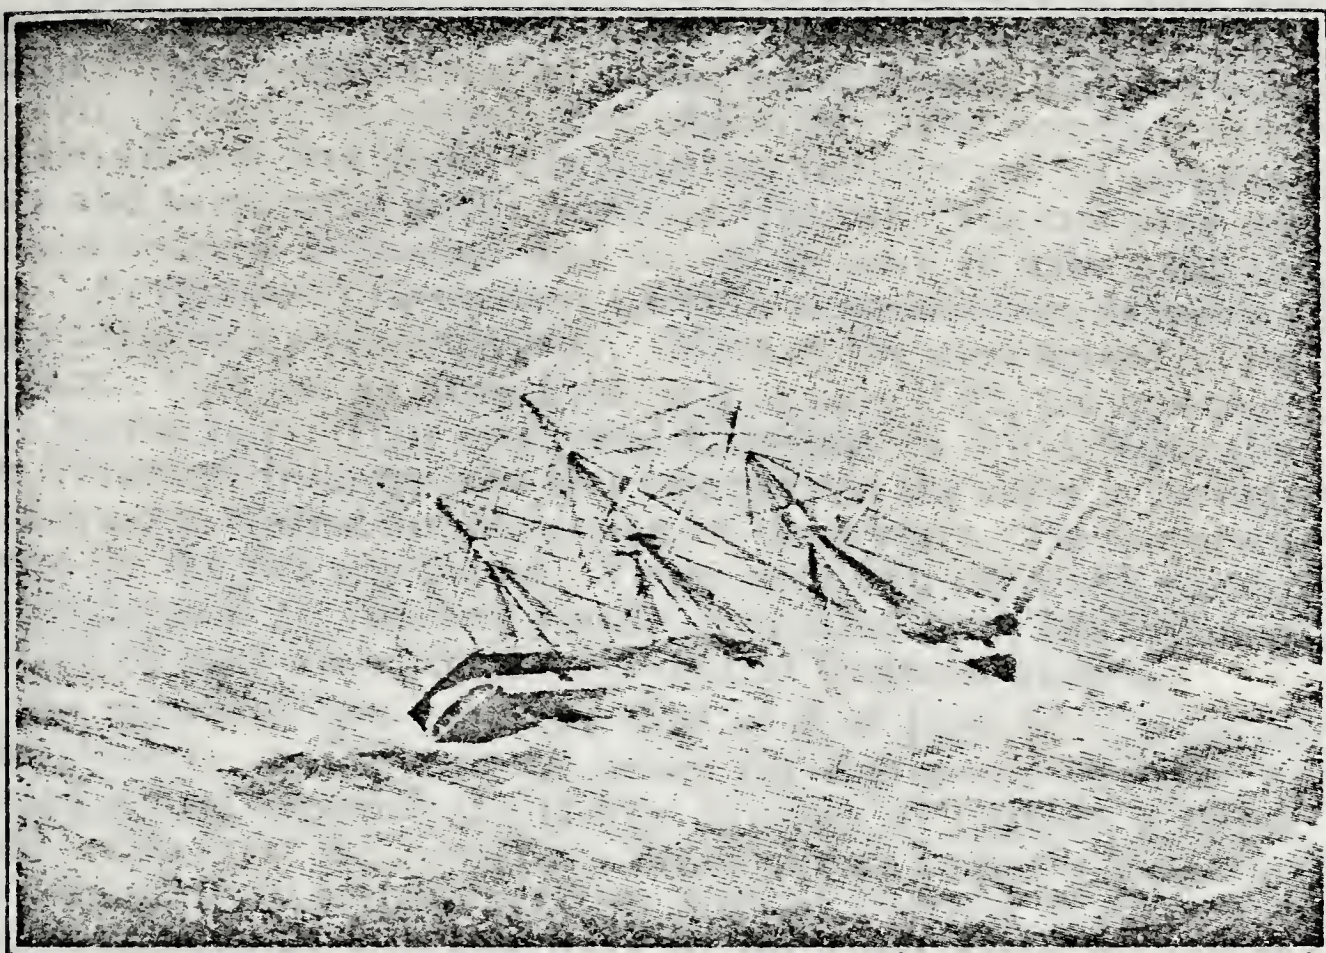

By 1839, feeling in Missouri had risen to such a pitch against the Saints that they were driven from the state. This time they turned eastward into Illinois. The Quincy, Ill., people took them in and treated them kindly but the Saints keenly desired a community of their own. About fifty miles up the Mississippi River in Hancock county, Ill., they purchased sufficient land and built their city of Nauvoo, the beautiful. Here they remained for six or seven years. Missionaries were sent, among other places, to the British Isles and as early as the spring of 1840 a few converts were baptized in Paisley, the town close by the farm of Birkenhead where a Carruth family resided.

February 1846 saw the expulsion of the Saints from Nauvoo. This time they took a westerly route along a well beaten trail, through what is now Iowa, to the Missouri River. By permission of the Omaha Indians they crossed the Missouri into Nebraska Territory and established winter quarters, where they remained during the winter of 1846-47. In April 1847 the first company started west under the leadership of Brigham Young. They followed the north bank of the Platte River to Fort Laramie. At this point they continued the journey over the old Oregon Trail until they reached Fort Bridger in Wyoming. Travelling to the southwest through Echo Canyon to the Weber River they ascended East Canyon, crossed Big and Little Mountains of the Wasatch Range and entered the valley of the Great Salt Lake through Emigration Canyon on 24 July 1847.

On 22 Feb. 1848 the ship Carnatic left Liverpool for New Orleans with one hundred and twenty Saints aboard. Among them were O-22 James Carruth, unmarried; O-25 Janet (Carruth) Young, a widow with three little girls; O-27 William Carruth and his new bride, Margaret Ellwood; O-29 Mary (Carruth) Cahoon and her missionary husband, Andrew Cahoon; and O-30 Margaret Carruth, unmarried. Also with them was James Young, Sr., the father-in-law of O-25 Janet but he died enroute, 30 Mar. 1848, and was buried at sea. They landed at New Orleans, 19 Apr. 1848, took steamer up the Mississippi to St. Louis and proceeded from thence to Council Bluffs or Winter Quarters. From here they started, with oxen and wagons, on 1 June 1848 in President Brigham Young's company, enroute overland to the Great Salt Lake Valley. On the evening of 16 July 1848, while they were on the plains, Brigham Young married Janet (Carruth) Young and Margaret Carruth to their sister's husband, Andrew Cahoon, in a plural marriage sanctioned by the tenets of their faith. The company arrived in the Great Salt Lake Valley 23 Sept. 1848, seven months after our group left Scotland.

THE WAR BETWEEN THE STATES

The outstanding Carruth in the War between the States was, without question, A-242 Colonel and Brevet Brigadier General Sumner Carruth of Massachusetts. Prior to the war he was the lieutenant of the Chelsea Light Infantry Company. When President Lincoln's proclamation for seventy-five thousand men was issued followed by that of Governor Andrew, the Chelsea Light Infantry began preparations to answer when called. The call came the 19th of April to march that afternoon. The company commander did not feel there was sufficient time to get his company ready and so reported to the Adjutant General. The company was at once ordered disbanded and an officer sent to take over the arms. At this point Lieutenant Carruth announced his determination to organize a new company. Most of the men agreed to follow him. This was at three P.M. and at nine P.M. the new company moved out. Thus originated Company H, First Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, the first company in the state to be mustered into the United States Service for three years. He saw active service for the full war period. Twice wounded, captured, paroled and exchanged, he received steady promotion from lieutenant to the rank of colonel and the brevet rank of brigadier general.

An especially sad case was that of K-9 John H. Carruth of Pennsylvania. A few months before his eighteenth birthday he enlisted for service with the Heavy Artillery at Fortress Monroe. Three weeks later the new 188th Pennsylvania Infantry Regiment was formed from surplus artillery men at Fortress Monroe and John was inducted into Company A, his name being incorrectly listed on the rolls as CANETH, John H. Ten days later the new regiment marched out on the way to the front. About three weeks later, on 16 May 1864, John fell wounded at Drury's Bluff, Va. He was captured and taken to nearby Richmond where he died three days later from the effects of his wounds. Because of that error in incorrectly listing his name on the rolls, the family never knew definitely what had happened to him in the less than two months he was in the army. Only recent research has uncovered the story.

Of course each man who served was worthy of a sketch covering his service and possibly in time we can assemble those sketches. The following list of men who served with the Federal forces is believed to be complete and such additional data as we have will be found with each man's biography under his family number.

CONFEDERATE ARMED FORCES

It is doubtful if it will ever be possible to assemble a correct roster of the family members who served with the Southern Forces. While large masses of records were captured and are now stored in Washington only a portion of these have been made available to public search. Even if these were assembled they would still be incomplete as many more records were destroyed. Family tradition and records may eventually give us the names of many who served but this type of information is always open to question where there is no official data for checking. With the best intentions the descendants ascribe actual service where there was none and cheerfully promote others to grades that the man, himself, never dreamed of holding.

Among the captured records was one stating that a Major E. B. Carruth, acting commissary of subsistence, was mentioned in orders, "for the prompt discharge of all (his) duties on this as well as on less important occasions". This was from Headquarters, Anderson's Brigade, Hindman's Division, Polk's Corps, Army of Tennessee, dated, "near Chattanooga, Tenn., 7 Oct. 1863".

Another captured record was a report by Col. George W. Baylor, 2nd Arizona Cavalry, commanding Major's Cavalry Brigade, referring to operations of April 7-18th and dated, "in the field, Louisiana, 18th April, 1864". Extract, "Capt. Walter Caruth, assistant quartermaster, x x x x entitled to much praise for keeping the troops supplied during our rapid movements through a country desolated by the enemy and stripped of stores and forage".

From Clark's "North Carolina Regiments" we learn that W. P. Caruth, Co. G, 16th North Carolina Infantry was missing in action January 1863. However, according to his grand nephew, Robert A. Carruth of Landrum, S. C. (1947) he returned home safely and eventually was buried in the cemetery at Tryon, Polk County, N. C. His gravestone reads, "W. Perry Carruth, born Oct. 12, 1833". The date of decease was not recorded.

L-9 James Tracy Caruth grew up as a boy in Warrenton, Va., and according to family tradition served with Moseby's Guerrillas.

Mrs. Arward Smith (Alice Ethel Carruth) reports (1948) that two brothers, Robert and James Carruth served from Madison County, Ga., and that James was lost in the war.

There were also two brothers, Leander O. and Adrien B. Carruth who were said to have served as surgeons from Pontotoc County, Miss., according to their descendant, State Senator Marshal T. Adams.

Time will, of course, bring more and more names to light and there certainly were as many Carruths in the C. S. A. as there were in the U. S. A.

WHO WAS WHO IN AMERICA

Since the original "Who's who in America" was published followed by "Who was who in America" numerous other publications of similar nature have been brought out specializing on various localities and subjects. These furnish a source of biographical information and have been drawn on for the sketches given in the genealogical section.

Carruth material has been found in one or more editions of each of the following:

"Who's who in America; in the East; in New England; in New York; in Pennsylvania; in the Nation's Capital.

Who's who among North American Authors; in Commerce and Industry; in Engineering; in Insurance; in Journalism; in Library Service; in Physicians and Surgeons; in Transportation and Communication.

American Authors and Books 1640-1940; American Men of Science; Leaders in Education; Musical Blue Book of America; The American Labor Who's Who; A Dictionary of North American Writers".

Although the above list probably does not cover the entire field it does show some of the diversified professions, as well as commerce, in which members of the family have made their mark. Another indication of the worthwhile advancement of many of the family is the large percentage who have college degrees. Our immigrant ancestors who knew the lack of opportunities for commoners in the home land have had their faith in their new homes justified.

The most widely known member of the family was Hayden Carruth (A-210), editor and author. Associated with "Woman's Home Companion" for twenty-seven years he had a national, yes, international following. His story told more fully, will be found in the genealogical section under (A-210)

Another Carruth, whose name will go down through the ages, is William Herbert, (A-180). Not only was he a world-wide recognized scholar but his great poem "Each in His Own Tongue" has become a classic, widely quoted today.

A third member of the family, one we all can be proud to class as a kinsman, was Allan Carruth, O.B.E. (O-66). He was commissioned by his King as an Officer of the Civil Division of the "Order of the British Empire". His work for mankind, in increasing the food resources of the State of Madras, India, through animal husbandry, typifies the finest sort of citizenship.

CHAPTER III GENEALOGIES

JOHN AND JEMIMA (RUSSELL) CARRUTH

A-1 JOHN: b. prob. Ireland, ca. 1708, d. Northborough, Mass., 27 December 1771, aged 63 years, will probated 14 January 1772; m. JEMIMA RUSSELL, b. Lexington, Mass., 8 September 1714, bpd. 12 September, d. Northborough September 1798, aged 84 years. (Above d. records from a letter dated 30 September 1856 from A-56 Horatio T. to B-31 Chester H. Original letter in possession of compiler.)

Jemima Russell was the daughter of James and Mary (Howe) Russell. Proof of her family is established; 1st, by a quit claim deed, Middlesex County, Vol. 49, Page 94, from James Russell, Jr. et al. to Josiah Russell in the settlement of their father's estate in which Jemima and her husband appear as co-grantors; 2nd, this group of brothers and sisters agree with the 1913 revised edition of Hudson's "Lexington" from which we find her descent from William Russell, who died Cambridge, Mass., 14 February 1661-62, through his son Phillip and Joanna (Cutler) Russell and their son James and Mary (Howe) Russell.

Their first child was born at Westborough in June of 1734 and since it is reasonable to assume John travelled around a bit, getting oriented in the new land before marriage, he may have arrived at Boston as early as 1730 but hardly later than 1732.

He was a weaver, by trade, like so many of his countrymen, but in 1736 he settled down on the farm which, with additions, was to remain the family homestead for several generations. The original property was thirty acres purchased from Jonathan Flagg. It was in the northern part of the town of Westborough, in that section which was then known as the north precinct. Thirty-nine years later it was set off as part of the town of Northborough. Hence the early family records are found among the records of both these towns. It lay on the west side of the road to Berlin about one mile north of the present business center of Northborough and is today (1951) in the possession of a Mr. R. T. Mason.

According to Kent's "Northborough" there were thirty-seven families living in the north precinct of Westborough in 1744, among them being A-1 John and B-1 William. About this time the settlers in the north precinct decided to organize their own church which was effected 21 May 1746 by the pastor-elect and ten of the brethren, one of whom was John Carruth.

The following year John added to his holdings by purchasing two lots from Nathaniel Oak, twenty-five and two acres respectively.

He next appears in the public records as Collector for the year 1751. Whether for the whole town of Westborough or simply for the north precinct is not clear.

Four years later, when he was forty-seven years old and the father of eleven children he was called out to serve with the local militia in the French and Indian War. He saw service on the Crown Point Expedition in the fall of 1755, his rating being that of "Centinel" in Capt. John Fay's Company, Col. Josiah Browne's Regiment. Length of service, 12 weeks, 6 days, between 15 Sept. 1755 and 13 December 1755. He is reported as being allowed ten days subsistence before marching and twelve days travel from Albany to Southbury. (Mass. Archives, Vol. 93, Pages 187 and 200; Vol. 94, Pages 10 and 103.) He was also, in 1757 a member of the Alarm List in the 2nd Company of Militia in the town of Westborough, commanded by Capt. Bezealeal Eager. The company included both a Train Band and Alarm List. (Mass. Archives, Vol. 95, Page 239.)

Following the war, in 1759, he served for one year on the Precinct Committee, a duty corresponding to that of selectman.

In 1762 he again added to his holdings by the purchase of two lots from Jonathan Oak, four and one-half and three acres respectively. Seven years later he sold a small three-quarter acre piece to Peter Whitney bringing his real estate holdings to sixty-three and three-quarters acres at the time of his death.

Although both he and his wife are known to have died in Northborough, and the old cemetery has been well cared for, no trace has, as yet, been found of their gravestones.

Their issue, probably all born in Westborough (Northborough).

In the Massachusetts Archives, Vol. 95, Page 238a, covering the period of the French War, he appears on a list of militiamen, dated Westborough, 21 March 1757, as private in the Train Band of the 2nd Company of Militia commanded by Capt. Bezealeal Eager.

That fall he purchased a tract of land in Petersham just across the town line from his uncle B-1 William in Barre. Whether or not he ever lived there is not known. Later, his brother A-4 Jonas did settle there, buying adjacent land and eventually this land from John, Jr.

At the town meeting, 20 November 1769 it was voted to divide the town into squadrons (another term for school districts) so that each part might have their proportion of schooling. Under this subdivision we find John listed in the fourth squadron of the north precinct of Westborough.

In 1774 he was assessed for 1 poll, 0 horses, 2 oxen, 2 cows, 2 sheep, 1 swine and real estate valued at seven pounds, fourteen shillings. Three years later the valuation was, real estate three hundred and fifty pounds and personal estate one hundred and sixty-three pounds, a considerable increase.

In the Revolution he was commissioned, 21 February 1776, as an Ensign in Capt. Nathan Howe's Company, Colonel Whitney's Regiment. This regiment was raised for the defense of Boston. We do not know just what actual service he saw. At a town meeting held 15 June 1778 it was decided to ascertain the public cost of the present war, from 19 April 1775 to the present time, plus the estimated cost for the future, and each one to pay according to his estate as in other taxes. The committee made a careful investigation of the services personally done in the Army and the cash each person had advanced for carrying on the war since 19 April 1775, and in that report we find that Ens. John Carruth was credited with having already contributed fifteen shillings in service and fifteen pounds in cash. In the latter part of the war he served on the Committee of Correspondence during 1778-79.

During the years he added to the lands of the original homestead and finally in 1797 he sold the property to his son A-14 Joseph.

A-3 JAMES² (*A-1 John*¹), b. probably at Westborough (Northborough) 2 October 1737; d. Phillipston, Mass., 6 December 1812; m. Templeton, Mass., 5 October 1769; LUCY GARY of Lancaster; bpd. Marlborough, Mass., 28 April 1751; d. Phillipston 25 March 1803; dau. of Aaron Gary. (We have used the b. date for James as given by Arthur Jay Carruth. He was probably bpd. on 6 November 1737 — see Westborough Vital Records of unnamed son born to John and Jemima.)

Credit must be given to A-201 Arthur Jay Carruth whose "Genealogy of a branch of the Carruth Family or the Descendants of James Carruth of Phillipston" was published by his sons after his decease. A careful check of a great portion of the genealogical section of his work has shown such a high degree of accuracy that this compiler has felt no hesitation in accepting his statements regarding the descendants of James. However, that portion covering the alleged origin of the family with coat of arms, which he ascribes to a John Carruth Campbell, together with the alleged derivation of the name which probably came from the same source, are not in accordance with known facts. For one example, there are official records of Carruths who were living in a century prior to the time he claims the family originated. (See Chapter I.)

James, as a young man, evidently had been "bound out" to Nathaniel Oak of Bolton. This appears among the records of his service in the French War. Since he was under age it was necessary to have the release of his "father or master" and the name "Nath'l Oak" appears in that space in the old records in the State Archives. In 1756, James volunteered for service, from Bolton, with Capt. Timothy Houghton's Company, Col. Jonathan Bagley's Regiment and was with them at Fort William Henry in the summer of 1756 on the Crown Point Expedition. Length of service on this tour of duty was 27 weeks, 4 days, from 31 March 1756 to 9 October 1756. Eleven days of travel allowed from Albany home. (Vol. 94, Page 382; Vol. 95, Pg. 2.)

Less than two years later he entered the service again as a private from Bolton. This time the company was commanded by Capt. Asa Whitcomb in Col. Jonathan Bagley's Regiment, the troops being raised by the province of Massachusetts Bay for the reduction of Canada. They were in on the fighting at Ticonderoga, Bagley's Regiment making the charge on the right. This tour of duty was for 7 months, 4 days, from 1 May 1758 to 16 November 1758. He received eleven days travel allowance. (Vol. 96, Pgs. 102, 281, and 478.)

His service in the Revolution was as private in Capt. Ezekiel Knowlton's Company, Col. Nathan Sparhawk's Regiment, which marched on the alarm of April 19, 1775 to Cambridge; service fourteen days. (Mass. Soldiers and Sailors in the Revolution, Vol. III, Pg. 1019.)

Phillipston, Worcester County, Mass., where A-3 James cleared his land and built his homestead was originally the plantation called "Narragansett Number Six" and so appears on his original deed. In 1762 this area was established as Templetown, later contracted to Templeton. In 1786 it was set off from Templeton to become part of the new town of Gerry and in 1814 the name was changed to Phillipston.

Issue, all born Templeton (Phillipston).

A-4 JONAS² (A-1 *John*¹), b. Westborough, Mass., 8 June 1740; d. Petersham, Mass., 13 June 1827; m. Barre, Mass., 14 June 1770; B-3 MARY CARRUTH, b. Westborough, Mass., 6 August 1740; bpd. 14 Sept. 1740; d. Petersham, Mass., 13 May 1816, dau. of William and Margaret (Perry) Carruth.

During the French War, Jonas appears on a list dated Westborough 21 Mar. 1757 of the 2nd Company of Militia in the town of So. Westborough, commanded by Capt. Bezealel Eager, comprising the Train band and Alarm list. His rank is marked as Private (probably) and is reported as belonging to the Train Band. (Mass. Archives, Vol. 95, page 238A.)

Some time following the war, we do not know just when, Jonas removed to and settled in Petersham, Mass., across the town line from his uncle, B-1 William, in Barre. In Nov. of 1757 Jonas' older brother, John, Jr., purchased a tract of land in Petersham from John Warden but there is nothing to show John, Jr., ever occupied that land. In Oct. of 1763, Jonas, when he was twenty-three years old, bought the balance of John Warden's land. From the price this would seem to include buildings and it seems probable this was the time he came to Petersham. In 1781 he bought his brother's tract also.

He must have spent about seven years alone, clearing and building, because he did not marry until 1770. His homestead was built on what was originally the main road from Barre to Petersham just across the town line in Petersham. Today (1949) that part of the old road is referred to as the Butterworth Road while the new improved state highway lies further west. The homesteads which once lined the old stage coach road have gone and their former presence is now indicated by cellar holes, wild rose and lilac bushes and long neglected fruit trees.

During the Revolution he served as a private in Capt. Robert Cutting's Company, Col. McIntosh's regt., Gen'l. Lovell's Brigade. He enlisted 1 August 1778 and was discharged 13 September 1778, Service: 1 month, 16 days, travel included, on the expedition to Rhode Island.

In 1798 he purchased a parcel of land in Petersham from a John Whitaker and the indications are that he acquired other lands, the deeds for which were not recorded.

On the passing of his father-in-law, he and his wife quit claim all rights in the B-1 William estate to his brother-in-law B-5 Samuel.

The gravestone markers of Mr. Jonas Carruth and also of his wife Mrs. Molly Carruth are in the Petersham Village Cemetery (1948).

Children, all born Petersham, Mass.

According to family tradition he lost his life in the French War. This compiler has made a careful search of the original Mass. Archives and has been unable to find anything to substantiate this tradition. However, this is not conclusive and traditions are usually based on a fact although frequently that fact becomes distorted in the retelling. As it stands now the only authentic record known of him is the record in the Westborough Vital Records of his birth, as given above.

A-6 NATHAN² (A-1 John¹), b. prob. Westborough (Northboro), 29 Mar. 1744; d. North Brookfield 22 May 1827; m. 13 July 1774, ELIZABETH WHIPPLE; b. Westborough 18 June 1748; d. North Brookfield, 8 May 1822, dau. of Francis and Abigail () Whipple.

There is an interesting little genealogy entitled "The Descendants of John Carruth, 1740-1880", relating to this family of Nathan, which was compiled by his distinguished great grandson A-249 William Ward Carruth and privately published in 1880. A few copies of this may be found in some of the better genealogical libraries and among descendants of this family line.

Like most of his brothers, Nathan served in the French War. In 1760 he was mustered into a company in His Majesty's service under the command of Capt. Thomas Penniman. This was a composite company made up of drafts against the Militia companies in ten towns. He served as a private for 23 weeks, 3 days from 21 June 1760 to 1 December 1760 and was allowed 60 miles travel home. (Mass. Archives, Vol. 98, Pg. 292.)

Kent's Northborough History, under the date of 20 Nov. 1769 lists Nathan in the Fourth Squadron (or School District) as if he was the head of a family. His name is the fifth following that of his brother John, Jr. There is no indication that Nathan ever married prior to his marriage in 1774 with Elizabeth Whipple so it would seem indicated that his elderly parents were living with him, rather than with his brother John, Jr.

In 1773 he purchased a tract of approximately 83 acres with mansion house and other buildings in Brookfield, Worcester County, Mass., from Stephen Rice. In the deed Nathan is described as Housewright of Westborough. The property was in that part of the town which was later set off and incorporated as North Brookfield. Four years later he purchased 19 acres and 40 rods additional. His final purchase of land was in 1794 when he added 5½ acres of woodland.

William Ward Carruth, in the little genealogy mentioned above, gives the following excellent sketch of his great-grandparents. "Nathan was by trade a carpenter, and by cultivating his farm, he managed, with the assistance of his industrious wife (who made herself quite celebrated for many miles around the country, by

During the last few years of his life he was nearly blind, but suffered little from ill health, and with the assistance of some of his younger grandchildren, he could walk about the farm and to his neighbors till quite the last days of his life.

At his death he was buried by the side of his wife in the old graveyard, near the wall on the east side of the yard.

Josiah was the "rolling stone" of his family and no records have been found where he ever purchased or owned land. By all indications he appears to have been a real frontiersman, similar to Morgan's Men in the South. If he had a trade it seems likely that it might have been that of gunsmith, which was known to be the trade of his son Daniel, and his descendants of today, in Vermont, show marked ability at hunting, fishing, and woodcraft.

He saw considerable service in the Revolution; the following being taken from the Mass. State records. His first enlistment was on 4 Dec. 1775, at which time he was of Northborough. This enlistment was in Capt. Silas Gates' Co., Col. Ward's Regt. in service at Dorchester in the siege of Boston.

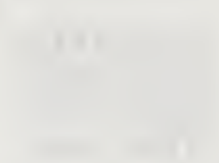

The records are fragmentary so we do not get a continuous picture but we next find him, in Dec. of 1776 as "of Templeton". It is probable he was living with his brother James when he enlisted the second time. This was in Capt. Manasseh Sawyer's Co., Col. Dikes' Regt. and his service was from 14 Dec. 1776 to 1 Mar. 1777.

He next reenlisted 1 Sept. 1777 in Capt. Ebenezer Newell's Co., Col. Danforth Keyes' Regt. for service in Rhode Island, serving until 4 Jan. 1778, one month and three days beyond the original enlistment period for which he received a bounty.

Following his service in the war, he married, in 1779, but just when he removed to Vermont is not known. He and his family appear in the 1st U. S. Census of 1790 as residing in Rutland Town, Rutland County, Vt. The family at that time consisted of; 1 free white male of 16 and upward, including heads of families; 3 free white males under 16 and 3 free white females, including heads of families. These check with the children as listed later, Lucy having been born after the census.

How long he stayed in Vermont is problematical. We do know from his application for a pension that he had lived in Chester, Windsor Co., and Rutland, Pittsford and Chittendon, Rutland Co.

The next trace found was when he was living in present day Erie Co., New York, on the outskirts of Buffalo. The actual record was the 5th U. S. Census in 1830 for Erie County, N. Y., Vol. 31, Sheet 138. At that time Josiah Coruth, a male of 70 and under 80, together with a female of 70 and under 80 were listed as living in Hamburg. There were no records of his owning any property but fortunately the census was in the original form as it had been taken and not rearranged alphabetically. By checking the land records of several neighbors it was found he and they were living in the present day town of North Collins, Erie Co., near the intersection of Jennings and Shirley Roads. There was nothing to indicate any of their children were in the vicinity. At that time the section was being opened for settlement being part of the lands purchased by the Holland Company of the Senecas.

According to the pension records he was living in Clarence, Erie Co., in 1832, two years after the above census. We know that in 1832, Josiah Jr. was in Buffalo and Eli was living in Lancaster, which was a new township recently erected, and the section where Eli lived had recently been a part of the town of Clarence. It seems likely the old folks were with Eli in 1832.

Eli remained in Lancaster but his brother Josiah Jr. and sister Sally Carruth Powers followed the tide to the new lands in Michigan and the old folks must have gone along just as soon as the youngsters could get a place ready for them. The pension record shows that Josiah passed in 1836 and his wife, presumably Betty, died in 1837, in the new lands.

Unfortunately, Josiah's pension claim was not allowed. Unquestionably that small sum would have been a blessing to them and he was entitled to it but he was unable to give the Pension Bureau the correct names of his commanding officers and without that information they were unable to locate his records in the service. Since then the records have been assembled and indexed but it was done too late to help Josiah. One point about his application is interesting. He claimed to have been in the battles of Bunker Hill and Newport. He was unquestionably in the battle of Newport and probably also at Dorchester Heights in the siege of Boston, but Bunker Hill was fought on the 17th of June in 1775 and, as far as we know, Josiah's first enlistment was not until 4 Dec. 1775. It is possible that he was at Bunker Hill but in view of the lack of official records it seems more likely to have been a slight exaggeration on his part which was certainly excusable in a veteran of his age.

The following list of children is believed to be correct but not a single birth record has been found for them. Eli, Josiah, Jr. and Sally Carruth Powers are referred to as his children in the Pension Bureau records but no mention is made in those records of the children back in Vermont. Conversely, the descendants in Vermont have no record of what became of Josiah nor have they any traditions regarding those who went West. They simply have a tradition that they are descendants of Josiah the son of John of Northborough.

Children, not necessarily in order.

A-19 MOSES³ (*A-2 John*², *A-1 John*¹), b. Westborough (Northborough), Mass., 25 Dec. 1774.

On Jan'y 15th, 1801 the Selectmen of the town of Weare, N. H., certified in the town records, "that Stephen Dow and Moses Caruth hath made application to mix and sell all kinds of liquor as the law directs in said Weare".

The Boston Directory for 1803 lists him as a "shopkeeper at 3 Cornhill" and for 1805 as a "shopkeeper at 27 Union Street".

At the Superior Court, Salem, Mass., in 1807, "Moses Carruth of Boston, in our county of Suffolk, merch't" was the plaintiff in a suit against a Salem merchant. The defendant defaulted and Moses recovered the sum of twenty-three dollars damages.

The same year, 1807, Moses appears on two deeds at Worcester, Mass., where in he is described in "Trader — of Worcester".

His name appears in 1847 in the list of persons interested in the estate of his brother A-16 John with the notation "residence unknown".

He resided on the home farm which he inherited from his father.

When he was 20 years of age he indentured himself as a woodcutter for a term of seven months, from 3 Sept. 1800 until 13 April 1801, to work in the woods of South Carolina or Georgia. This original indenture is one of the treasured mementos of the family in the possession of his late descendant A-316 Charles M. Carruth of Worcester, Mass. His signature has been torn off which would appear to indicate that James fulfilled his part of the contract, the indenture then being returned to him whereupon James destroyed the signature. This is the first record of a New England Carruth going south for the winter.

The following extracts from the indenture may be of interest: dated 3rd Sept. 1800; between Phineas Miller esq. and James Carruth, of Gerry, County of Worcester, Mass. x x x (James) to be ready at the Port of Boston, there on the third day of Sept. to embark, on board such vessel as the said Miller shall provide, for the State of Georgia or South Carolina and there x x x to serve Miller x x x in the business of chopping timber or other labor until the thirteenth day of April next. Said Carruth x x furnish himself with a good ax and rubstone x x x Miller will provide for the said Carruth x x x a house at said Georgia or South Carolina, said Carruth procuring his own blankets, or other lodging, that he will provide for the said Carruth wholesome meat and drink, that is to say, the meat shall never be less nor worse than, tea once a day and beef or pork with bread and rice and peas or beans with suitable vegetables at proper seasons and in sufficient quantity and drink, while at actual labor, one half pint of new rum per day or drink of equal value x x x all necessary washing to be done for the said Carruth charging three cents per piece x x x on the said thirteenth of April next he will pay said Carruth x x rate of Twelve Dollars per month (plus transportation back to Boston and twelve days stores for the passage).

He was a selectman for the years of 1820, 1836, 1837, 1838, 1839, and 1842. Was appointed postmaster of Phillipston on 28 Oct. 1828 and probably served until 1841 which seems to be the date of the next appointment.

Probably served in the militia since he is designated as Lieut. James in his marriage record and as Capt. James on the birth records of all the children.

Issue, all born Gerry (Phillipston).

Levi first went to the Chenango Valley in New York State in 1815 and in Sept. of the following year purchased the north half of Lot No. 9, in the 13th town of the 20 townships. This 13th town became the township of McDonough and lot 9 was one of the northern tier of lots which abutted on the Pharsalia town line hence Levi's north half of the lot abutted directly on the line. Later he was to purchase other lands in McDonough but this first purchase became the homestead. The village of East Pharsalia was established just across the line from Levi's property and the family naturally found their social center here although actually residing in the adjacent township.

In 1817 Levi appears on a list of persons liable to serve as jurors in McDonough.

The family early became identified with the First Presbyterian Church of McDonough and in 1827 Levi was chosen as one of the trustees.

In 1838 a meeting was held in East Pharsalia for the purpose of organizing a church (The First Presbyterian). Letters of recommendation were received from "Levi Carruth and Lucy, his wife" as well as others from the Presbyterian Church of McDonough. Levi was appointed one of the elders and also a trustee. The church, which they built, is still standing (1947) but is no longer used. It is located on the same road, 9/10ths of a mile north of Levi's old homestead, which (1947) was only a heap of rubble, a rod, or so, west of the highway.

It is stated that Levi specialized in bee culture and the raising of sheep. That he was a man of considerable means and assisted a number of worthy young men in gaining a college education, among them Judge Elliott Anthony for many years an eminent lawyer and jurist in Chicago. Every fall he and his wife drove to Massachusetts to visit their kinfolk. It is told that his son Uri, when asked at such time as to the whereabouts of his parents would answer, "Gone back to 'Chusetts." After he retired and lived in Norwich he was a great traveller visiting his son Uri in Wisconsin and relatives in Northern Indiana. All three of his sons met violent death.

Levi and his wife, together with some of the children and grandchildren, are buried in the church yard of the East Pharsalia Church.

Issue, b. McDonough, Chenango County, N. Y.

The family first resided in Stillwater, Saratoga County, N. Y., where the first three children were born. Near 1822 they removed to Jefferson County settling in the town of Lorraine. Here over the years from 1824 until 1841 he purchased and sold several small lots of land, none larger than an acre. These would seem to indicate store or shop sites and possibly a house lot but nothing to indicate that he was farming.

In 1843 he followed his brother Levi to Chenango County and purchased a town lot in the village of Norwich adjoining land owned by Levi. Two years later he sold this lot to his son James B. who in turn leased it to his parents "for and during their natural life x x and or x x survivor of them" for an annual rental of one peppercorn.

The family Bible of William and Eleanor Patterson Carruth was in the possession of Mr. George D. Davis of 18 Academy St., Norwich, N. Y. It was copied by Mrs. J. B. Meola, Capt. John Harris Chapt. D.A.R., Norwich, N. Y., and the copy is available to the public at the New York State Library, Albany (Bible Records, N. Y. State, 33-929-qD23).

There is a memoranda in the Bible which is of especial interest. It reads, "The Carruths descended from two half brothers who came from the north of Ireland to this country and settled in Massachusetts in 1737. There are persons of that name in South Carolina and Tennessee — etc." This is the earliest record indicating that any Northern Carruths knew of the Southern branches. There are several records to show that the Southern branches had traditions of their pioneer ancestor having a brother who settled in the north.

William and his wife were buried in the village cemetery at Norwich, Chenango County, N. Y.

Issue. First three born Stillwater, Saratoga County, N. Y., all others Lorraine, Jefferson County, N. Y.

He inherited the homestead in North Brookfield which he occupied until 3 July 1856 when the house was destroyed by fire. The family then removed to the village. His life was not different from the usual course of New England farmers, except that he showed more than a common zeal for the acquirement of an education, and at different times taught school in the county. Was one of the selectmen for several years, was of an amiable disposition and was greatly beloved by his townspeople.

Thompson's History of Stratford, N. H., states that Ezra Barnes came to Stratford in 1810 from Brookfield, Mass., a journey requiring nine days. His family at that time consisted of a wife and three little girls, his travelling equipment a horse and a pair of steers. Two incidents of the arrival of that pioneer family are left us: the children running ahead of the load, and the borrowing of coals in the skillet at Mr. Blake's to start the home fires.

Mr. Barnes settled first on the Freeman Curtis place. He lived in Haskins six years and in Stark six years. He settled finally in East Stratford, where he built the "round house" of timbers laid up in octagonal form. A saw mill was also built by him in 1849.

Upon Lucy's death in 1858 he remarried a Widow Peck by whom he had a daughter.

A-43 ELI³ (A-8 *Josiah*², A-1 *John*¹), b. Mass. (Census 1855) ca. 1780, (will) d. Lancaster, Erie County, N. Y., 21 Mar. 1875, widowed, m. ——— (wife living in 1830 — age between 30 and 40 years — d. prior to 1875).

In the Third U. S. Census, 1810, Eli appears in the town of Clarence, Niagara (Erie) County, N. Y. At that time the family consisted of three members, Eli over 26 and under 45 years, his wife, over 16 and under 26 years and a boy under 10 years.

In the Fifth U. S. Census, 1830, the family appears in the town of Amherst, Erie County, N. Y. So far there is no record of Eli owning real estate but a check of the holdings of his neighbors in this census places their property in Township 11, Range 6 which was actually Clarence instead of Amherst and was in that part of Clarence which later became Lancaster. In this census the family was composed of eleven members; Eli between 50 and 60 years, son between 20 and 30, and a son between 15 and 20, wife between 30 and 40, two dau's. between 15 and 20, two dau's. between 10 and 15, two dau's. between 5 and 10 and one dau. under 5.

Six years later, 20 Mar. 1836, he purchased 37 acres in Lancaster located on what is today Stony road between Genesee road and Ellicott Creek. Lancaster today is a suburb of Buffalo.

In the Census of 1855 he is still at this same address as Eli "Carnuth" boarder-farmer, age 74, birthplace Mass., with the family of his son Lyman N. No record of his wife.

In October of the next year, 1856, he sold 30 acres of the property to his son Lyman and four years later the balance to a neighbor.

His will, dated 29 Jan. 1868 admitted to probate 8 July 1875 at the Surrogate's office, Buffalo, gives his age as eighty-eight years. It directs that his executor repair and improve his burial lot in Lancaster and place at his grave a suitable gravestone. The compiler has been unable to find this gravestone. There is a small family burial lot on the north side of Genesee road near the corner of Stony road which would appear to be the likely location but it was so overgrown with briars, etc., pitted with animal holes and other obstructions that he was unable to get through to examine the stones which were down and broken. Horatio resided in Northborough, first on Whitney St., later removing to Main St. The Main St. location was about one-half mile west of the Marlborough line and across the road from the old blockhouse. Horatio purchased the old block-house and tore it down using the timbers from it to build his house. Later, his wife objecting to the way the chimneys smoked, he traded houses and obtained the house now (1945) occupied by Mr. Phelps, the Tax Collector, at 104 South St.

They were members of the Evangelical Congregational Church and he was a member of the cemetery committee.

They did not have any children of their own but they adopted a Louisa Bartlett to whose name they added the Carruth. Louisa was married in the front room of the house on South St. She is still remembered in Northborough for the affection she bore for her foster parents and they still tell of her driving back home, from Quincy, with her children for visits. It was at her home in Quincy where Horatio passed away.

Adopted, surname CARRUTH.

Smithfield, R. I., 23 Mar. 1811, d. Northborough 13 July 1894, dau. of Eber and Ruth (Smith) Aldrich.

He was a farmer and resided in Northborough on Whitney St. in the house occupied (1945) by the Procters.

It is said that at one time he peddled essences around the town driving from farm to farm behind an old white horse. This brought him the nickname of "Doctor". Also in his later years he was not feeling his usual self so he sent word to the undertaker that he wanted to see him. When the undertaker arrived he was surprised to find Orlando up and around. In response to his questioning as to what Orlando wanted Orlando told him that he felt he was not going to live much longer and wanted to be sure that an important wish of his would be carried out. His great desire was that he be buried just as near the gate of the cemetery as possible and he wanted the undertaker to promise he would faithfully attend to the matter. Naturally the undertaker agreed but his curiosity caused him to ask Orlando why he was so set on being buried near the gate. Whereupon Orlando solemnly informed him that, "When Gabriel blew his horn there was certainly going to be a mad rush for the gate and he wanted to be up front where he could get out quickly as he didn't want to be tromped on".

His wife was a descendant of Rev. John Robinson of Leyden, Holland, the "Father of the Mayflower", whose son Isaac went to Plymouth Colony in 1631 and founded the family in America.

Uri graduated from Hamilton College with the class of 1850 (Alpha Delta Phi) and spent several years in the California gold camps, later locating in Berlin, Wis., where he was the second City Clerk of that city. He engaged in the practice of law and became editor and proprietor of the Green Lake Spectator.

Like both his brothers he was destined to meet a violent death. In 1861 a man by the name of Charles K. Landis acquired a large tract of land, thousands of acres, in Cumberland Co., southern New Jersey. Here, it is said "he planned to found a model town, made attractive and beautiful, with good roads, shaded walks, and well kept and productive farms with fruit, vines and flowers; a place where the esthetic principle would appeal to resident and stranger alike, whose social advantages would attract and hold young and old, where the united labors of the people would benefit the whole community", to quote from Andrews "The Vineland Pioneers". Such was the beginning of Vineland, N. J., a Utopian real estate project by Charles K. Landis. Advertisements in the New York and Boston papers drew many settlers and eventually its fame spread throughout the North drawing from all sections many especially desirous of escaping harsh winters.

Among those who came was Uri with wife and four children, the fifth being born in Vineland in 1868. In 1871 Uri Carruth and William G. Smith purchased the local paper, "The Independent" and a few months later Uri purchased his partner's interest and continued to edit and publish the paper. In him the "Independent Party" found an editor more to its liking than in any of the preceding and his paper was awaited with interest from week to week by those who enjoyed his style of writing. In 1874 he established "The New Jersey Granger" but it is doubtful if the "Grange" in New Jersey was as generous in its support as had been expected for within six months the new paper was united with the Independent. Mr. Carruth did not see eye-to-eye with Mr. Landis, the founder of the town, and it was the repeated editorials in "The Independent" which led to what was called "The Landis-Carruth Tragedy", in a History of Vineland, N. J., a copy of which is in the Syracuse, N. Y., public library.

This account is as follows.

"On March 19, 1875, Uri Carruth, Esq., Editor of the Vineland Independent, was shot by Mr. Charles K. Landis, founder of Vineland. There were no witnesses to the first meeting of Messrs. Landis and Carruth in the sanctum of the Independent office. In a moment, however, Mr. Carruth rushed into the composing room and ran to the further end of the room, when Mr. Landis stepped through the door and fired, the ball penetrating the back of the editor's head. Mr. Landis at once gave himself up to an officer and went before Justice Hosea Allen, waiving a preliminary examination. He was soon released on bail to await the result of the shooting. Under skilled medical treatment Mr. Carruth gradually improved and was able to be about a few months later, making a journey to New York and back by rail. It was then thought he would permanently recover, but ere a year had passed he died. Mr. Landis was tried before Judge Reed in Bridgeton, and acquitted on the plea of temporary insanity. The affair attracted the attention of the whole country because of the prominence of the parties concerned. The cause of the tragedy was a long series of personal newspaper attacks on Mr. Landis, criticism of his policy and ridicule of both his public and private conduct. Some of the ablest lawyers in the country conducted the case."

The trial was long and tedious continuing nearly a month.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Carruth were buried, Clinton, N. Y.

When a small child the family removed from Stillwater, Saratoga Co., north of Troy, to Lorraine, Jefferson Co., south of Watertown. Here at Lorraine James grew to manhood. Shortly after his twenty-first birthday, on 25 Jan. 1841, he was appointed Deputy Clerk of the County of Lewis. Three years later he was reappointed at which time he was designated as "of the town of Martinsburg" and he was still in Martinsburg in Feb. 1845 when he purchased a parcel of land in Norwich from his father.

According to some deeds he was evidently in both Martville and the neighboring town of Sterling in 1848, but by 1850 the family was in Groton, Tompkins Co., between Ithaca and Cortland near their cousins in Chenango and Cortland Cos. Here their second child was born. In 1852 the third child was born in Auburn, Cayuga Co., and in the fall of the same year, the mother, James' first wife died at Auburn. He was still in Auburn in Feb. 1854 when his sister and her husband executed a conveyance for the benefit of the children of Betsey T. Carruth, deceased. It is not known where he married his second wife in July of that same year but it may have been outside New York State as we next find James in Toronto, Canada, where his fourth child was born in Aug. 1856 and the mother died a month later.

Following Toronto he appears in South Bend, Indiana, in 1860 when he executed a deed as "Trustee for the children and heirs of Betsey T. Carruth" disposing of the Norwich, New York, property. Then two years later he was back in New York State again where he married his 3rd wife at Buffalo. They settled in Fredonia, Chautauqua Co., where he is thought to have operated a grocery and general store on Main St. He, together with his 3rd wife and their son are buried Forest Hills Cemetery, Fredonia.

Was a school teacher with the Cherokee and Creek Indians, 1856 and Indian Agent 1861. In the "Official Records of the War of the Rebellion" Series I, Vols. 8, 13, 22, 53 and Series II, Vol. 4, are letters written by Edwin during the war in his capacity as Indian Agent or letters in which he is mentioned. An example of them is the following dated from Barnsville, Sept. 11, 1861 to Tusaquach, Chief of the Wichitas:

"Friend and Brother: It is the wish of the Commissioner of the United States Government that you either come to Kansas with your friends the Seminoles or send two or three of your best braves. We also want the Keechies, Ionies, Cadoes and the Comanches to send some of their men to meet and have a talk with the commissioners of your Great Father at Washington. His soldiers are as swift as the antelope and brave as the mountain bear, and they are your friends and brothers. They will give you powder and lead. They will fight by your sides. Your friend Black Beaver will meet you here and we will drive away the bad men who entered your company last spring. The Texans have killed the Wichitas: we will punish the Texans. Come with your friends the Seminoles."

Your Brother

E. H. Carruth

Commissioner for the U. S. Government.

That he was successful in his work is borne out by a letter which was captured from the Confederates. Both sides were engaged in the same work. This letter, dated 8 Aug. 1862 from Headquarters Indian Dept. (C.S.A), Cantonment Davis, from D. H. Cooper, Colonel, Commanding Indian Dept., to Hon. Jefferson Davis, President, Richmond, Va., is, in part,

"In fact there is no doubt that Carruth (a Yankee schoolmaster or missionary) has succeeded in enlisting a large number of Indians of the Cherokee, Creek and tribes of the plains against us."

Martin Parlin is thought to have been born Brownington, Vt., not Bennington as given in the Parlin Gen'l'y and also Lewis History of Clinton and Franklin Counties, N. Y. His parents with children were among the first settlers of Malone, his father's earliest recorded deed was dated 1813. Martin's first deed in 1825. The homestead was about 3½ miles west of Malone on both sides of the highway leading to Bangor, N. Y. His father, Lemuel served in the War of 1812.

In his early years he was engaged for a short time as school teacher, became greatly interested in public affairs, served as supervisor for the town in 1836 and for many years as surrogate for the county. In 1859 he represented the county in the state legislature at Albany.

The Parlin Gen'l'y erroneously states that he was surrogate of St. Lawrence County. The family lived in Franklin County and it was Franklin County where he was surrogate.

Porter, b. Charlestown, Mass., 6 Mar. 1813, d. Boston 13 July 1910, a. 97 y. 4 m. 7 d., dau. of Silas and Sally (Hobbs) Pratt.

Nathan left No. Brookfield in Aug. 1825 for Boston where he entered the employ of a West India Goods Store, where he remained about one year, when he left and went to serve his apprenticeship with Fletcher and Carruth, in the drug trade; a house in which his brother Francis was the junior member. This firm was dissolved in 1831 and he then formed a partnership with his brother under the style F. S. and N. Carruth and continued for some eight years when the firm of F. S. and N. Carruth was dissolved and his brother Charles joined him under the firm name of N. and C. Carruth and continued the same business with marked success. In addition to his regular business he became interested in the introduction of railroads in Mass.; was engaged in the projection of the Old Colony Railroad; was its first President and General Manager; and afterwards Treasurer of the Northern Railroad of New Hamp. Near 1847 the family moved to a beautiful estate in the Ashmont district of Dorchester.

During 1855-56 Lyman seems to have removed to Wisconsin as on 1 Oct. 1856 Eli sells the Stony Road property to Lyman "of Fondulac, State of Wisconsin". In 1860 Lyman died and his widow remarried, Buffalo, N. Y., 5 Dec. 1871, John Mann, who died some time prior to 30 July 1889 (see Erie Co. Deeds 641/285 — Arsenath acknowledged not married). His famous poem, "Each in his own tongue" is as follows:

A fire mist and a planet,
A crystal and a cell,
A jelly-fish and a saurian,
And caves where the cave-men dwell;
Then a sense of law and beauty
And a face turned from the clod —
Some call it Evolution,
And others call it God.

A haze on the far horizon,
The infinite tender sky,
The ripe rich tint of the cornfields
And the wild geese sailing high.
And all over upland and lowland
The charm of the golden-rod —
Some of us call it Autumn,
And others call it God.

Like tides on a crescent sea-beach,
When the moon is new and thin,
Into our hearts high yearnings
Come welling and surging in;
Come from the mystic ocean
Whose rim no foot has trod —
Some of us call it Longing,
And others call it God.

A picket frozen on duty,
A mother starved for her brood,
Socrates drinking the hemlock,
And Jesus on the rood;
And millions who, humble and nameless
The straight, hard pathway plod —
Some call it Consecration,
And others call it God.

Editor and author, known as Hayden Carruth, appears in
"Who was who in America", Vol. 1 and "Dictionary of American Biography", Vol. XXI, Supplement One.

The following has been extracted from the "Dictionary of American Biography" from the article written by Harry R. Warfel with the assistance of Gorton V. Carruth. "Although in his youth he had few good books and, as he said, 'dodged institutions of learning,' he early showed ability as a writer. After teaching in the local schools, he studied for one year, 1881-82, at the University of Minnesota. For a year he worked on a newspaper in Minneapolis. At the age of twenty-one, in 1883, he established a weekly newspaper, the 'Estelline Bell', in the small prairie town of Estelline, Territory of Dakota". The following year he married. "For three years his brightly written newspaper won favorable attention for its effervescent humor, which other editors clipped. Despite its national fame the paper had few paid subscribers and after three years Carruth sold out.

"With Samuel Travers Clover he established the 'Dakota Bell', a humorous weekly, in Sioux Falls. Again adequate support was lacking, so that within a year Carruth abandoned the magazine and moved to New York City. For four years, 1888-92, he wrote a daily humorous editorial for the New York Tribune. From 1892 to 1905, except the years 1900-02 when he was the editor of 'The Drawer' of 'Harper's Magazine', Carruth, as a free lance author wrote short stories, boy's serials, sketches, essays and verse for 'Harper's Magazine', 'Harper's Weekly', 'Century', the 'Cosmopolitan', the 'Saturday Evening Post', the 'Youth's Companion', and many other magazines. During these years two collections of short stories were published in book form; 'The Adventures of Jones' (1895) and 'Mr. Milo Bush and Other Worthies, Their Recollections' (1899) illustrated by A. B. Frost (q.v.). Based in part upon frontier characters, such as peddlers, shyster lawyers, miners and gullable immigrants, these stories follow the pattern of the tall tale. Joyous exaggeration, like that of a pack peddler who sells a clothes horse to each of some two dozen Norwegians looking for a present to carry to a wedding, marks these yarns, but unlike Harte's and Twain's famous stories in this tradition there is no moralizing, no striving for esthetic elevation and no social criticism. With clean, deft cartoonist's strokes Carruth built delightful extravaganzas. In 'The Voyage of the Rattletrap' (1897) a semi-humorous tale for boys, Carruth chronicled a trip made through Nebraska and Dakota in a prairie schooner. Most famous of his books is 'Tracks End' originally published serially in condensed form in 1897 in the 'Youth's Companion' but not issued separately as a book until 1911. This swift-moving adventure tale, with a plot as breathless as that in Stevenson's 'Kidnapped', concerns an eighteen-year-old boy who is left alone to guard a Dakota town when the inhabitants depart during the winter suspension of railroad service. He outwits a gang of outlaws, scares away a group of marauding Indians, and finally rescues the returning inhabitants from starvation in a snowdrift. Of Carruth's other writing the best, probably, is the article on South Dakota contributed to Ernest Gruening's 'These United States' (2 Vols. 1923-24).

"In 1905 Carruth became literary editor of 'Woman's Home Companion', a position he retained until 1917, when he surrendered active editorial work to devote himself to 'The Postscript' a final page in the 'Companion' which he wrote from 1915 until his death. Here in popular columnist fashion he commented upon the contents of the magazine; rallied the authors and artists upon their errors, foibles and affectations, and commented wittily upon the spirit of the age. More readers' letters referred to his page than to any other subject. His fame in later years derived almost wholly from this popular magazine feature. 'He had begun life as a country editor', said a colleague, 'and he brought over into this national magazine the best qualities of local journalism — alert observation, shrewdness, humor, a crisp prose style without affectation, candor without malice, and a sympathetic interest in everything and everybody'. ('Woman's Home Companion', March 1932 p. 4). He used his column in the fight for child-labor legislation. Strongly domestic and sensitively concerned over the welfare of his four sons, he reflected in his magazine the sorrows and joys and idealism of the average reader, for he had experienced years of financial stringency and he had buoyantly carried on after the untimely death of two children.

"Carruth's creative imagination was incessantly busy; he talked as he wrote, and his conversation was constantly entertaining and stimulating. Most of his stories came from his mind and not from experience. He was not sociable in the ordinary sense of the word; he had no formal social or club life, and he had few close friends. Yet he was readily approachable; fellow staff members on his magazine and other writers found his encouragement uncommonly sympathetic and helpful." In particular, his sympathy went out to new authors and artists struggling to get started and he gave freely of his advice and influence to assist them. "In political and economic thinking he shared the progressive attitude of middle-western Republicanism; in his later years his independency leaned toward Socialism. Never caustic, ever kindly, loyal, patient, he maintained through his career that balanced wit which enlivens and enlightens but does not sting. Even on his deathbed he joked, so that those standing by were compelled to laugh through their tears."

J., b. Parsippany, N. J., 28 Sept. 1839, d. Andover, Mass., 11 Apr. 1914, a. 74 y. 6 m. 14 d., dau. of John and Frances (Bird) Smith.

Prior to the War of the Rebellion Sumner was a machinist, living in Chelsea, Mass., and was the Lieut. of the Chelsea Light Infantry Company. When President Lincoln's proclamation for seventy-five thousand men was issued, followed by that of Governor Andrew, the Chelsea Light Infantry began preparations to answer when called. The call came the 19th of April to march that afternoon. The company commander did not feel there was sufficient time to get his company ready and so reported to the Adjutant General. The company was at once disbanded and an officer sent to take over the arms. At this point Lieut. Sumner Carruth announced his determination to organize a new company. Most of the men agreed to follow him. This was at 3:00 p.m. and at nine o'clock the new company moved out. Thus originated the Chelsea Volunteers, Company H, First Mass. Vol. Inf., being the first company in the State to be mustered into the United States Service for three years. Three months later they were in action.

On 22 May 1861 he received his commission as Captain of Co. H, 1st Mass. Vol. Inf.; wounded 25 June 1862 at Fair Oaks, Va., and discharged 19 Aug. 1862 to accept a new commission as Major of the 35th Mass. Vol. Inf.

He was to remain with the 35th Mass. until the end of the war except for intervals when he was in temporary command of the brigade. Commissioned Lieut.-Col. 27 Aug. 1862; wounded for the second time, 17 Sept. 1862, at Antietam, Md., where he commanded the regiment, the colonel being previously wounded; taken prisoner near Fauquier White Sulphur Springs, Va., 14 Nov. 1862; paroled, exchanged, and returned to duty 21 Feb. 1863; commissioned Colonel 25 Apr. 1863 and mustered out 9 June 1865 as Colonel, Brevet Brigadier General, U. S. Vol's to date 2 Apr. 1865.

In the "Official Records, War of the Rebellion" there are numerous mentions of him in Vols. 19, 24, 33, 36, 42 and 46 of the 1st Series which reach their climax in a report by Maj. Gen. Jno. G. Parke commanding the Ninth Corps, at Alexandria, Va., 29 May 1865, to Col. George D. Ruggles, Asst. Adj. Gen., Army of the Potomac. "Colonel: I have the honor to recommend for promotion the officers here named:" (extract) "Col. Sumner Carruth, Thirty-fifth Mass. Volunteers, as brevet brigadier general, U. S. Volunteers, for gallant and meritorious conduct in the assault before Petersburg, April 2, 1865, signed Jno. G. Parke, Major General Commanding, Endorsement. These recommendations are approved, signed Geo. C. Meade, Major General Commanding."

Following the war he was for a time the treasurer of the Boston Roofing Co. followed by a period with the U. S. Treasury Dept. as Boarding Officer at the Boston Custom House, residing during this period at Chelsea. Eventually he dropped these activities and retired to the farm at Andover where, on his death record, he is described as a "farmer". Bu. West Parish Cem., Andover, Mass.

WILLIAM AND MARGARET (PERRY) CARRUTH

BARRE, MASSACHUSETTS

B-1 WILLIAM¹; b. in Northern Ireland, near 1713 (pocket Bible formerly property of B-31 Chester H. Carruth), d. Barre, Mass., 1799 (Estate probated Mar. 1799). His parentage is not known but according to family tradition he was a half brother of A-1 John who settled in Westborough, Mass.; m. MARGARET PERRY, b. prob. in Northern Ireland near 1712, d. Barre, Mass., 10 Sept. 1783 in the 72nd year of her age. (Gravestone — Lincoln Cemetery.)

The earliest record of the family found to date is the birth and baptism in 1738 of their first child, who was born in that part of the Town of Westborough which was first known as the north precinct and later became a part of Northborough. There is no record of his owning land in Westborough but Kent's Northborough History states that William Carruth lived on the farm which in 1921 was owned by Thornton E. Mentzor. In 1951 it was owned by T. C. Bent and is located on the west side of Brewer Street about 6/10ths of a mile north of Church Street.

The section where William was living was inconveniently distant from Westborough meeting-house so about 1741 he and his neighbors began to absent themselves from public worship and to hold services by themselves in the house of Nathaniel Oake. This was a sore trial to Rev. Mr. Parkman, who felt he had been settled as the minister of the whole town and opposed the division tenaciously from the start. Finally in 1743 the question of sanctioning this sectional gathering came before him in an unexpected manner. He was asked to baptize seven persons at Mr. Oake's house "where ye Publick Assembly of that Corner of ye Town was Commonly held". One of these seven was B-4 Hannah, the dau. of B-1 William. After much hesitation he performed the service on 3 April 1743, "But this was not done", says the cautious and reluctant minister, "before I had laid it before ye Chh and Congreg'n of ye Town, and obtained their Concurrence, nor was it till I had stop'd ye Chh members of ye North side of ye town to make Enquiry into their meeting by themselves (that I might be certify'd of ye true cause and ye manner thereof) and known of them that the Reasons of their so doing were not from Negligence, Disgust etc but because of ye inconvenient Distance and Difficulty of their and their Children's Travelling to ye Meeting House".

William was a weaver by trade, and the indications are that he followed his trade for nearly fifteen years before finally settling down. At that period the farm women spun their own thread but the weaving of it into cloth was the work of professional weavers. These weavers took their pay in extra thread which they wove and sold for their own account. For some years William and his family were connected in one way or another with Worcester interspersed with records connecting them with other towns, so it seems probable that Worcester was the market where he disposed of the cloth made elsewhere. Worcester also had quite a colony of Scotch-Irish at this time and there were one or more families of Perrys who may have been related to Margaret.

No record has been found of William owning land in (Westborough) Northborough, but his first three children were all born there. In April 1745 he purchased a small lot of 15 acres and 130 rods along the highway in Shrewsbury and is described in the deed as "of Westborough", and "a weaver". This would seem to be a good location for his trade and sufficient land for one cow and a garden. Unfortunately we do not know how long this property was in his possession as no deed has been found covering its disposal. The family could hardly have lived here more than a few months, if at all, since later in the same year we find the record of the baptism of their fourth child which took place at Holden, Mass. The baptismal records describe the parents, William and Margaret, as "of Worcester", so it is possible the real estate transaction in Shrewsbury was simply a business speculation.

Three years later, 1748, William described in the deed "as of Worcester", purchased a tract of land containing one hundred and seven acres in the Town of Pelham. This was good land, lying along the Swift River and from the price paid probably contained buildings. This property today lies at the bottom of the Quabbin Reservoir. Once again we are in the dark as to how long this property was in their possession as the deed of resale was not recorded. Many years later, in 1794, William signed a deed to straighten out the situation. It seems reasonable to assume the family must have spent some time here as later intermarriages and business transactions with Pelham folk would indicate. However, this land was purchased in March 1748 and the fifth child was baptized in Worcester in October of that year. Worcester also was the scene of the baptisms of the sixth and seventh, or final child, in 1751 and 1753 respectively.

In December of 1753, William purchased a tract of 106 acres, 145 and 4/6 rods, with buildings, in Rutland District, Worcester County. Later the town was to be known for one year as Hutchinson and finally in 1776 received its present name of Barre. The property he purchased was located about three miles west of the meeting house, on the old road to Dana and the house was the first dwelling beyond Cradle Rock. The house is still standing (1949) although much altered, and is now the property of a Mr. Ray Bordeaux. With the acquisition of this property all records relative to Worcester cease and the family definitely settled here.

In September 1756 (French and Indian War) William marched with "a company in His Majesty's service under the command of Capt. Samuel How". These were "Minute-men" on the Crown Point Expedition and were away from home from 20 Sept. 1756 to 2 Nov. 1756, a period of 6 weeks 2 days, for which William, a private, received £ 2/10/4. (Mass. Archives, Vol. 95, page 42.)

The next year, in August 1757, William marched again, this time in Capt. James Caldwell's Company of Colonel Rudgel's Regiment. They were called out by the alarm for the relief of Fort William Henry and marched from Rutland District to Canterhook, N. Y., and back, a distance of 240 miles and were 18 days in service. William, a private, received £ 2/8/0 (Mass. Archives, Vol. 95, Page 448).

During 1775 William served as a constable for the town, the only public office he is known to have held.

January 1783 William conveyed half of his lands, dwelling-house, cellar, barn and other buildings to his son B-5 Samuel, including a house lot four rods square "whereon Samuel's house now stands". This house of Samuel's which adjoins William's old house is still standing (1949) and is the property of a Miss Elsie Couch of New York. It is the second house on the old Dana Road beyond Cradle Rock.

On the 10th of September, 1783, Mrs. Margaret passed away and was buried in the Lincoln Cemetery, Barre, where her stone is still partly legible (1949).

Eleven years later, in 1794, William signed a deed covering the resale of the Pelham property purchased forty-six years before, thereby clearing the title for the several transactions which had taken place in the meantime.

On March 5, 1799, the probate court at Worcester appointed Mr. Samuel Carruth as Administrator on the Estate of William Carruth, late of Barre. It seems strange that no marker can be found to indicate Mr. William Carruth's grave. The markers are still standing (1949) in the Lincoln Cemetery, Barre, for his son B-7 John who died in 1766 and also for his wife, Mrs. Margaret, who died in 1783, but no indication has been found, to date, of the Pioneer's grave. It is, however, probable that his stone once occupied the vacant space beside Mrs. Margaret's stone, but became broken and was removed.

Their children, the first three b. Westborough, the fourth baptized in Holden and the last three baptized Worcester, Mass.

Records in the pocket Bible, before mentioned, indicate they had one child, a son William which is further confirmed by the 1790 census listing a boy in the family. In addition the census lists a girl, of which no records appear in the Bible.

Andrew Thompson served in the Revolution from Hutchinson (Barre) (Mass. S. & S. in Rev., Vol. 15, Page 628).

In 1800 Andrew Thompson and wife Hannah quit claim their share of her father's estate to her brother B-5 Samuel.

B-5 SAMUEL² (B-1 Wm.¹), b. 10 Sept. 1745 (pocket Bible), bpd. Holden, Mass., 20 — 1745 (C.R.), d. Barre, Mass., 28 March 1812, aged 67 y. (G.S. Lincoln Cemetery). m. 1st Barre, 30 Jan. 1772, MARY HAMILTON, dau. of Michael and Rebecca (Forbush) Hamilton of Worcester and Barre. m. 2nd New Salem, Mass., 26 Oct. 1786 (C.R.) MARTHA THOMSON of Pelham, Mass., b. ———, d. Barre 2 July 1827, aged 72 y. (G. S. Lincoln Cemetery), dau. of James and Martha () Thomson.

In June 1770 when he was 24 years old and a year and a half prior to his first marriage, he purchased 12 and $\frac{3}{4}$ acres of land adjoining his father's farm on the old Dana Road in Barre. There is nothing in the deed to indicate there were any buildings on this property. Samuel's home was built on a house-lot, four rods square, on his father's property and adjoining his father's residence. This lot did not come into his possession until 1783, when he purchased 56 acres, including half his father's house, cellar, barn and other buildings together with this house-lot, from his father. His house is still standing (1949), the property and summer home of a Miss Elsie Couch of New York City, although there have been many alterations over the years.

Three years after his marriage the Revolution burst into the open at Lexington and Concord. He was a private in Capt. John Black's Company of Minute-men and marched with them 20 April 1775, in response to the alarm of 19 April 1775. On this expedition he was eleven days in service. Later, in the war, he was a Corporal in Capt. Benjamin Nye's Company; enlisted 26 Sept. 1777; discharged 18 Oct. 1777; service 29 days, travel included; company marched under command of Maj. Jonas Wilder to assist Northern army for 30 days. (Mass. S.S., Vol. 3, Pg. 1019.)

In 1782 he purchased two more tracts of land, eighteen and forty acres respectively and the next year he purchased from his father the before mentioned fifty-six acres of the original family holdings. These were followed in 1784 by two more purchases of fourteen acres fifty rods and eight acres and a half respectively and to these in 1786 he added thirteen acres and a half more.

In 1790 the first census of the new United States was taken and Samuel is listed in Barre, Mass., as the head of a family composed of 3-Free, white males of 16 years and upward, including heads of families; (Samuel and his sons William and Samuel, Jr.); 2-Free white males under 16 years, (George and John) and 5-Free, white females, including heads of families (Martha Thomson and Rebecca, Martha who died young, Margaret and Miriam).

In the same year, 1790, Samuel won a law-suit to recover a sum of money from a Thomas Stimpson of Hardwick. The court, in accordance with the customs of those days, instructed the Sheriff of the County of Worcester to seize the goods, chattels or lands of the said Thomas, and, if that was not sufficient he was to take the body of the said Thomas and commit him to the "Goal" in Worcester until the sum was paid. In this case the Sheriff found lands sufficient and a certain tract of seven acres in Hardwick was set aside and deeded to Samuel. Two years later Samuel sold this.

Samuel's children were all baptized at the First Church of Barre, but no record has been found of his previously owning a pew. However, in 1794, his father-in-law, Michael Hamilton sold Samuel, "half of a Certain Pew in the Meating house in Barre on the lower floor Marked on the door No. 35 being the Easterly half of said pew with leave to pass to and from the Door to said pew".

Considerable search has been made in an attempt to identify the family of Samuel's mother, Mrs. Margaret (Perry) Carruth without success but in 1794 occurred an incident which leads one to believe the Perrys in Barre were of some close relationship. A certain David Perry of Barre removed to Shrewsbury, Rutland County, Vermont, and sold Samuel his property in Barre including "half of a certain Pew in the Meating House in Barre, in the gallery marked on the door No. 30 being the Southardly half of said Pew with leave to pass to and from the door of said Pew". Two years later David returned and Samuel resold him the property, less the half-pew, without a profit as near as can be judged, since the first transaction was in Pounds Sterling and the latter in Dollars. There were several transactions over the years where Samuel seems to have been lending a helping hand to a relative or possible friend similar to this.

On Christmas day 1794 "Samuel Carruth — Yeoman, and Zebadiah Allen — Gentleman" purchased a tract of land in the village adjacent to the westerly end of the meeting house and fronting on the common. After reserving to themselves a piece of land fronting the Common beginning on Doctor Brook's land xxx fifty-seven feet in length and ten feet in width for the "purpose of stables or horse sheds and no other purpose" they disposed of the balance of the land for the same price paid. They then, evidently erected a shed or sheds on the parcel retained and sold a "parcel of land" containing about 330 sq. feet, "with horse stables" standing thereon for $110.00. This was evidently done for the good of the church as there could hardly have been a profit above the cost of the sheds.

In 1796 occurred the transaction which enables us to identify the father of Martha (Thomson) Carruth, there having been several Martha Thomsons in Pelham at the same time. At the Northampton Registry of Deeds, Vol. 9, Page 411 is a quit claim deed by the heirs of the estate of James Thompson, late of Pelham which includes "Samuel Corruth and Martha Corruth, his wife, of Barre".

Later in the same year Samuel purchased one hundred and sixty-six more acres adjoining his former holdings and the following year resold fifty acres from this lot.

In 1799 his father, William, passed away and Samuel was appointed Administrator, the same as he had previously acted for the estate of his brother-in-law, Elijah Gregory and was later to serve for the estate of his father-in-law, Michael Hamilton. In the case of his father's estate, Samuel personally purchased the rights of all the other heirs.

In 1804 Samuel evidently had an argument regarding the upkeep of a common fence with his neighbor Moses Boyden because we find the following entry in the Barre Town Records:

"Barre, April 21st, 1804. This is to certify that I, Samuel Carruth and Moses Boyden divided fence on the line between us, there being one hundred and fifty three rods between us therefor there is seventy six rods and an half for each. Samuel Carruth has the east part and Moses Boyden the rest.

Saml Carruth
Moses Boyden

Attest Moses Boyden Jr.

Saml Bigelow Town Clerk."

By now Samuel had increased his original land holdings from the $12\frac{3}{4}$ acres purchased in 1770 to approximately 330 acres, all of which were in Barre.

On March 28, 1812, Samuel died. He was buried in the Lincoln Cemetery where his stone may be found today (1949).

ERECTED
Mr. SAMUEL CARRUTH
WHO DIED
March 28, 1812
IN THE 67 YEAR
OF HIS AGE

Hudson's Annals of Sudbury, Wayland and Maynard in referring to The Pequod House, an old tavern in Wayland, mentions a Samuel Carruth as one of the former owners or occupants. It is believed that this must be an error in the given name. If it was a Carruth it would more likely have been one of the (Westborough) Northborough family.

Mrs. Martha survived Samuel by seventeen years. Her stone in the Lincoln Cemetery is as follows:

MRS. MARTHA CARRUTH

B-6 JANET² (JANE), (B-1 Wm.¹), b. 30 June 1747 (pocket Bible), bpd. Worcester, Mass., 2 Oct. 1748 (C.R.), d. between 1782 and 1799, m. Barre, Mass., 7 June, 1770, ELIJAH GREGORY of Barre.

Her husband was a widower. His 1st wife had been Rachel Clark whom he had married at Barre 27 May 1762. Rachel d. Barre 19 Sept. 1764 in the 24th year of her age. By this marriage there was one child, Elijah, Jr., b. 19 Sept. 1764, d. 13 Oct. 1764. Mother and child were buried in the Mason Cemetery, Barre.

Elijah served in the Revolution as a drummer (Mass. S. & S. — Vol. VI, Page 868), was captured (near West Point — family tradition) and died in or from captivity. There is a tradition in the Gregory family that Mrs. Jane went insane after a returning soldier tossed her dead husband's cap at her feet.

Children — surname GREGORY — probably all b. Barre.

JOHN³, d. Barre 13 Feb. 1774 — 2 y. 9 m. 21 d. (G.S.)

RACHEL, m. Petersham, Mass., 5 Dec. 1798, Paul Negus.

HANNAH, m. Barre, Mass., 6 Sept. 1798, Zaccheus Atwood, Jr. They removed to Salem, N. Y., near 1804.

ELIJAH, d. Barre 19 Oct. 1778, aged 19 mos. 11 d. (G.S.) Mason Cemetery, Barre.

B-7 JOHN² (B-1 Wm.¹), b. 8 Mar. 1749 (pocket Bible), bpd. Worcester 26 May 1751, d. Barre, Mass., 12 Jan. 1766, aged 15 y. 9 m. 27 d. (G.S. Lincoln Cemetery, Barre). Was not married.

His gravestone in the Lincoln Cemetery, Barre, is standing (1949) but most of the lettering has become illegible. It is known that he was accidentally killed on the ice in front of his father's farmhouse (pocket Bible) and it is probable that this was inscribed originally on the stone. Practically all that can be deciphered is "In memory of Mr. John Carruth Son of Mr. William Carruth and Mrs. Margaret his wife. Who D(ec d) Jan y 12th 1766 Aged 15 year 9 mos 27 dys."

B-8 MARGARET² (B-1 Wm.¹), b. 10 June 1751 (pocket Bible), bpd. Worcester 12 Aug. 1753, d. Barnard, Vt., 10 Jan. 1813, m. Barre, Mass., 10 Feb. 1789 JOHN CHAMBERLIN of Barnard, Vt., b. Petersham, Mass., 14 June 1751, son of Samuel and Lydia (Simons) Chamberlin.

Her husband was a widower who had m. 1st Sarah Winslow, dau. of Jedediah Winslow. Sarah d. Barnard, Vt., 17 May 1785 and, to judge by the 1800 census, evidently left one boy and one girl who were brought up with their half brother and sister.

After Margaret's death her husband m. 3rd at Barnard, Vt., 13 July 1813, widow Rachel (Richmond) Myrick, b. Middleboro, Mass., dau. of Lemuel and Molly (Richmond-Lincoln) Richmond.

Children of Margaret and John Chamberlin, both b. Barnard, Vt., surname CHAMBERLIN.

MARGARET³, b. 12 Aug. 1790.

JOHN, b. 29 Feb. 1792, m. Barnard 20 Jan. 1818, widow Polly Jones of Barnard.

B-9 REBECCA³ (B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), bpd. Barre, Mass., 18 July 1773, d. Concord, Vt., 31 Dec. 1839; m. Barre 17 Feb. 1791, JAMES MORSE, d. Concord, Vt., 10 Nov. 1855, aged 86 y.

The Morse Genealogy compiled by J. Howard Morse and Miss Emily W. Leavitt is very much in error as regards their #1480 James Morse. Rebecca's husband must have been b. near 1769 and was more likely the James they list as #3067, the brother of #3064 Joseph Wheat Morse. James m. Rebecca Carruth in Barre, not Leicester, as they give and Joseph Wheat married Anna Burnet in Barre not Leicester.

Hemenway's Vermont Historical Gazetteer Vol. 1 gives some very interesting facts about the family. It states in part on page 977 that "James Morse Esq. came to Concord, Vt., in February 1792, there being then only six families in town. He came from Barre, Mass., bringing a pack upon his back weighing 91½ lbs. He was a man of strong, hardy, endurance, great memory and untiring energy. He filled many offices of trust in the early history of the town". And again on page 971 is the following picture of the back woods of those days. We quote, "The following authentic bear story is perhaps without a parallel. A bear having been caught in a large trap, two or three men were leading him along by a rope attached to the trap; when the muscles of his leg giving away he was liberated at once and turned to run for the woods. Mrs. Morse, wife of Mr. James Morse and one or two other women were following the bear and, as he turned to run for the woods a boy of Mrs. Morse's hit his heels against some impediment and fell over backwards directly before the bear, when Mrs. Morse seeing his danger, caught the trap and with one well directed blow, laid the savage beast dead at her feet, but in doing so, received quite a severe wound herself, under her chin, by one of the grappling hooks at the end of the chain attached to the trap".

Child's Essex and Caledonia County Gazetteer on page 423 also is a source of additional information regarding the family, but they erroneously state James Morse's wife was Rebecca Corinth.

In 1806 Rebecca's brother B-13 Samuel, Jr., and his family came to Concord, Vt., where they also settled.

Children, all b. Concord, Vt., except the first, b. Barre, Mass., surname MORSE.

B-10 MARTHA (PATTY)³ (B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), bpd. Barre, 5 Mar. 1775, d. between 1790 and 1792; did not marry.

She is accounted for as living in 1790, according to the census records of her father's family but the baptism of her half sister B-17 Martha (Patty) in 1792 indicates her prior death.

B-11 MARGARET³ (B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), bpd. Barre, Mass., 14 Jan. 1778, d. Petersham, Mass., 20 March 1847, a. 68 y. 2 m. 25 d. (V.R.), d. 28 March 1848, aged 69 y. 10 m. (G.S. — Petersham Village Cemetery); m. Petersham, 28 Dec. 1800, JOHN CLARK, b. Petersham, 3 May 1778, d. Petersham 5 June 1858, aged 80 y. 1 m. (G.S. — Petersham Village Cemetery).

According to the pocket Bible, previously mentioned, they had six children, of which the following three are the only ones accounted for to date. The family lived in Petersham and it is probable that all the children were born there.

Children, surname CLARK.

ERI PARLIN, b. Barre 6 Feb. 1797, d. 20 Sept. 1867, son of Daniel and Eunice (Clark) Parlin. Their home was on the county (new state) road between Barre and Petersham, the first house across the town line on the Petersham side.

B-12 WILLIAM³ (B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), bpd. Barre, Mass., 23 Apr. 1780, d. between 1790 and 1796. Did not marry.

He is accounted for as living in 1790 according to the census records of his father's family. His death prior to 1796 is assumed from the fact his grandfather, Michael Hamilton, specified in his will the "three heirs of my daughter, Mary Carruth". These three are known to have been B-9 Rebecca, B-11 Margaret and B-13 Samuel, Jr.

B-13 SAMUEL³, JR. (B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), bpd. Barre, Mass., 12 Sept. 1784, d. Concord, Vt., 30 June 1852; m. Pelham, Mass., 23 March 1806, SUSANNAH THOMSON of Pelham who d. Concord, Vt., 3 Aug. 1854 aged 75 y.

According to Child's Essex and Caledonia County Gazetteer Samuel and his family came to Concord, Vt., in 1806. His sister and husband B-9 Rebecca and James Morse, had already settled in Concord in 1792 and it is believed there were other families there from the Barre-Petersham area back in Mass.

In 1814 he deeded his share of the land in his father's estate to his half brother B-16 John and four years later quit claimed all rights to his stepmother's "thirds" to the same half brother.

Children, all b. Concord, Vt., except the first, b. Pelham, Mass.

In the public records of Barre he is designated as John 2nd to differentiate him from his cousin A-34 John who was referred to as John of Barre. The two farms adjoined.

He was a farmer and resided on the old Dana Road in the former home of his father; the adjoining house, formerly his grandfather's being occupied by his brother, B-19 Elijah who married John's wife's sister, Martha Hyde.

Nothing has been found to date, regarding her background or death but it is thought she may have died at or following the birth of the second child in 1821. The following year, 1822, he deeded property and her name does not appear in connection with the deed.

In 1824 he deeded away the last of his share in his parents' estate. From that time until his death he seems to have lived with his relatives, in the vicinity, and his signature, as witness, appears on numerous family deeds. The census of 1850 lists him as residing with his cousin A-35 Jonas, Jr., in Petersham.

He was buried in his father's lot in the Lincoln Cemetery, Barre.

He was a farmer and, like his father, resided on his grandfather Samuel's old homestead on the old Dana Road.

His wife's family home was on the county (now state) road from Barre to Petersham, almost on the Petersham town line, and the rear wall of the two farms divided the properties. It is reported that she frequently said that she thought her marriage was exceptionally nice because she did not have to change her name.

Two years after their marriage the 1850 Census shows the property covered 92 acres, all but 5 of which were improved. Their live stock consisted of 1 horse, 8 milch cows, 2 working oxen, 3 other cattle, and 3 swine. The previous year they produced on the place 15 bu. rye, 125 bu. Indian corn, 75 bu. oats, 150 bu. Irish potatoes, 100 lbs. butter, 2,000 lbs. of cheese and 25 tons of hay.

That he was well thought of is attested by his election as Selectman for two terms, 1867 and 1868.

He came to Boston as a youth and the records show him operating a grocery in 1838, at the age of 20, on Blackstone Street. This store was operated under the firm name of Carruth and Flagg, his partner being Lucius Flagg. This Flagg may have been the Lucius Billings Flagg b. Petersham 22 June 1820, the son of Maj. Silas and Polly Flagg.

The following year we find him operating the store under his own name, evidently no longer a partnership. He continued to operate it this way for five years.

In 1844 he took his brother B-30 Daniel J. into partnership and the firm name became George T. and Daniel J. Carruth, in which form it continued until 1849-50. During this period they added West India Goods and Wines.

In 1849-50 their partnership was dissolved, Daniel J. carried on with a wine store at the old location and George T. started a new business of cigars and tobacco at 41 Hanover Street. This new firm was known as George T. Carruth and Co., and his new partner was his cousin B-31 Chester H. This partnership continued until 1858 when, evidently George T. retired from the business and the firm name changed to Chester H. Carruth & Co.

Nineteen years after his death, his 2nd wife remarried, Boston

By his 2nd wife, Aphia K. Chase.

B-48 MARY MARSH (1859-1929)

B-30 DANIEL JOHNSON⁴ (B-18 Joseph³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Petersham, Mass., 3 Mar. 1821, d. Chelsea, Mass., 19 Aug. 1869, m. Boston 2 May 1850, HARRIETT F. GLASSON, b. Deer Isle, Me., near 1822, dau. of Nehemiah and Sophia J. () Glasson.

Came to Boston as a youth. In 1840 when he was 19 years old his name appears in the directory at the same home address as his brother. At that time he was employed by a West India Goods concern near his brother's grocery on Blackstone Street. He seems to have stayed with this Wines and Liquor concern until 1844 when his brother took him into partnership and added West India Goods to his grocery line. They continued in partnership until 1849-50 when the partnership was dissolved.

He then operated his own business of ales, etc., until 1863 when he took a partner, Stillman P. Marsh into the business under the firm name of Daniel J. Carruth and Co. The following year the designation "ales, etc." changed to "wines, tobacco and cigars" under which form it remained until his death.

There are records in Washington County, Me., of property which he purchased in the towns of Addison and Lubec, one of which in 1857 bears the name, as witness, of Stillman P. Marsh, six years before they became partners. His manner of disposing of this property leads one to believe the transactions were simply a way for him to lend a helping hand to what may have been relatives of his wife.

Seven years after his death his widow remarried at Chelsea, Mass., 2 Jan. 1876, William E. Young of Boston, b. Roxbury, Mass., son of Lot and Keziah () Young.

Issue, one child, b. Chelsea, Mass.

B-49 FLORENCE⁵, b. 9 Apr. 1861, d. Cambridge 20 Nov. 1910. Never married. Residence, Chelsea, Mass.

B-31 CHESTER HYDE⁴ (B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Barre, Mass., 27 Oct. 1821, d. Boston, Mass., 5 June 1889, m. Boston 9 Oct. 1851, EMILY JONES PRATT, b. Boston 25 Oct. 1826, d. Boston 8 Dec. 1899, dau. of Eleazer and Mary (Jones) Pratt of Cohasset and Boston.

He was a merchant of Boston, engaged in the importing, manufacturing, wholesaling, and retailing of tobacco, in which business the major portion of his life was spent.

From what records are available he evidently remained on the old homestead in Barre until after the death of his father, whose estate he administered, at which time he was designated as "of Barre".

His initial entry into the Boston business world was in 1849-50 when, with his brother B-35 Henry he became associated with his cousin B-29 George T. as junior partner of the firm of George T. Carruth and Co., Tobacconists. This arrangement continued until the apparent retirement of George T. in 1858 when the brothers continued the business, first under the name of Chester H. Carruth & Co. until 1862, when the name was changed to Henry Carruth & Co., under which form it remained until 1872, two years after Henry's death.

In 1872 the firm name reverted to the earlier form, Chester H. Carruth & Co., and so remained for the balance of his life, and longer. At this time he brought his eldest son George C. into the business and three years later his second son Frank H. These were followed at approximately three-year intervals by James W., Charles E., and Frederick J., so that by 1884 the whole family was actively engaged in the business.

Within two years of his arrival in Boston he married Emily, the dau. of Eleazor and Mary (Jones) Pratt. She was a Mayflower descendant; Emily⁶, Eleazor⁵, Thomas⁴ of Cohasset, Aaron³, of Cohasset, Aaron² of Charlestown and Cohasset and Phineas¹, the pioneer of that Pratt branch, who came over with the Weston Colony in 1625 and first settled in Weymouth, later removing to Plymouth where he married Mary Priest, dau. of Digerie and Sarah (Allerton) Vincent Priest. Her paternal grandfather, Thomas Pratt served in the Revolution, from Cohasset, as a Private, in Capt. Obadiah Beal's Company at Dorchester and in Capt. Peter Cushing's Company, Col. Soloman Lovel's regiment at Hull. (Mass. S. & S. in Rev. Vol. XII, Pg. 723). Her maternal grandfather was Capt. Stephen Jones of Concord who served as a Corporal in Capt. George Minot's Company, Col. Eleazor Brook's regiment; as a Sergeant in the Concord Town Company and also served at Ticonderoga. (Mass. S. & S. in Rev. Vol. 8, page 960.)

Shortly after their marriage the records indicate their residence as being on East Canton Street, where all the children were born. Later they removed to 486 Warren Street, Roxbury, where they resided for the balance of their lives.

He must have been, at some time, interested in the family genealogy. Long years after his death, the compiler found some of his notes and correspondence on the subject. These, together with the little pocket Bible given him by his parents and which contained a brief genealogy of the family, have proven invaluable.

Both he and his brother Henry, with their wives and some of their children occupy the same lot in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Mass.

Issue, all born Boston.

B-32 CATHERINE⁴ (B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Barre, Mass., 30 May 1823, d. Barre 17 Aug. 1898, m. 1st Brattleboro, Vt., JOHN F. KIDDER. m. 2nd, ZALMON ASPINWALL MORGAN, a painter, b. Brimfield, Mass., 26 Feb. 1820, d. Barre 8 June 1889, son of Aaron and Almira (Aspinwall) Morgan.

Aunt Katy, as she was known to all, resided at the old homestead, the original B-1-William property. She was dearly beloved by her numerous nephews and nieces. Her first husband evidently died prior to 1850 as the Census of that year shows she and her two children living with her mother at the old homestead.

Five years later the Census shows the same occupants plus her sister B-36 Martha Ann.

Some time during the next five years she must have made her second marriage as the 1860 Census lists the occupants as Zalmon Morgan, Catherine Morgan and Mary Jane Kidder. Her son James Kidder evidently having left home to strike out for himself.

Her daughter, Mary Jane Kidder, may have married near this period as the next Census, 1865, lists the family as Zalmon and Catherine Morgan and James H. Kidder, James evidently having learned a trade while away and is now listed as mechanic.

The following Census, 1870, shows both her children have left home but instead her ten-year-old nephew B-54 James Walter Carruth had come up from Boston and was living with them, attending the local District No. 10 School. We do not know how long he remained with them, but he was working in Boston eight years later. However, in 1891, when sick with an incurable illness, he returned to the old homestead where Aunt Katy gave him devoted care until he passed away. It was at this period that some of the remodeling of the old home was done, to make James Walter more comfortable.

Aunt Katy suffered a great shock and loss with the passing of Zalmon in 1889. Her beloved brother B-31 Chester was seriously ill in Boston and Zalmon had gone down to nurse him. On June 5th her brother passed away and Aunt Katy went to Boston for the funeral, Zalmon at the same time returning to Barre to care for the stock on the farm. During the funeral, in Boston, a neighbor from Barre appeared and told Aunt Katy she must return to Barre with him as Zalmon had just passed away. Catherine and Zalmon both Lincoln Cemetery, Barre.

He left Barre and went to Boston as a young man of 18 years and entered the employ of the newly formed firm of George T. Carruth & Co., at 41 Hanover Street, dealers in cigars and tobacco. The firm was composed of his cousin B-29 George T. and his brother B-31 Chester H., all three residing at the same address, 2 Unity Court.

In 1858 George T. withdrew from the firm, the firm name changing to Chester H. Carruth & Co., and in 1862 the firm name changed again to Henry Carruth & Co. under which form it remained until his death. Over the years the store changed location several times but when the firm of Henry Carruth & Co. was formed it was located at 46 Hanover Street and remained there.

For the first six years he was in Boston he resided with George T., then for two years with Chester H. and the seventh year again with George T. The eighth year he married and a few years later moved to East Canton Street where his home was close to Chester H. on the same street.

To judge from the records he must have been a brilliant and capable young man and it seems a pity that his career should have been cut off at the age of 38 by that dread scourge, tuberculosis, which also played such havoc with his family.

Unquestionably he and his brother were extremely close in life as they are in death. Both, with their wives and some of their children, occupy the same lot in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Mass.

After the death of her husband and four children from tuberculosis, his widow took the remaining child to Barre in the hope that the country air and living would save her from the fate which had overtaken all the rest of the family. It is good to know she succeeded.

B-36 MARTHA ANN⁴ (B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Barre, Mass., 22 June 1834, d. Boston, Mass., 23 July 1880. Never married.

At the time of her death she was living at the home of her brother B-31 Chester H. where she had resided for some years during which time her nephews and nieces had developed an enduring love for Aunt Martha. Her early passing was a great loss to the family and she has long been remembered for her goodness and kindness to all.

Her burial was in her father's lot, Lincoln Cemetery, Barre.

B-37 JOHN LINDSEY⁴ (B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Barre, Mass., 6 June 1836, d. Barre 21 Mar. 1855. Never married.

His death record gives his occupation as farmer although he was but 18 years 9 months old when he died. For several years before his death he seems to have been the only man on the old B-1 William homestead.

The last Census in which he appears is that of Aug. 1850, at which time he was 14 years old. The family then was composed of his mother, two sisters B-36 Martha Ann and B-32 Catherine Kidder together with Catherine's children James and Mary Jane, 10 years and 7 years old respectively. At that time the farm contained 45 acres of which 40 were improved and the live stock consisted of 1 horse, 2 milch cows, 2 other cattle and 2 swine. During the preceding year they produced 40 bu. Indian corn, 40 bu. oats, 75 bu. Irish potatoes, 200 lbs. butter, 350 lbs. cheese and 12 tons of hay. Of course the butter and cheese were the products of the women folk but the other items would indicate that the 13-year-old lad, with the tools of those days, had done a man size job.

the first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the car was the cold air. It was a sharp contrast to the warm blanket of the car's interior. I took a deep breath, feeling the crispness of the morning air. The sun was just beginning to rise, casting a soft glow over the landscape.

I walked towards the building, my footsteps echoing on the pavement. The architecture was a mix of old and new, with traditional stone walls and modern glass windows. I felt a sense of history and timelessness as I moved through the space. The air smelled of fresh coffee and the promise of a new day.

I reached the entrance, where a small group of people was waiting. They greeted me with smiles and nods, making me feel welcome. I followed them into a large, open hall with high ceilings and exposed beams. The space was filled with the sound of conversation and the scent of freshly baked bread.

I found a table in the corner, where I sat down with a friend. We talked about our plans for the day, sharing stories and laughter. The atmosphere was relaxed and friendly, a perfect start to our journey. I felt a sense of connection and belonging in this new place.

As the day progressed, I explored different parts of the city. I visited a local market, where I bought fresh produce and handmade goods. I walked along the river, watching the boats and the people who lived along its banks. I felt a sense of wonder and discovery at every turn.

I returned to the city center, where I found a quiet spot to sit and reflect. I thought about the journey I had taken and the experiences I had had. I felt a sense of peace and contentment, knowing that I had found a new home in this beautiful city.

The sun set over the city, painting the sky in shades of orange and red. I walked back to my room, feeling a sense of accomplishment and joy. I had found a new place to call home, and I was excited to start my new life here.

I spent the evening writing in my journal, reflecting on the day's events. I wrote about the people I met, the places I visited, and the feelings I experienced. I felt a sense of closure and a new beginning, knowing that this was the start of a new chapter in my life.

The next morning, I woke up to a beautiful sunrise. I stepped out of my room and took a walk in the park. The air was fresh and the sun was shining, creating a perfect morning scene. I felt a sense of hope and optimism for the future, knowing that I was in the right place at the right time.

I continued to explore the city, visiting museums and galleries. I was fascinated by the art and the history of the place. I felt a sense of awe and wonder at the creativity and talent of the people who lived here. I was in luck, as I found a small, hidden gem of a place that I loved.

I spent the afternoon at a local cafe, where I met a group of people who were interested in my journey. They shared their own stories and experiences, making me feel like I was part of a community. I felt a sense of connection and belonging, knowing that I was not alone in this new place.

The day ended with a beautiful sunset, and I felt a sense of peace and contentment. I had found a new home, and I was excited to start my new life here. I felt a sense of hope and optimism for the future, knowing that I was in the right place at the right time.

Cousin Carrie, whom the compiler had the pleasure of meeting, was a charming little lady who retained her clearness of mind and happy disposition to the end. Together we went to visit the two old original family homesteads on the Dana road. At the B-1 William homestead Mrs. Bordeaux graciously showed us through the old house and Cousin Carrie pointed out changes that had been made when Aunt Katy lived there, so as to make it easier for Uncle James in his last sickness. Then she wanted to go over to her old birthplace, the B-5 Samuel house, only a stone's throw away. As Mrs. Bordeaux and I started to follow the road, Cousin Carrie started for the old path, a short cut between the houses, which led over a stone wall. In the contest of wills Cousin Carrie proved the strongest and it was with fear and trembling we helped her over that stone wall she was bound to climb when she was 80 years of age, just because that was the way she had always, as a child, gone between the houses. Her memory shall always be cherished by the compiler.

She sleeps beside her husband in her father's lot at the rear corner of the Lincoln Cemetery in Barre. They had no children.

B-47 GEORGE LOW⁵ (B-29 Geo. T.⁴, B-18 Jos.³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Boston, Mass., 22 Feb. 1846, d. Mason, N. H., 14 Jan. 1906 (age at death, Mason V.R. is incorrect). m. 1st Gloucester, Mass., 13 June 1867, SARAH J. HONORS, b. Gloucester near 1849, dau. of Oliver and Mary C. (Emmons) Honors. Terminated by divorce 11 Nov. 1882. m. 2nd Springfield, Mass., 1 Jan. 1895, HATTIE SYMMES (LACLAIR) WILLIAMS, b. Reading, Mass., 6 Nov. 1869, dau. of William and Mary (Boutrell) LaClair.

George's life was cast, by fate, in a different mold than that of the average. It was, no doubt, formed in the background of his childhood and youth.

His mother died when he was 10 years old, his father remarrying the following year. A year and a half later George had a little half sister, but a boy who has been the center of attraction for 13 years doesn't always enjoy being supplanted by a new center of attraction. It frequently makes a difficult situation for all concerned.

Two years later, in Apr. of 1861, his father died and in April of that year President Lincoln's call for seventy-five thousand men was issued. The family were then living in Chelsea which was also the home town of many of George's mother's family, the Lows. George must have been in the excitement when cousin Sumner Carruth led out the local company, the night of the call, the first company in the State to be mustered into the United States service. Cousin Sumner, who left Chelsea as a Lieutenant to return covered with honors as a Brigadier General. Then there was cousin Frank Carruth who went with the same First Mass. Inf., and returned as Captain of the same company that Sumner originally commanded. There was cousin William Carruth, Major and Asst. Adj. Gen'l in the Dept. of the Gulf with Butler at New Orleans and countless other cousins and friends in the service. These were times to upset the emotions of settled folk to say nothing of a newly orphaned boy. It seems strange, under the conditions, that George didn't try, at some time, to join the army. Possibly he did.

Following his father's death, an uncle, George W. Low of Chelsea, was appointed guardian with uncle Daniel J. Carruth and cousin Chester H. Carruth as sureties. His stepmother did not remarry until 1880, nineteen years later. It seems probable George resided with her until his majority.

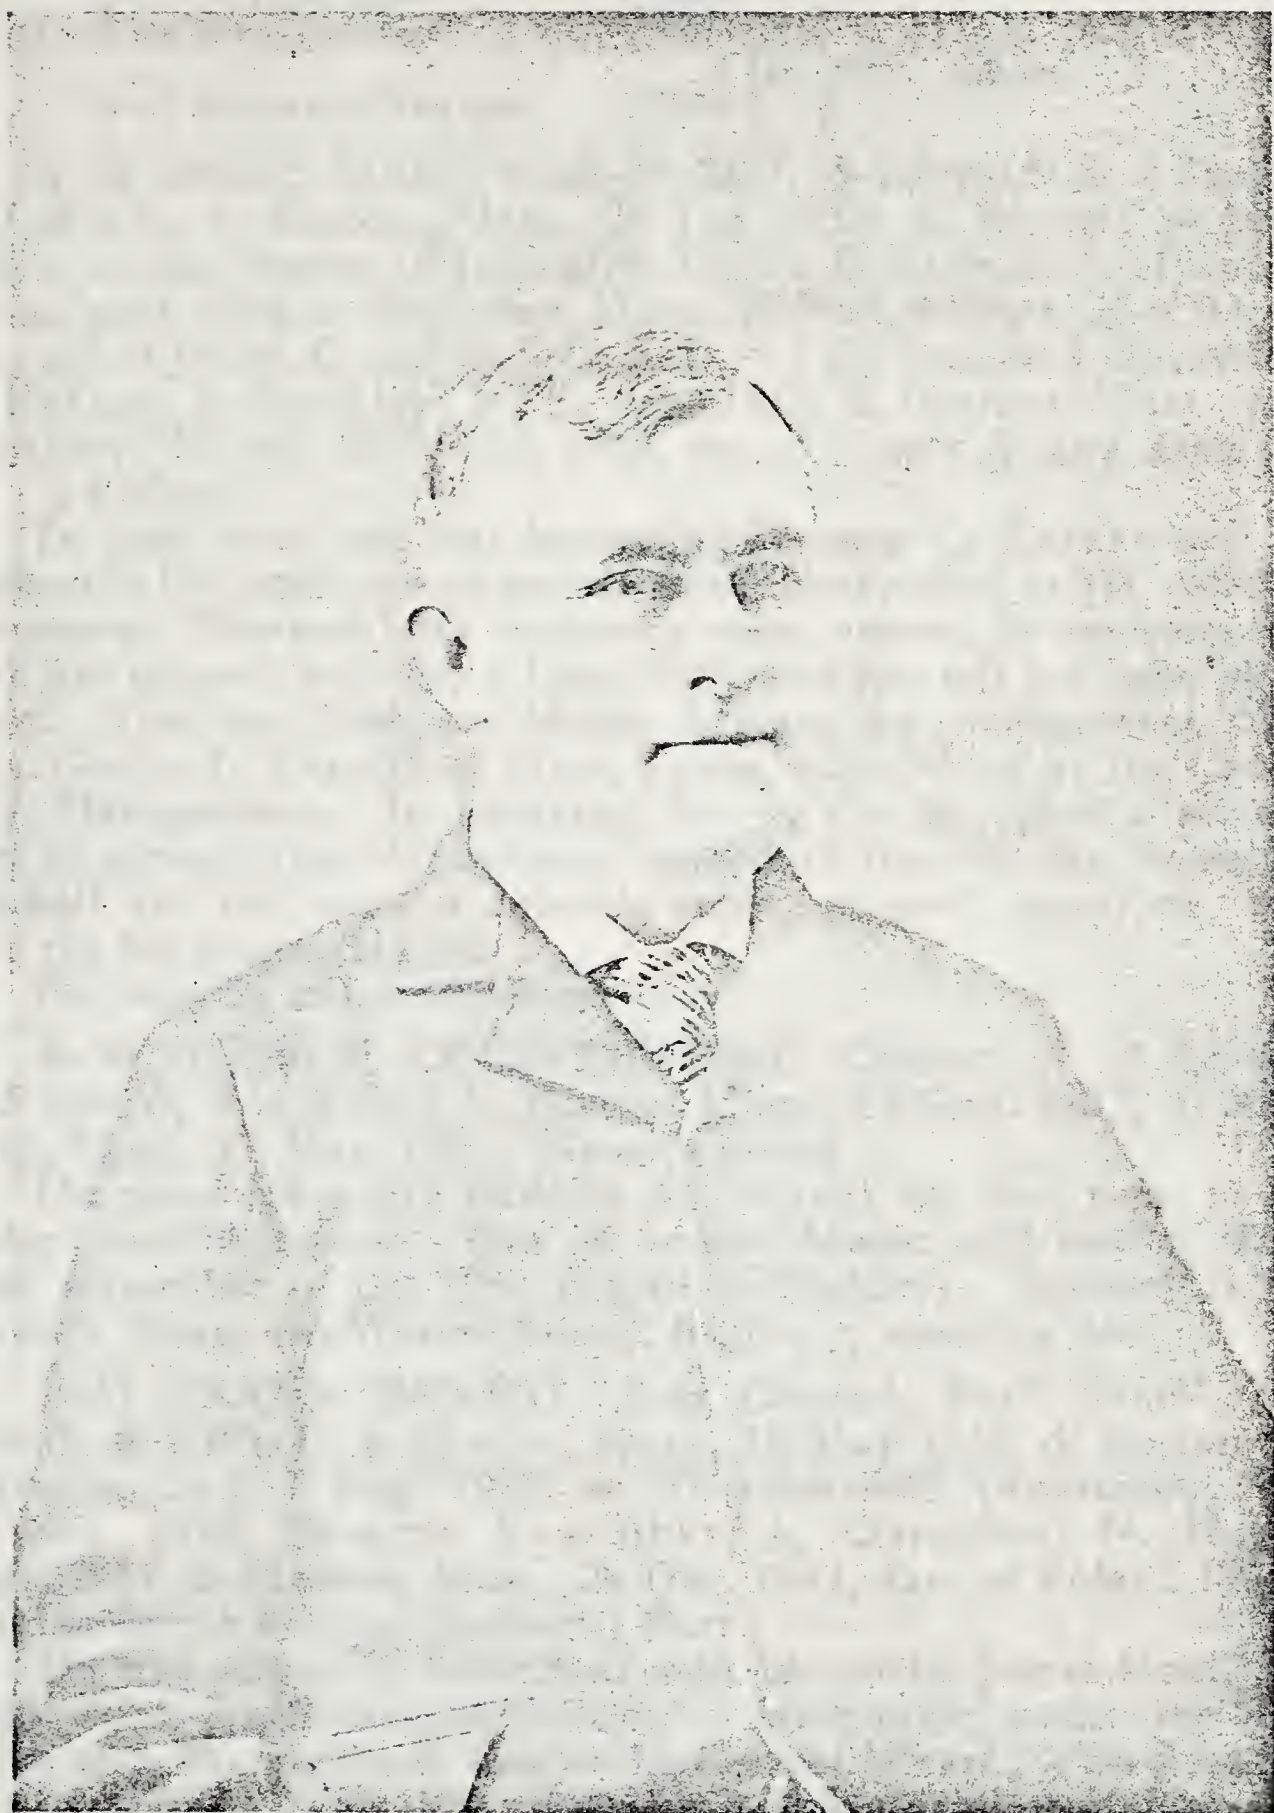

Four months after he became of age he married Sarah J. Honors, an 18-year-old daughter of an old Cape Ann family living in the Kettle Cove section of Manchester. This marriage proved unfortunate and eight months later George left his wife and went West. His wife waited fourteen years and then obtained a divorce, remarrying Beverly, Mass., 6 Nov. 1882, Henry H. Roberts of Gloucester, b. Lynn, the son of David H. and Jane (Little) Roberts. They resided in Gloucester where they operated a hotel, it is understood.

When George went West in Feb. 1868, it was not the peaceful West of today, but was a turbulent, seething frontier, filled with the discharged soldiers of both sides, from the late war, lawless and wild. In a letter, in later years, to his half sister, he stated that he, "did not like the West". Living there was hard but something, possibly pride, prevented his return and on Feb. 27, 1871 he enlisted in Kansas, in Co. I, 6th U.S. Inf. for five years. This was followed by fifteen years' service in the 17th U.S. Infantry, in Companies E, H, and K. While there he served with the Northern Boundary Surveying Expedition in the summer of 1873 as far west as the foot of the Rocky Mountains, from Ft. Buford in Dakota. In the winter of 1890-91 he was in the Pine Ridge Indian conflict, the "ghost dance war" as it was called, under Maj. Gen. Miles. This winter was remembered by every participant as an unusually cold season and the hardships of that comparatively short campaign made a deep impression on George. On 5 March 1891, he was discharged at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, after a term of service of twenty years and returned to Massachusetts.

He was only back in Massachusetts a few days when he reenlisted again 20 March 1891, this time in the Ordnance Dept., assigned to duty at the Arsenal in Springfield, Mass., where he rounded out his thirty years' service for retirement. He was a sergeant with the 17th Inf., but upon joining the Ordnance Dept. had to reenlist as a private, being finally discharged as a corporal. All his discharges from the army gave his character as "excellent" except the first which was "good".

While at the Springfield Arsenal, in 1895, he remarried. In 1896 they purchased property in Agawam, Mass., across the river from Springfield, which was later disposed of and other property acquired in Mason, N. H., where the family resided after his discharge from the service until his death.

His widow resided (1952) at Alvin, Texas.

She and both husbands were interred in the same lot with her parents and also a Louis Hill, who has not yet been identified. This lot, 3848, on Maple Avenue, by arrangement with Mrs. George L. Carruth of Alvin, Texas, was divided by the Cemetery Management. In exchange for $\frac{1}{2}$ the lot, plus a certain sum of money, the Management agreed to transfer the bodies to one-half the lot, erect a suitable stone, properly inscribed, and give the lot perpetual care.

He spent his entire business life, except the first year, in his father's establishment. Was an ardent Mason and said to have been a member of the 32nd degree of Masonry. Resided at his parent's home, 486 Warren Street, Roxbury, where he died.

B-51 FRANK HENRY⁵ (B-31 Chester⁴, B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Boston, Mass., 18 May 1854, d. Boston (24 Wyoming St.), 2 Aug. 1902, m. He was originally associated with his uncle, James Hobbs, as commission merchants specializing in manganese, under the firm name of J. W. Hobbs & Co., at 13 Central Wharf. This partnership continued until 1882 when he became associated with his father and older brother in the tobacco firm of Chester H. Carruth & Co. at 46 Hanover Street, with which firm he remained identified the balance of his life.

Upon the death of his father, his older brother having previously died, the firm membership devolved on him and his brother Charles, with the youngest brother, Frederick, employed as salesman. Their other brother, James, was at Barre with an incurable ailment, of which he died the following year.

Until 1893 the firm was solely in the tobacco business but near that year bowling-alleys were introduced and the firm installed several, in connection with their retail department. These were said to be the first bowling-alleys installed in Boston.

In 1894, his brother Charles died and, although the firm name remained the same, its ownership passed wholly into his hands. From now on there was a gradual dropping of the tobacco business and increase of the bowling-alleys until his death, when his son Chester continued the management.

He was truly a kindly man and his passing was deeply felt by a large circle of true friends.

Roxbury, Mass., 6 Feb. 1851, d. Amherst, N. H., 20 Sept. 1929, son of Joseph H. and Harriet B. (Bradley) Hunneman.

For some years they resided at Barre, Mass., where she greatly enjoyed entertaining the various members of the family who always looked forward to their visits there. Later they removed to Amherst, N. H., where they spent their declining years. She was a lovely lady beloved by all who knew her.

Both are buried, Lot 2441, Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston. No issue.

B-54 JAMES WALTER⁵ (B-31 Chester⁴, B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Boston, Mass., 5 Jan. 1860, d. Barre, Mass., 11 July 1891. Never married. He was a frail child and as a small boy was sent to Barre to live, for a while, with his aunt Catherine, at the old homestead, in the hope that the country air would build him up. When he was 20 years old he joined his father and brothers in the family tobacco firm where he remained for ten years. At that time, with broken health, he returned to Barre, and the old homestead, where devoted Aunt Katy nursed him in his final illness. He was buried in the family lot at Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

B-55 EMMA FRANCES⁵ (B-31 Chester⁴, B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Boston, Mass., 24 June 1862, d. Amesbury, Mass., 21 Aug. 1937, m. Woodstock, Vt., 25 July 1885, WALTER HENRY DROWN, b. Providence, R. I., 1 Oct. 1859, d. Boston, Mass., 17 June 1938, son of Henry and Susan S. (Obrey) Drown.

Their marriage was an elopement one summer while she was visiting an aunt at Ascutneyville, Vermont. As soon as her father learned of it he insisted upon another ceremony at home which was held in Boston (Roxbury), 8 October 1885.

Mr. Drown was identified, for practically the whole of his business career, with the hosiery industry; originally as a travelling salesman and later as buyer for a large Boston wholesale establishment. They were an ideal couple, beloved by all that knew them.

B-56 CHARLES EDWARD⁵ (B-31 Chester⁴, B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Boston, Mass., 1 Oct. 1864, d. Boston 20 Aug. 1894. Never married.

In 1881, when seventeen, he went to work as a clerk in his father's establishment and upon his father's death became a junior member of the firm. This position he held until his death, five years later. He was buried in the family lot at Mt. Auburn.

B-57 FREDERICK JONES⁵ (B-31 Chester⁴, B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Boston, Mass., 18 May 1867, d. Barnstable, Mass., 25 Sept. 1923, m. Boston, Mass., 11 Oct. 1893, GRACE W. MURPHY, b. Boston 26 Nov. 1871, d. Boston 2 June 1927, dau. of Michael and Grace (White) Murphy.

In 1883, when sixteen, he went to work as a clerk in his father's establishment, later travelling on the road as salesman in the wholesale division until 1894, when he started for himself, in Boston, under the firm name of Frederick J. Carruth & Co., as a cigar dealer. He remained in the tobacco business for practically the whole of his business career. After marriage they made their home in Somerville, for many years, later removing to Winthrop, Mass.

No issue. They both are buried in the family lot at Mt. Auburn.

B-61 FLORENCE⁵ (B-35 Henry⁴, B-19 Elijah³, B-5 Sam'l², B-1 Wm.¹), b. Boston, Mass., 21 Nov. 1864, d. Barre, Mass., 30 Apr. 1942, m. Barre, 11 Feb. 1890, HERBERT ARTHUR KNIGHT, b. Barre, 18 Aug. 1858, son of Luke L. and Calista (Sibley) Knight.

There is no birth record at Boston for her but there is recorded, on that date, the record of the birth of a CHARLES WILLIAM D. CARRUTH. This is definitely an error on the part of some one as there is no after record to be found of such a child in the census records or at Mt. Auburn, where the rest of the family are buried.

The Mass. Census of 1 May 1865, Vol. 34, House 732, Family 991, lists the family: Henry Carruth, age 34; Eliza, age 25; Carrie, age 7; Harry, age 2; Florence age 6 mos.; and serv't Mary Keegon, age 35; b. Ireland. The family lot on Trefoil Path, Mt. Auburn, contains the parents and the four children, other than Florence, hence there is no reason to believe there was such a child as Charles, even as a twin to Florence.

After the death of her father and her brother and sisters from tuberculosis, her mother removed from Boston to Barre, Mass., in the hope of saving the only surviving child from the fate which had overtaken the rest of her family. She was successful and Florence married and resided in Barre for the rest of her life, passing at the age of 77 y. 5 m. 9 d.

Educated at the Roxbury Latin School and Harvard.

Due to the early death of his father he was unable to complete his course at Harvard but instead took over the management of his father's business.

Later he entered the warehousing industry, where, in the field of cost accounting he found the work for which he was eminently fitted and where he made a country-wide circle of close friends. The following obituary in a newsletter to their members by the American Warehousemen's Association, Merchandise Division, brought a flood of letters of condolence, from all parts of the country.

We quote,

"C. B. Carruth, Field Secretary and Cost Accountant for AWA'S Merchandise Division during 1925-1931, inclusive, passed away at his home in Roxbury, Boston, on November 27 age 65, after a year's illness.

"For several years prior to 1923 he was Secretary of the Massachusetts Warehousemen's Association, during which time that group was quite active in the field of cost accounting for warehousemen. While with the Massachusetts Warehousemen's Association, Mr. Carruth collaborated in the writing and production of Volume 1 of WAREHOUSING GENERAL MERCHANDISE. AN ENCYCLOPEDIA, published by AWA in 1923.

"In 1923 and 1924 he was employed by the Illinois Association of Merchandise Warehousemen, at Chicago, in cost work, resulting in the rating publication that was the forerunner of the 'Carruth Tariff', published by him in 1934, at the time of the NRA Code of Fair Competition for the Merchandise Warehousing Trade. The principles set forth in these publications underlie rating procedures of merchandise warehousemen in many sections of the country.

"While with AWA's Merchandise Division, Mr. Carruth travelled extensively throughout the industry, in addition to preparing the material for the 1926 Volume II of the 'Encyclopedia' and for his 1929 'These New Terminal Projects', which later had much to do with minimizing the rash of speculative new warehouse construction that was breaking out at that time.

"The news of the passing-on of Chester Carruth saddens the hearts of those among us who knew him intimately as a man of culture and engaging personality. Because of his having been in other fields during recent years, our industry has not had his wise counsel, but warehousemen everywhere are inestimably indebted to him because of the indelible impress for good his work has made on our industry trade practices."

Following his association with the American Warehousemen's Association, he retired from active business and resided during that time chiefly in New York City. With the coming of World War II, he wished, like most, to "do his bit". He was far too old to consider active military service but he saw his chance to help by coming out of retirement and assisting in the civilian war effort. He became associated with The Continental Can Co., where his special talents in the cost-accounting field were highly appreciated.

ADAM AND ELIZABETH () CARRUTH

PENNSYLVANIA, VIRGINIA AND NORTH CAROLINA

C-1 ADAM¹: b. prob. Antrim Co., Ireland, ca. 1706, d. Lincoln Co., N. C., 1782, son of James Carruth of Ballymartin parish, Belfast barony, Antrim County, Ireland, m. prob. Pennsylvania, ca. 1742, ELIZABETH ———. (See also Chapter 1, "North Carolina Scotch Irish Carruths" and "Will of James Carruth of Ballymartin — 1727".)

He first appears in the records of Lancaster Co., Pa., when he was appointed administrator of the estate of his brother D-1 Alexander. The administration bond, which is in the registry office at Lancaster, bears the date of January 1st 1739/40.

On 30 Dec. 1743 he received his warrant for 100 acres in Hanover Township in what is now Dauphin Co., Pa.

He next appears in Augusta Co., Va., where his daughter Mary was baptized 21 Apr. 1745 by the Rev. John Craig who also baptized Robert the following year. Adam had purchased a small tract of land, 8 acres 3 rods, here in Augusta Co., but failed to record the purchase deed. At least it has not yet been found. Such a small tract would seem to indicate that he was making his living by some trade rather than that of farmer. However, this property was sold 4 Aug. 1747 when it is probable that he and his family removed to North Carolina. This deed of sale does not carry the signature of his wife. It may be possible that the Elizabeth, whose signature does appear on his North Carolina deeds, may have been a 2nd wife.

His next record is the copy at Salisbury, N. C., of the indenture dated 30 Jan. 1755 between John Earl Granville as grantor and Adam Carruth of Rowan, planter as grantee. This was for 333 acres in Rowan County, parish of St. Luke, on the waters of "Rockey" River. Like the others in the Granville grant it was a fee simple deed, Adam paying 3 shillings for the deed which called for a yearly rent of 13 shillings and 4 pence, plus other considerations. The property was located in what is now the southeast corner of Iredell County and adjoined the plantations of Walter and Widow Jean Carruth.

In 1759 his name appears on a list of Taxable persons in Rowan County.

In 1762 Adam Carruth planter and Elizabeth his wife sold the Rowan County plantation to David Kerr. This deed is signed by Adam and Elizabeth (her mark) Carruth and was witnessed by John Braly, Walter Carruth and James Aston. John Braly was Walter's son-in-law and James Aston was probably the son of Alexander Aston, who died back in Pennsylvania, Walter being one of the executors of the estate.

In the same year Adam purchased 630 acres in Mecklenburg County from Francis Beatey. This land was located on Paw Creek, a tributary of the Catawba River, lying west of the Town of Charlotte. Here for the next sixteen years Adam was to make his home. This also was the neighborhood of the plantations of the Grahams and the Catheys and here these families intermarried. Doubtless they attended the old Steel Creek Church in the cemetery of which are still to be found the gravestones of the family of his son James.

While here there were several real estate transactions which add slightly to the picture. There was, for one thing, a grant of 100 acres "joining Francis Beatey's line". This would seem to be adjoining the family plantation on Paw Creek. Two other transactions were in what later became Lincoln County and were later disposed of by his sons Robert and John as executors of his estate. The witnesses on one were John Sloan and Robert Campbell and on the other William Temple Coles and Elizabeth Carruth. The name of Sloan crops up so frequently on family papers that the impression is gained that there must be a family relationship there, either John Sloan, Sr., was Adam's brother-in-law or John Sloan, Jr., was a son-in-law. The Elizabeth Carruth who signed was, no doubt, John's wife, Elizabeth (Cathey) Carruth.

Two other transactions bring in names of interest; a tract sold in 1769 carries on the deed the co-signature, by mark, of his wife Elizabeth. This was to an Ambrose McKee and was witnessed by John Dickey and John McK. Alexander. In the other, 1773, Adam purchased a tract in Tryon from John Sloan, Jr., of Mecklenburg. This deed was witnessed by William Cupples (son-in-law of E-1 Walter) and Alexander Carruth (prob. son of D-1 Alexander).

In 1776 Adam granted 210 acres of the home plantation, for love and affection and 10 shillings, to his grandson, John Carruth, the minor child of his deceased son James. His wife Elizabeth did not sign the deed which was witnessed by John Braly (son-in-law of E-1 Walter), John Sloan and Adam's son Robert.

The next year Adam granted 215 more acres of the home plantation to his son Walter. Again his wife failed to sign. It was witnessed by a Peter Johnston and Walter's brother John.

The following year, 15 April 1778, he sold what appears to be the balance of the plantation to a James Reed. In this deed Adam is described as "of Tryon county" so it seems probable he and his wife had removed to that section southwest of Lincolnton where his son John was established. His wife Elizabeth was co-signer with Adam and the deed was witnessed by their son John and also John Sloan.

Adam died in 1782; his will which is on file in the courthouse at Lincolnton, was dated 9 Feb. 1782. It is believed his residence at time of death was on Long Creek about one mile north of Gastonia in present day Gaston County, N. C.

His will,

"In the name of God Amen, I Adam Carruth of the County of Lincoln and State of North Carolina being threw the abundant Mercys and Goodness of God tho Wake in body, yet of a sound and perfect understanding and do constitute this my last Will and testament and Desires it to be received by all as sutch: Item I give to my dear and loving Wife, for term of life, this plantation where I Now live, and all the plantation tools likewise the stock and all the household furniture likewise my Negros Ned and Tom and Reatch; and after her Decease to be sold and Equally Divided amongst my three Suns and three Suns in law; Item I give to my three Suns and three Suns in law all the rest of my lands to be Sold and Equally Divided amongst them Except one tract of 200 acres that is to be sold and the one half of the Value given to Robert Anderson. The tract of 200 acres, mentioned in his will, to be sold, one-half to the benefit of Robert Anderson, appears to be the tract Adam purchased in 1773 from John Sloan, Jr. It was located in Tyron (Lincoln) County, on both sides of the Little Catawba Creek above James Logan's land. It was purchased from the executors of the estate by James Logan.

Their children, birthplaces and order of birth not known.

C-2 JAMES² (C-1 Adam¹), b. prob. Hanover twp., Lancaster Co., Pa., ca. 1744, d. Mecklenburg Co., N. C., 2 Sept. 1775, aged 31 years, G.S. Steele Creek Presby Cemetery, m. prob. Mecklenburg Co., MARGARET "_____".

In 1762 his father purchased the plantation on Paw Creek in Mecklenburg Co., which was to become the homestead for many years. Here the father seemingly set off separate plantations for some of the children as they became of age or married, but did not give them title to the property at the time. The plantation may have been operated as a whole with some of the children acting as overseers of subdivisions but James was also a weaver.

In 1766 James appears on a Mecklenburg County Militia list as a member of Capt. Alex Osburn's company. His father and E-3 James were also members of the same company.

In 1768 he was granted a patent to 200 acres on the east side of Catawba River, on the waters of Paw Creek, beginning at Adam Carruth's corner and running with John Sloan and James Carruth's lines. This property he sold 9 Jan. 1775 to Thomas Knighton. In the deed James is designated as "weaver" and it was jointly signed by his wife Margaret with her mark. John Sloan was one of the witnesses.

He died 2 Sept. 1775 leaving a will, the original of which is at Raleigh in the North Carolina State Dept. of Archives and History. A copy is at Charlotte in the Court Records. This will identifies his wife Margaret, son Adam, to whom a grant on Indian Creek, Tryon (Lincoln) Co. had already been made, and his son John who was to receive James' home plantation. The grandfather, C-1 Adam, made this deed to John the following year. It covered 210 acres of the original 630 on Paw Creek which Adam had purchased in 1762. Both boys, of course, were minors at this time.

The will was witnessed by Thomas Knighton, David Hey and his father, Adam Carruth. His brothers Robert and John, together with John Sloan, Sr., were appointed executors; another case where the impression arises that John Sloan, Sr., or one of his children may have been an in-law of Adam.

James' widow remarried a John Green. In the cemetery of the Steel Creek Presbyterian Church there are gravestones in one lot for James Carruth, deceased Sept. ye 2d, 1775, aged 31 yrs. and Elizabeth Carruth, who died March the first 1778, aged 4 years. In the same lot are stones for James Carruth Green, a child son of Jo(h)n Gree(n) who deceased Nov. 1st 1777, and Comfort Green who died May the 9th, 1778 aged 3 months.

C-5 JOHN² (C-1 Adam¹), b. prob. Rowan (Iredell) Co., N. C., ca. 1750, d. District of York, S. C., 8 June 1828, aged 78 years, m. Mecklenburg Co., S. C., ELIZABETH CATHEY, b. ca. 1752, d. District of York, S. C., 11 Oct 1819, in the 67th year of her age, dau. of George and Frances (Henry) Cathey.

When John was about twelve years old his father sold the original plantation in Iredell County and purchased a larger one, more suited to the growing family, along the waters of Paw Creek in Mecklenburg County. Here is where he grew to manhood and, in 1773, shortly after reaching majority, received a grant of 216 acres in his own name on Paw Creek. This land lay "joining and between Adam Carruth's and George Cathey's lands".

There is no question about the shrewdness of the father and little things seem to indicate that while John's brothers may have been brought up to some manual labor as well as supervision of the plantation labor John seems to have been trained more along the lines of business management. He seems to have been the companion of his father and the intellectual leader of his brothers.

In 1774 he purchased a block of land in that part of Tryon County which was later to become Lincoln County. It was purchased from John Sloan, Jr., and the witnesses were William Cupples, the husband of E-7 Ann Carruth and James Aston, the son of Alexander Aston who died back in Pennsylvania and for whom E-1 Walter had been an executor. Here John evidently established his home on Indian Creek and it was probably near this time that he married.

His wife was of the same Scotch-Irish stock. Her grandparents, John and Ann () Cathey had settled in Paxtang Township, Penn., where John died in 1742. His son George joined the migration to North Carolina and eventually settled on a plantation in the Paw Creek neighborhood of the Carruths and Grahams. One of Elizabeth's sisters, Frances (Fannie) Cathey, married George Graham, the son of Mrs. Mary and brother of Gen. Joseph Graham. John Carruth and George Graham were to become close friends and their children, George Carruth and Polly Graham in the course of time married.

When the news of the battle of Lexington reached Charlotte the 19th of May 1775, one month after the battle, it arrived while a convention was in session. When the messenger reached the court house the people surrounded him and listened with amazement to the news that the British troops had fired upon a group of Americans killing more than a score. That thereupon the Minute Men had responded and forced the British troops to beat a precipitous retreat. The news had a double effect on the delegates. The sacrifice of the patriots incited their sympathy and the rout of the British encouraged them to make a bold stroke for liberty.

A committee immediately went into session and prepared the famous Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence which was approved by the delegates at 2 o'clock in the morning of May 20th.

Capt. James Jack was deputed to carry it to Philadelphia. When he reached Salisbury he was induced to permit the Declaration to be read there, in court which was in session. There it met with the approval of all except two lawyers, Dunn and Booth, who denounced it as treason and endeavored to prevent Capt. Jack's trip to Philadelphia. George Graham and John Carruth were among the dozen men who arrested the lawyers and took them to Charlotte for punishment.

John does not again appear in the public records of the war until on 12 Feb. 1779 he was one of a group of captains which were commissioned. Then, following the fight at Cowan's ford on the Catawba, 1 Feb. 1781, and the occupation of Salisbury by the British the Colonials attempted to reassemble a force under the command of Gen. Andrew Pickens of South Carolina. Historians have inferred that because the general was from South Carolina that these were South Carolina troops but actually they were simply Davidson's brigade of militia from Mecklenburg and Rowan. The infantry of this brigade was under the command of Colonel Locke of Rowan and Maj. John Carruth of Lincoln, Gen. Davidson having been killed at Cowan's ford.

In 1779 Tryon County was abolished and two new counties, Lincoln and Rutherford, were organized from its territory. In the establishment of Lincoln County the General Assembly appointed John Carruth as one of the Commissioners, the Town of Lincolnton was established to be the county seat and by 1784 the court house, prison and stocks had been erected. John with the other Commissioners were continued as "Town Trustees and Directors". While the Town of Lincolnton was being established John's father passed away in 1782 and his will is one of the earliest Lincoln County documents in the court house at Lincolnton. John early used the new courts. The Apr. Sessions, 1784, list an action by John vs. Edw. Cornwall and Jno. Sloan.

John still retained his property on Paw Creek between the old Carruth and Cathey plantations but in 1785 he disposed of the lands on Indian Creek in Lincoln County. The Buffalo Creek area in Lincoln (now Cleveland) County was being opened up and John commenced accumulating rich lands in that section along Buffalo Creek and its tributary waters. In all, records have been found of grants to him of 3,661 acres in this area but these grants are distributed over the years and many were promptly resold. Nevertheless he did accumulate a great plantation which, together with his children's holdings, extended down Buffalo Creek well into present day Cherokee County, S. C. His plantation house, the location of which is shown on a map from "The first Actual Survey of the State of North Carolina", (1808) was on a bend of Buffalo Creek in present Cleveland County near where route 74 crosses the creek about five miles east of Shelby.

In 1798 his daughter Elizabeth married the sheriff of Lincoln County, Maj. Lawson Henderson, and from that union John was to become the grandfather of a future governor and leader of the new state of Texas, James Pinckney Henderson.

Most of the younger generation seem to have established their homes along the east bank of Buffalo Creek in York (Cherokee) County, S. C., and it is probable that after the death of his wife, Elizabeth, 11 Oct. 1819, the father may have removed to the home of his son John, Jr. The plantations of John Carruth, Jr., George Carruth and Hugh Quinn, husband of Frances, adjoined. Young Adam's plantation was nearby. George had married his cousin, Mary (Polly) Graham and made his chief home at the old Graham plantation just west of Charlotte. Adam had married Nancy Graham and was operating a ferry in addition to his plantation. Elizabeth was living in Lincolnton. Jane, who had married Thomas Allison, was probably living in Spartanburg District at this time but later removed to Green County, Ala. Walter, not married, was living the life of a play-boy around Charlotte before his early decease. Mary had married John Graham and is thought to have been living at this time on a plantation between Charlotte and Lincolnton.

On June 8, 1828, at the ripe age of 78 years, John passed away. He was buried in the Buffalo Baptist Church cemetery in Cherokee County, S. C., near the graves of his wife and son Adam who had predeceased him. With the exception of the age on Adam's stone all three stones were in good shape in 1947 and a little cleaning cleared up Adam's. John's stone carries the title of Colonel but no authentic reason for this has been found as yet.

His will and administration papers are on file at the York County Registry of Probate. Probably the most interesting portion of these papers to modern readers was the list and values of the slaves given in the inventory.

1 Negrow Man Tom and Sarah his wife	250.—
2 Negrow Men Surray and Robertson	900.—
1 Negrow Man Phillip a blacksmith	650.—
1 Negro Boy Abraham	400.—
1 Negrow Woman Hannah and 3 childring	700.—
1 Negrow Woman Charlotte and 3 Childring	700.—
1 Negrow Woman Matildy and 3 Childring	700.—
1 Negrow Woman Darcas and 2 Childring	400.—
3 Negrows viz Charles, Silvy and Viney	725.—

Of these slaves, four, all children of Darcas, namely Charles, Sylvia, Viney and Moses were willed to George Carruth, in Trust for John's grandson, Rufus K. Carruth (son of Adam, dec'd) and were to be delivered, with their increase, to Rufus when he arrived at the age of twenty-one. The balance of the slaves went to John, Jr.

Issue, all born Lincoln Co., N. C., date or order of birth not known.

ALEXANDER AND JEAN () CARRUTH

PENNSYLVANIA AND NORTH CAROLINA

D-1 ALEXANDER¹: b. prob. Antrim Co., Ireland, a minor in 1727; d. Lancaster Co., Pa., 1739; son of James Carruth of Ballymartin parish, Belfast barony, Antrim County, Ireland; m. prob. Ireland ca. 1729, JEAN ———. (See also Chapter 1, "North Carolina Scotch-Irish Carruths" and "Will of James Carruth of Ballymartin — 1727.")

Although Alexander came with his brothers to Lancaster Co., Pa., and no doubt settled on a piece of land in Hanover township, his death occurred before the warrants were issued to that group of settlers.

The Registry Office at Lancaster has the original inventory of his estate dated November ye 29th, 1739 and the original Administration Bond dated January 1st, 1739-40 in which Adam Carruth, John Heuston and James Huggens appear as Bondsmen; Adam Carruth as Administrator and John Allison and Susan Wright as Witnesses.

His widow, who appears as both Jean and Jane in the various records, with her children removed to North Carolina where they settled on a plantation which adjoined those of her brothers-in-law, C-1 Adam and E-1 Walter. Her indenture, copy of which is at Salisbury, was dated 28 Feb. 1755 between John Earl Granville as grantor and Jane Carruth of Rowan County, N. C., Widow, as grantee. The property was a rectangular tract, 360 poles from north to south and 280 poles from east to west. It lay between the headwaters of Coddle Creek and Rocky River, bounded on the east by the plantation of Walter Carruth, on the south by Adam Carruth and on the west by Robert Brevard. The property was located in what is now the southeast corner of Iredell County close to the borders of Rowan and Cabarrus Counties.

The Coddle Creek Church which the family attended is slightly across the border in Cabarrus County. Their son James, who died in 1757, was the first interment in the church yard.

In 1756 Widow Jean divided the plantation between her sons James and Robert, James receiving the south half where he had already made improvements and Robert the north half with the homestead. It is possible that she may have remarried at this time but if so the record has not yet been found.

She last appears in her son Alexander's will, probated 1786, wherein he appoints his mother and John Dickey as executors. Following some other bequests he left the balance of his goods to his mother.

Children, birthplaces and order of birth not known. Possibly others.

D-2 ALEXANDER	(-1786)
D-3 JAMES	(ca. 1730-1757)
D-4 ROBERT	(-1814)
D-5 DAUGHTER

D-2 ALEXANDER² (*D-1 Alex*¹), b. prob. Northern Ireland, d. Rowan County, N. C., est. probated 1786. Died without widow or issue, may not have been married.

Practically nothing is known of Alexander. There is a Lincoln deed 1-718 of a sale by John Sloan, Jr., to Adam Carruth dated 1 Nov. 1773 of land on Little Catawba Creek, Tryon (Lincoln) Co., above James Logan's land, where Alexander was one of the witnesses. William Cupples was the other.

There is also a militia voucher No. 3064 of an Alexander in the Salisbury District in the Revolution which may apply to him but more probably refers to his nephew Alexander, son of James.

Also in the Rowan Co. Tax list for 1778 an Alexander Carruth paid taxes on 311 pounds 7 shillings but this more probably refers to the nephew who was heir to half the original family plantation through the estate of his deceased father.

Alexander's will, probated 1786, appoints his mother and John Dickey as executors. He bequeathed his plantation to his nephew John McCulluch, the son of William McCulluch. To his nephew Alexander Carruth, son of Robert Carruth he left ten shillings sterling. The balance of his goods he left to his mother. The witnesses were Thomas Cook, Jr., James MacKown and James Aston whose signature appears on many family documents.

The will identifies him as Alexander Carruth of Rowan County and was filed at Rowan but no record has been found as yet of the aforesaid plantation.

No issue known.

D-3 JAMES² (*D-1 Alex*¹), b. prob. Northern Ireland, ca. 1730, d. Rowan (Iredell) Co., N. C., 9 Dec. 1757, aged 27 yrs., G. S. Coddle Creek Cem., m. prob. Iredell Co., ca. 1755 ELEANOR "_____".

Like his brother Alexander, very few records have been found to date for James. He evidently married Eleanor near 1755. The following year his only known child, Alexander, was born. This same year his mother divided the original plantation and in March 1756 deeded the south half to James. His lands, 315 acres, were bounded on the west by Robert Brevard and on the east by E-1

Walter Carruth. The north half of the original plantation went to his brother Robert in June of that same year.

The following year, 9 Dec. 1757, James died and was the first interment in the Coddle Creek Cemetery.

Issue, b. Iredell Co., N. C.

D-7 ALEXANDER³

(ca. 1756-1778)

D-4 ROBERT² (*Alex*¹), b. prob. Northern Ireland, d. Rutherford County, N. C., will dated 4 Apr. 1814, m., prob. Iredell Co., N. C., MARGARET "———", d. will dated 15 Mar. 1822, presented for probate Dec. 1823.

While Robert's birth date is not known, if he had reached his majority by the time his mother deeded part of the plantation to him in 1756 it would place his birth at the very latest as 1735.

His brother James had received the south half of the plantation the previous March and in June of 1756 his mother deeded to Robert the north half which contained the original house and clearing with 315 acres of land. The property was bounded on the west by Robert Brevard, on the south by his brother James and on the east by E-1 Walter Carruth.

It seems probable that he did not marry at this time but maintained the home for his mother. His sister probably had married William McCulluch previously. Judging by the estimated birth dates of his children it does not seem probable that Robert married until near 1765 or 1766.

In 1765 he received a grant of 200 acres in Mecklenburg Co., on the east bank of the Catawba River which he disposed of in 1772 to John McNitt Alexander.

He was still in Rowan Co. in 1773 when he was one of the signers of the Petition protesting the marriage act of 1766 preventing Presbyterian ministers from performing the marriage ceremony.

Three years later, 1776, he was appointed one of the guardians of the minor children of Samuel Gingles. E-4 John Carruth, who had married Samuel Gingles' daughter Rosanna was the other guardian.

In the Rowan Co. Tax list for 1778 he is listed in Capt. Joseph Dickson's district (Coddle Creek) as paying taxes on 886 pounds 7 shillings.

In 1783 he received a grant for 400 acres in Rowan Co. near the old homestead "on the head branch of Coddle Creek and Rocky River" at the usual price of "50 shillings for every hundred acres". This property was of irregular shape and would appear to have been the result of poor surveying at the time of the original patents. His son Alexander, who was later to become a surveyor may have "cut his teeth" on this job. Plotting the deed shows a clever piece of surveying. It was a long narrow tract between the rear lines of several plantations where they did not meet squarely and abutted on the lands of John Huggins, James Bowman, William (V)int, James Fisher, John Adams, Thomas Beaty and James Huggins. Robert retained this property until 1800 when he sold it to his son Alexander, both of them residents of Rutherford Co. at the time.

The following year Robert purchased 100 acres on the North Pacolet river in Rutherford County in the vicinity of the present day town of Tryon, Polk Co. The property was known by the name of the Little Cane Break and lay on the south side of the river. Here, in and around Tryon, on both sides of the state border grew up a large branch of the family which still resides in the vicinity.

Evidently satisfied that he and his wife had found the place they wanted they sold the old original plantation on Coddle Creek the next year to Nathaniel John Kerr and commenced accumulating lands in the Tryon neighborhood. In all, over the years, they obtained through grants or purchases at least 631 acres which can be accounted for but in his will he speaks of the plantation as 212 acres at that time.

There is an oddity in the printed records of the 1790 census. This lists two Robert Carruth family groups in the same militia company district here at Tryon. One head of family is designated as Carruth, Rev. Robt. and the other as Caruth, Robt. Mt. Although the family has no tradition that their ancestor was a clergyman and no records have been found of any Carruth clergymen of this period the known family of D-4 Robert matches the census records for the family of Rev. Robt. This record brings to mind the fact that Margaret Craighead, the daughter of the famous Rev. Alexander Craighead, is supposed to have married a Carruth but it is more probable that she married E-3 James who had a son Alexander Craighead Carruth. The census taker may have known of this Carruth-Craighead union and gotten his records mixed, or, on the other hand Robert's wife Margaret may actually have been that Margaret Craighead. Back on Coddle Creek D-4 Robert and E-3 James grew up on adjoining plantations. At least two of Margaret Craighead's sisters married clergymen and if Margaret Carruth really was that Margaret Craighead it would be natural for a strange census taker to assume her husband was a clergyman. The Craighead family had a long background of famous clergymen ancestors.

Robert's original will is on file in the North Carolina Historical Archives at Raleigh. It is dated the fourth of April 1814, and appoints his wife Margaret executrix and son Alexander executor. Bequests were as follows:

"to my beloved wife Margaret all my personal estate of every kind, except such as is hereafter otherwise disposed of, to be and to remain her property and at her disposal. Also the use and benefit of my plantation that I now live on with all the houses, orchards and improvements of every kind thereto belonging with all my plantation tools during her natural life.

"Item: I give and bequeath to my daughter Mary Carruth one tract of land on the south side of North Pacolet containing sixty acres known by the name of Vineyard Tract, lately occupied by James Neal, also one black horse called Jack and one white cow called Lilley.

The will was witnessed by Robert Braden, Robert M. Braden and Russel Twitty.

Mrs. Margaret's will is also in the North Carolina Historical Archives at Raleigh. It is dated 15th of March 1822 and was presented for probate Dec. 1823 and appoints her son Alexander as executor. Bequests are as follows:

"Item, I give and bequeath unto my son Alexander Carruth one hundred dollars to be paid out of the money raised from the sale of my property in one year after the recording of my last will.

"Item; I give and bequeath unto my daughter Mary Carruth the bedstead, bed and furniture that she generally makes use of, also a poplar chest and a small walnut table, one sorrel mare about five years old also one cow of the no how breed to be the property of her the said Mary and if they should live until my decease if not the Estate is not to be charged to make them good to her.

"Item; I give and bequeath unto Ephraim Carruth, my grandson, one hundred dollars to be paid in one year after the recordance of this my last will — also to George Barkley, Robert Barkley, Margaret Pace my grandchildren thirty three dollars cash to be paid in one year after the recording of this my last will.

"Item; I give and bequeath unto Leroy Carruth, my grandson, the colt of the mare willed to Mary Carruth that she is now in foal with also all the plantation tools of every kind.

"The residue of my estate of all kinds I allow to be put to sale on a reasonable credit at the descretion of my executor and the moneys arising from such sale to be equally divided among my daughters Elizabeth Carruth, Ruth Cunningham, Mary Carruth and Milinda Sloan."

It was witnessed by John Lewis and George Williams.

Of the various heirs mentioned in the two wills it is known at this time that their son Alexander married 12 Mar. 1792, Sarah Logan, the daughter of James and Mary () Logan. Mary Carruth married 17 June 1789, James Barkley, probably son of George Barkley. James Carruth married, 7 Dec. 1802 Mary Logan a sister of Sarah Logan who married James' brother Alexander. She is possibly the daughter Mary referred to in the two wills, her husband James having died prior to 1814. Elizabeth is not known to have ever married. Adam was in Buncomb County in 1807. The family evidently knew of his death but had lost track of his family since the reference to his children in Mrs. Margaret's will is indefinite. Ruth married, 31 May 1791, Alexander Cunningham and Melinda married, 14 July 1803, John Sloan, Jr.

Of the grandchildren, the parents of Ephraim, Leroy and Aspasio have not yet been positively identified. They may be sons of Alexander, James or Adam, or on the other hand, may be sons of some other child not yet identified. The 1790 census listed a Drury living just across the line in South Carolina who may have been the father of one or more of those grandchildren.

Issue, probably all born Iredell Co., N. C., order of birth not known and there may have been other children.

WALTER AND SARAH () CARRUTH

PENNSYLVANIA AND NORTH CAROLINA

E-1 WALTER¹: b. prob. Antrim Co., Ireland, ca. 1702; d. Rowan (Iredell) County, N. C., 19 Feb. 1769, aged 66 yrs. G.S.; son of James Carruth of Ballymartin parish, Belfast barony, Antrim County, Ireland; m. prob. Antrim Co., Ireland, ca. 1727, SARAH ———, b. prob. Antrim Co., Ireland, ca. 1711, d. Rowan (Iredell) County, N. C., 1 May 1768 aged 57 yrs. G.S. (See also Chapter 1, "North Carolina Scotch-Irish Carruths" and "Will of James Carruth of Ballymartin — 1727".)

It is not known when they emigrated but it is probable that they arrived as a family unit with several, if not all, of the children. The first definite dated record within this country is where he was a warrantee of 100 acres of land in Hanover township, Lancaster (now Dauphin) County, Pa. His warrant was dated 31 May 1742 but since there was considerable delay in issuing these warrants, after application, this only gives an approximation of their arrival.

In Dec. 1743 an Alexander Aston of Hanover died leaving a wife Isabel and son James. Walter Carruth and John McQueen were the executors and John and Henry McCormick were legatees. It seems probable there was a close degree of relationship here, especially so as we later find young James Aston in North Carolina, a neighbor of the Carruths and a witness to several of their legal documents. This date, 1743, is the latest found for Walter in Pennsylvania.

The next definite record is found in the Colonial Records of North Carolina, and clearly shows that Walter had arrived in North Carolina enough prior to 1749 to impress his neighbors and civil superiors with his dignity and integrity. At a General Assembly held at New Bern 17 Mar. 1749 a law was enacted dividing Bladen County, and erecting from it the new Anson County and St. George's Parish. Mr. Walter (Carieth) was one of the Vestrymen appointed to the new parish and a month later, 11 Apr. 1749, the Council at New Bern ordered that Mr. Walter (Carooth) be made one of the Justices of the Peace for and within the new county of Anson. Two years later, 1 Apr. 1751, he was reappointed Justice of the Peace.

It was not until four years after being made Vestryman that he received the indenture for the land which was to become the family plantation. This indenture is dated 2 May 1753 and is a fee-simple deed between the Right Honorable John Earl Granville, Viscount Carteret and "Barron" Carteret of Hawns in the County of Bedford in the Kingdom of Great Britain as Grantor and Walter Carooth of Rowan County, Province of North Carolina, Planter as Grantee. This deed was for 302 acres on the headwaters of Coddle Creek on both sides of the creek. The property was located in what is now the southeast corner of Iredell County close to the borders of Rowan and Cabarras Counties. The consideration was the sum of 3 shillings paid by the said Walter plus payments thereafter, yearly, and every year forever, the yearly rent of 12 shillings and 1 "peny". This rental was to be paid, "at or upon the two most usual Feasts or Days of Payment in the year. That is to say The Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary and The Feast of St. Michael the Archangel in every year, by even and equal portions." There were also other considerations.

In 1753 Rowan County was established, set off from Anson, and the first court in the new county was held at Salisbury, in June. Justice Walter was among the fourteen justices who presided at this session. Among others was Justice Squire Boone, the father of the great hunter and pioneer, Daniel Boone of Kentucky. It was from Salisbury that Daniel Boone, with five companions, set out on their original exploration trip to the wilderness of Kentucky, the route they blazed being known later as the "Boone Trail". Another member from a famous family was Walter's near neighbor Justice John Brevard, who, in later years, too old to fight, represented Rowan County in the Provincial Congress during the Revolution. Justice Brevard's father was a French Huguenot refugee to Northern Ireland, his mother was a McKnitt.

In December of 1753 Walter received the indenture for 559 more acres along the east bank of Coddle Creek but evidently felt he had sufficient land as he disposed of this lot in 1756 to Robert Luckey for five shillings. This deed was also signed by Walter's wife Sarah with "her mark."

Another grant was received in Mar. 1755 of 300 acres on the south side of the Enore River in Mecklenburg County which he disposed of in Jan. 1765 to Robert Woods, weaver, of Rowan for five shillings.

The history of Buffalo Church claims that Justice Walter and all his children attended. This seems questionable but in any case they must have transferred to the Coddle Creek Church as soon as that was formed since it was within three miles of his plantation. In any case it was to the Coddle Creek congregation that Rev. Hugh McAden preached, in 1755, on his famous missionary trip through Virginia and the Carolina mountain districts, during which times he was entertained at Justice Walter's plantation.

In 1758 Walter purchased 138 acres from William McKnight Sen'r for 33 shillings proclamation money, plus other considerations which hint at personal affection or possibly relationship between the families. This land abutted on the plantations of William McKnight, Walter Carruth, Adam Carruth, Francis Beatey and Thomas Cook.

Another which appears to be a neighborly transaction occurred in 1760 when Walter granted $22\frac{3}{4}$ acres of the original plantation to James Hynds in consideration "of the Natural Love and affection which he hath and beareth unto his well beloved friend the said James Hynds" etc., plus one shilling.

His final deed in 1765 would seem to identify his son-in-law, the husband of Ann (Carruth) Cupples. This deed for 128 acres was to William Cupples of Rowan County and the consideration was five shillings proclamation money and "for the paternal love and regard he the sd Walter Carruth hath for the sd William Cupples." This deed was witnessed by John Braly, husband of Walter's daughter Sarah and a Charles Cupples, possibly the father of William Cupples.

In 1768 his wife Sarah passed away followed in the following year by Walter, himself. His will, on file at Salisbury, reads in part as follows:

"Secondly I give and bequeath unto my well beloved son James Carruth all that part of my lands lying on the East side of Coddle Creek together with Negro Smart now in his possession and one half of the Waggon he paying one half of the charges of repairing her and also paying to Robert Brown or his order the Sum of five pounds currency when demanded.

"Thirdly I give and bequeath unto my well beloved son John Carruth the other part of my lands and Tenements lying on the west side of Said Creek together With one Negro vis Will and the other half of the waggon, also one black horse called Punch and one bay mare called Bess, two cows, one half of all my Household Furniture and my share in the Library he paying to Robert Brown five pounds Currency when demanded.

"Fourthly I give and bequeath to my well beloved daughter Agness Carruth the other half of all my household Goods Furniture together with one large gray horse, and two cows and also thirty pounds out of Negro Lydia's price (which I allow to be sold) and

"Fifthly I give and bequeath unto my well beloved daughters Ann Cupples and Sarah Braly the Remainder of my moveable Estate with the Remainder of the Negroes price to be equally divided between them."

In the churchyard in the rear of the Coddle Creek Church, which is still in use (1949), there is a small group of Carruth stones which were preserved from destruction by a Miss Elizabeth Madison Braly in 1924. These old stones were deeply imbedded into larger granite ones. Among them is the stone to Justice Walter and his wife. This stone is also a memorial to their son Alexander and reads:

Carruth	Carruth
Who died Feb.	Who died May
19th, 1769 Aged	1st 1768 Aged

Alexander Carruth died
Aged 15 years.

The reverse face of the enclosing granite stone bears the following inscription: "With Profound Veneration for Walter and his wife Sarah Carruth who ventured to settle here during Colonial Times This cherished record of their passing has been restored by their Great-great-great-Grand daughter Elizabeth Madison Braly 1924."

E-5 SARAH² (E-1 *Walter*¹), b. prob. Northern Ireland, d. Rowan Co., N. C., 12 Dec. 1800, m. by Rev. Richard Sankey, Rowan Co., 5 Sept. 1758, JOHN BRALY; b. prob. Northern Ireland ca. 1720, d. Rowan Co., 18 Jan. 1798, aged 78 yrs., G.S. Coddle Creek Cemetery.

In Jan. 1763 John Braly was appointed Public Register (Register of Deeds) for Rowan County. Salisbury was and still is the county seat for Rowan. Examination of his old records show that he invariably wrote the name with a dash above the a, thus "Brāly" which according to Webster would indicate the name was pronounced as Brayly whereas the common pronunciation today is Brawly.

Mr. William D. Kizziah, the present (1947) Register of Deeds, has been extremely helpful in the compilation of these old Rowan (Iredell) records of the family and the compiler wishes, at this time to acknowledge his appreciation of the assistance received.

While John Braly's parentage has not yet been definitely proven Mr. Kizziah points out the Rowan County Court Records for July 1765, Page 583, where "John and Margaret Braly were appointed Administrators of Thomas Braly's Estate". It is his thought that Thomas was the eldest of the family at Rowan Co., that the John was his son and Margaret may have been Thomas' wife.

In Deed Book, Vol. 7, page 302, John Braly has left the official record of his family in his own handwriting.

His Son named James Born August 30th day 1776

Both Sarah and her husband were interred in the Coddle Creek Church Cemetery. Their stone is flanked by the stone for Sarah's parents and the stone for D-3 James and his son. All three of these old stones have been preserved by being inserted into larger granite stones. This was the thoughtful work of a Miss Elizabeth M. Braly, a lineal descendant of John and Sarah (Carruth) Braly, and was done in 1924.

Sarah's will dated 27 Oct. 1800 names the following:

Unfortunately her background has been clouded by an impossible statement in the McCormick Family Record compiled by Leander James McCormick (1896) p. 119, wherein he states that Thomas McCormick married Elizabeth Carruth whose father Adam Carruth and brother Walter Carruth had also located in Lancaster County, Pa.

The Adam Carruth and Walter Carruth who settled in Lancaster County, Pa., were brothers and sons of James Carruth of Ballymartin Parish, Belfast Barony, Antrim County, Ireland, and were of the same generation as Elizabeth hence Adam could not have been her father although she may have been their sister. (See Chapter 1 "North Carolina Scotch-Irish Carruths" and "Will of James Carruth of Ballymartin parish — 1727".)

However Elizabeth (Carruth) McCormick was the pioneer mother of that branch of the McCormick family which has reached an outstanding world position. Their inventive genius and business acumen have revolutionized world-wide agricultural methods to the benefit of mankind.

They emigrated to America some time between the birth of their son Hugh in Ireland in 1735 and the birth of Robert in Pennsylvania in 1738 settling in the Scotch-Irish community of Hanover Township, Lancaster (now Dauphin) County, Pa. Among the Warrantees of Land in Hanover Township is listed; Thomas McCormick, 100 acres, June 7, 1749 and Eliz. McCormick, 100 acres, June 7, 1749. They later removed to Cumberland County, Pa.

THOMAS AND SARAH (HUBBARD) KIMBALL CARRUTH

MARBLEHEAD, MASSACHUSETTS

G-1 THOMAS was a mariner, country of origin not yet known, who settled in Marblehead, Mass. The earliest record found to date was his first marriage, at Marblehead 10 Nov. 1772, to Mrs. SARAH (HUBBARD) KIMBALL, the widow of Daniel Kimball, fisherman, of Marblehead. Her previous husband died, intestate, leaving real estate which included that oddity of early Marblehead, a portion of a house. It was described in a deed, (Essex County 136-220) as "the Northeasterly end of a dwelling house situate in said Marblehead and bounded Northwesterly by a building adjoining thereto in the occupation of ——— Fryar, twenty feet and an half, Northeasterly by a piece of land herein after described nineteen feet, Southeasterly partly, to wit, about sixteen feet and an half by land between the said Northeasterly end of said house and the street and partly by the other part of said house, Southwesterly by the other part of said house belonging to Deborah Hawkes, with the land under the said Northeasterly end of said house and the land lying between the same Northeasterly end of said house and the street measuring in length from the Easternmost corner of said house about sixteen feet and an half." There was also a piece of land adjoining the house and "three quarters parts of a Cows Commonage in the upper division of common land, so called".

This portion of a house was the family residence until finally sold by Thomas, then described as laborer, and his second wife, on 19 Dec. 1804, (Essex County 176-37). One of the witnesses to this deed was a Mary Kimball, possibly a daughter of Thomas' first wife. Also the ownership of the other part of the house had passed from Deborah Hawkes to Benjamin Hawkes.

When his first wife died is not known nor have any records been found of any issue by her. He married second, Marblehead, 6 May 1779, Mrs. MARY () BRIMBLECOM, by whom he had two daughters. The final record of him and his second wife is the deed of 19 Dec. 1804 disposing of the portion of a house.

Issue by 1st m., Sarah (Hubbard) Kimball, none known.

Issue by 2nd m., Mary () Brimblecom, both baptized 2nd Congregational (Unitarian) Church, Marblehead, Mass.

JAMES AND ABIGAIL (BACHELOR) CARRUTH

KINGSTON, NEW HAMPSHIRE

H-1 JAMES¹ first appears under the date of 23 Sept. 1776 in a report by the Selectmen of Kingston, N. H., to the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New Hampshire relative to the signatures to the Association Test. This report contains the following footnote, "James Caruth, a Scotchman Declines obliging himself to take up Arms against his Native Country but Declares he will neaver take up Arms against America and is willing to bear his Proportion of the Publick taxes with his Townsmen."

He was married at Kensington, N. H., 19 Feb. 1777, to ABIGAIL BACHELOR and the following November 1777, purchased a shop in Kingston. In the deed he is described as "of Kensington, Trader, in his own behalf and in behalf of George Nash, now in Great Britain, his partner in Trade". The shop stood at the southeast corner of Willet Peterson's homestead, "adjoining to the highway that leads from Capt. John Muntorn's to Chester which Shop was lately occupied by the said James and George as a Store".

The census of 1790 lists him as the head of a family in Kingston Town, Rockingham Co., N. H., composed of

- 1 Male of 16 years and upward, including heads of family
- 1 Male under 16 years of age
- 2 Females, including heads of family
- 1 Other free persons
- 0 Slaves

The census of 1800 lists the family as: —

- 1 Male under 10 years
- 1 Male 45 years or upwards
- 2 Females 45 years or upwards

There are numerous deeds at the Court House at Exeter covering his transactions wherein until 1790 he is described as Trader or Merchant. In 1791 there is a deed describing him as Husbandman which may indicate a change of occupation but probably near this time he was licensed as an Innholder as the town records of 1793 show his license had been continued for another year. He continued to operate an inn until 1802 when he and his wife sold the property.

At a town meeting 10 Mar. 1807, it was voted that the selectmen make inquiry in law respecting James Carruth being a lawful resident and also whether he is now a charge which this town is liable to defray.

No further record of the family has yet been found unless possibly the Mrs. Carruth who died in Hallowell, Maine, 1808, aged about 50, was his wife. There were quite a few Bachelors in Hallowell and nearby Gardiner.

PETER CARRUTH

NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK

I-1 PETER¹ first appears in an Indenture made the 5th day of Nov. 1794 but not recorded until 8 Feb. 1832, (N. Y. County-Hall of Records 280-591). In this indenture he is described as a blacksmith and the purchaser of lot #1759 in the 7th (formerly the Out Ward) in N. Y. This was on Suffolk St.

In the New York City directories he appears from 1801 to 1811 inclusive as a "smith", located at 102 Division from 1801 to 1806 and at 190 Division h 22 Suffolk from 1807 to 1811. Also in the directories for 1810 and 1811 there is a listing of Coruth & Clark, smiths; in 1810 at 14 Hester and in 1811 at 16 Hester and 190 Division.

On the 19th of December 1811, he made his will which was proven 22 Jan. 1812. (N. Y. County, Hall of Records 50-37.) The will is signed with "his x mark". The will names James Coruth, Mary Griffin the wife of Michael Griffin; William Coruth and Elizabeth Coruth; and states that James and Mary, the two eldest children are now of age and that William and Elizabeth are minors. (See also Chapter I — Fraudulent Coat of Arms.)

On 31 Dec. 1813, the executors of his estate sold the house and lot on Suffolk St. (N. Y. County — Deeds 107-47.)

JOHN AND ISABELLE (SHEARER) CARRUTH

DIPPANY FARM

KILMACOLM PARISH, RENFREWSHIRE, SCOTLAND

The Kilmacolm Parochial Records commence for births in 1710, marriages in 1695 and deaths in 1817. Like all these old parochial records they are incomplete but they do furnish clues sufficient to indicate that members of this branch of Carruths were tenants in Dippany from 1711, when the records start, until the end of the 18th century. We shall probably never know when they first became tenants there but in view of their long known occupancy the following episode is interesting.

Dippany, of the lands of Duchal, lies among the low hills in the central part of the parish, south of the Clyde River and about three miles equidistant from Greenock and Port Glasgow. At the time of this episode, about 1580, there was a hereditary feud between the Laird of Duchal and Glencairn of Finlaystone. Here in Scotland the Royal authority had not yet been made supreme, as it had in England where the turbulent nobles had been crushed. The financial resources of the Scottish crown were so limited that the powerful barons and chieftons, each with his own stronghold, were able to flout the Royal authority almost at will and were accustomed to carry out intermittent feuds with each other.

According to Murray's Kilmacolm, pages 246-7, about the year 1580 an unexpected raid was made upon the land of Duchal. The aggressors were a party of wild Highlanders from Argyleshire, who, crossing the Clyde, marched in the silence of the night over the hills above Greenock, and at daybreak swept down on the valley of the Greenwater. Hastily collecting all the cattle they could find they sought to return with the plunder the way they had come. The farmers for the most part did not attempt to oppose the marauders, who emptied their byres and stables. The tenant of Dippany, a farm not far from Duchal, alone made a show of resistance. A fight took place round the old steading, in the course of which one savage crept to the window, and, seeing the farmer's child lying in a cradle, fired at the helpless infant and killed it. The outraged tenants brought the news to their liege lord at Duchal. Desperately enraged he summoned his men-at-arms and immediately set out in pursuit of the robbers. They had, however, gotten a considerable start, and Duchal and his men did not overtake them till they reached the Clyde, near the Cloch. There they beheld them just embarking their booty preparatory to crossing over to their native glens. Not a moment was to be lost. With a shout of wrath Duchal dashed down the slopes to intercept their retreat. The Highlanders heard the shout, and, looking up, saw their danger. Leaving all the stolen property on the shore, they rushed to their boats, and pulled for dear life. In the hurry, however, one boat's company had put off without oars, and they were easily surrounded and captured. It is an evidence of the increasing respect for law in the country that the prisoners were not instantly despatched but were conveyed to Duchal, from whence they were sent in chains to Edinburgh, where, after trial, they were all hanged in the Grassmarket. The complicity of Glencairn in the raid was made evident in the course of the trial. It was he who had hounded on the Highland Caterans to this dastardly attack on his hereditary foe.

It would be interesting to know if that tenant at Dippany was a Carruth.

J-14 JAMES³ (J-3 Jas.², J-1 John¹), b. Green Farm, Kilmacolm Parish, Renfrewshire, Scotland, 21 Mar. 1771, bpd. 24th, d. Ryegate, Vt., U. S. A., 5 Nov. 1862, m. Newbury, Vt., 20 Oct. 1800, MARY (MOLLY) MILLS, b. ca. 1783, dau. of John Mills, Sr., and granddaughter of Richard Mills of Portsmouth, N. H.

James emigrated in 1794. Three years later he purchased 52 acres in the south division of the Town of Ryegate, Vt., where he established his home.

On the 26th of Feb. 1803 James and Mary sold Mary's share in her grandfather's estate to Robert Ham of Portsmouth, N. H., for ten dollars. The transaction is recorded at the Registry of Deeds, Exeter, N. H., and it is noteworthy that they both signed with the form "Carruth". This point is being emphasized because of the corruptions in spelling of the name which became established in this branch of the family. Members of this branch, down through the years, have used the forms "Coruth" and "Corruth". Some individuals used both forms.

In an endeavor to find the reason for this corruption the compiler made a careful search of the early records of the town and found the fault seemed to lie with a certain town clerk. When James came to town the town clerk was a James Whitelaw whose old records, even today, are models of clearness, neatness and accuracy. His last entry was 5 Jan. 1829 and all those years he was in office every entry relating to a member of the family is clearly "Carruth". He was followed by a William Grey who, right from the start hardly ever spelt the name twice alike in succession and never spelt it correctly. For example, in the school records for 1830 it appears as James Coruth followed in 1831 with James Curuth, in 1832 it was Coruth again while in 1833 it changed to Corruth, etc.

Both James and his wife, together with some of their descendants are buried in the Hall cemetery, So. Ryegate.

Issue, all b. Ryegate, Vt.

It is said that William and his wife, with six small children emigrated from Scotland 26 May 1842 arriving in New York, 16 July 1842. Then, to reach Topsham, Vt., where they planned to settle, they travelled by boat up the Hudson River and Lake Champlain to Burlington, Vt., thence overland, east, by oxcart.

It is probable the family went first to South Ryegate. In the town records in Ryegate in the List of Scholars for 1843 there is a record of "William Caruth", District 8 (South Ryegate), 3 scholars. The school list covered children from 4 to 18 years of age. The spelling of William's name is simply another example of the town clerk's work mentioned elsewhere.

The family settled in Topsham where he was a farmer.

Issue, first six b. Scotland; last two, Topsham, Vt.

His first wife is buried in the East Topsham cemetery; Geordie and his second wife in the Groton Village cemetery, in the front corner, beside the main highway and overlooking the village main street. Geordie always did enjoy being in the midst of any excitement going on.

When she was about sixteen years old one of her father's cousins came down from Vermont to Toronto to visit them. He was dressed as a farmer of those days, with high farm boots and clothes which did not conform to latest city styles. Margaret, clothes conscious like any girl that age, naturally was discomposed at the thought of being seen with him in public. She also remembers a trip she made as a child to Manitoba with her uncle James when Manitoba was still undeveloped country.

JAMES AND ANN (BORTREE) CARUTH

WAYNE COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA

K-1 JAMES¹: b. prob. Magheramulkenny townland, Clonoe Parish, Co. Tyrone, Ireland, ca. 1807, d. Sterling, Wayne Co., Pa., 6 Nov. 1871, a. 64 y. 7 m. 17 d., m. Killyman Parish, Co. Tyrone, 9 Dec. 1830, ANN BORTREE of Cohannan townland, Killyman Parish, b. ca. 1811, d. Sterling 15 Apr. 1881, a. 70 y. G.S.; dau. of John and Maria Bortree.

Their m. record is at the rectory of Killyman Parish, about three miles south of Dungannon. The record identifies James as of "Maghermakenny", Parish of Clonoe and the witnesses were Thos. Hayes and Alex. McDonald.

The townland of Magheramulkenny lies about two miles from Coal Island and was the seat of a branch of the Caruths which was probably closely related to the family of L-2 George who emigrated to New York City near the time James and his family left Ireland (see chapter 1 — Scotch Irish Carruths).

James and his wife, with three small children, left Ireland in 1839 coming via Canada. The fourth child was born in Canada enroute. Mathew's "Wayne, Pike and Monroe Counties, Penn.", pt. 2, p. 792, gives information regarding the Bortree family and, in addition to other information states Ann's mother, "John Bortree's widow (Maria) came from Ireland with her two sons, Thomas and Robert and two daughters, Maria wife of John Phillips and Ann wife of James "CARRUTH".

He was a farmer and resided in Sterling until his death. Both he and his wife were buried in Zion Cemetery, Sterling. James' gravestone, when found (1946) was face down on the ground. Soil acids had eaten away all the markings except "JAMES CARRUTH". However, the family has used the "CARUTH" form of surname until recently when some of the younger generation have changed to "CARRUTH". Issue, first three b. Ireland, fourth b. Canada, balance b. Sterling, Wayne Co., Pa.

K-7 MARY JANE² (K-1 *Gas.*¹), b. Sterling, Wayne Co., Pa., 21 Oct. 1842, m. Sterling, 17 Oct. 1861, JOHN B. GILPIN, bro. of Richard W. Gilpin who m. K-2 Margaret A. Caruth.

The family resided in Sterling. Mrs. Lydia (Gilpin) Masters told how her mother used to tell the children that she (the mother) was a witch and couldn't step over a broom. This, of course, was to teach the youngsters to be orderly and not leave brooms lying around. Lydia, then about nine, decided to see if it was a fact that her mother could not step over a broom so she put the broom handle across the lowest step of the stairs. Her mother came down the stairs, carrying a baby, and tripped over the broom handle. Fortunately neither she nor the baby were injured but Mrs. Lydia still remembered 62 years later the trouncing she received.

K-9 JOHN H.² (K-1 Jas.1), b. Sterling, Wayne Co., Pa., 24 May 1846, d. Richmond, Va., 19 May 1864. Never married.

A few months before his eighteenth birthday he enlisted for service with the Heavy Artillery at Fortress Monroe and was mustered into service on 24 Mar. 1864. Three weeks later the new 188th Pennsylvania Infantry regiment was formed from surplus artillery men at Fortress Monroe and John was inducted into Co. A, his name being incorrectly listed on the rolls as CANETH, JOHN H. Ten days later the new regiment marched out on the way to the front. On May 16, 1864, John fell wounded at Drury's Bluff and was captured, dying at Richmond, Va., three days later, 19 May 1864, of his wounds. Because of that error in incorrectly listing his name on the rolls the family never knew definitely what had happened to him in the less than two months he was in the army.

The monument in front of the court house in Honesdale, the county seat, listing the men from Wayne County who fell in the Rebellion of 1861-65 does not contain the name of John H. Caruth. It does, however, list a J. CAUTH.

"L"

JAMES CARUTH

COUNTY TYRONE, IRELAND

L-1 JAMES¹: by family tradition, resided at Dungannon, Co. Tyrone, and was probably b. near 1705.

He first appears in the public records in a lease, dated 1765, to "George Caruth and James Caruth the Father of the said George of a Messuage or parcel of land in the Townland of Anaghmore." The lease was to run, "for lives of said George Caruth, James Caruth and Thomas Caruth Brothers of the said George." This lease forms a portion of a Deed of Mortgage dated 2 Nov. 1797 from George Caruth of Coal Island, Co. Tyrone, merchant. (Reg. of Deeds 522/110/341844). The balance of this Deed of Mortgage refers to a "Messuage or parcel of lands in the Townland of Gargoness."

John, another son of James, is identified through a deed (370/527/253291) dated 17 June 1785 to George Caruth of Coal Island, merchant, of the "Messuage or Parcell of Lands in the Townland of Gargonus" which was for the "lives of sd George Caruth and John Caruth his Br. then living and residing with the said George, aged twenty years or upwards."

There was also an Alexr Caruth of Coal Island, merchant, who appears as witness for or with George on two deeds, 17 June 1785 and 7 Nov. 1786 but there is nothing to indicate his relationship to the others nor do we know yet the relationship of the Caruths at Magheramulkenny, about three miles from Coal Island. K-1 James of Pennsylvania came from this latter family.

Known issue, there were probably others.

L-2 GEORGE² (L-1 Jas.¹), b. Co. Tyrone, Ireland, ca. 1733, d. Coal Island, Co. Tyrone, 1810, by family tradition, will proven 17 Mar. 1812, m. 1788, ALICE TRACY, b. Dungannon, between 1767 and 1772, d. Brooklyn, N. Y., 1832, bu. Greenwood Cem., dau. of James and Ann (McGee) Tracy. Her father was said to be a lineal descendant of Sir William deTracy, one of the Norman knights who slew Thomas Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, in the year 1170. Her mother was the dau. of Bishop McGee of Dublin.

It is family tradition that when George married Alice Tracy his father purchased the Coal Island property for him, since the home property at Dungannon was to go to George's brother Thomas. He did not marry until very late in life, 55 years of age, while his wife was believed to have been from 16 to 21 years old.

He was known to have been a lieutenant of the Coal Island Volunteers, raised during the American Revolution by the Protestants, for home defense against the Catholic Irish, since England was in no position to assist in the defense. His silver epaulets are still in the possession of the descendants of L-11 Alice (Caruth) Chadwick.

His will, proven 17 Mar. 1812, speaks of "my houses and land at Coal Island" and to "the farm I hold in Anaghmore." It also mentions his wife, son James "Treasey" Caruth of Armagh, daughter Mary Caruth, sons George and William and unnamed daughters.

His widow, with some of the children, emigrated to the New York area where she died, Brooklyn or New York in 1832.

Issue, all b. Coal Island, Co. Tyrone, Ireland.

In his father's will, 1810, he appears as "James Treasey Caruth of Armagh."

L-4 MARY³ (L-2 Geo.², L-1 Jas.¹), b. Coal Island, Co. Tyrone, Ireland, 4 Oct. 1792.

Is mentioned by name in her father's will, 1810. No other definite record is known.

On 6 April 1845, L-9 Emily wrote from Brooklyn to L-10 William at Coal Island regarding L-3 James' death and spoke of a Walter and Mary Ann Burns, who lived in Williamsburg, as calling. While this might be L-4 Mary there is no proof.

L-8 ELIZA ANN³ (L-2 Geo.², L-1 Jas.¹), b. Coal Island, Co. Tyrone, Ireland, 3 May 1802, d. Brooklyn, N. Y., bu. Greenwood Cem.; not known to have married.

It is not known when she emigrated but in the 1840's she and her sister Emily were at 40 Wall St., New York City, where they are said to have operated a boarding house, later removing to Brooklyn. She appears in the Brooklyn directories from 1848 to 1857 inclusive.

L-10 WILLIAM ALEXANDER³ (L-2 Geo.², L-1 Jas.¹), b. Coal Island, Co. Tyrone, Ireland, 23 July 1808, d. Brooklyn, N. Y., 12 Sept. 1882, bur. Greenwood cem., m. in the parish church of Killyman, about three miles south of Dungannon, 16 Feb. 1845, MARY ANN MEEKE (parish register — Meek) b. Letterclerey House, near Stewartstown, Co. Tyrone, 27 Dec. 1818, and d. Old Lyme, Conn., 21 Nov. 1914, dau. of James and Ann (Brown) Meeke.

It is not known when he first crossed to America nor how many crossings he made but there is known to have been several. The first record found on this side is where, on 25 Oct. 1841, with a partner, William Paule, he purchased property at Warrenton, Fauquier Co., Va. This property included a dwelling house and lot in the Town of Warrenton, together with the outhouses, shops, buildings and improvements together with a well. Here they engaged in the carriage building trade.

How long the partnership lasted is not known but within a couple of years he was back in Ireland. From letters in the family's possession we know he was in Dungannon or Coal Island at least part of the time in each of the years of 1843-44-45 and his first two children were born at Coal Island in 1846 and 1848 respectively.

He returned to Virginia by 1849 since his third child was born 1 Jan. 1850 at Culpeper. He was naturalized at Warrenton, his declaration that he had resided there more than five years was dated 8 July 1857. His final papers were dated 27 Dec. 1859.

Following the war between the states he removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he appears in the directories of 1871 to 1880 inc. His will was probated, Brooklyn, Kings Co., N. Y., 29 Nov. 1882.

Y., 25 June 1873, CHARLES NOYES CHADWICK, b. Old Lyme, Conn., 18 Jan. 1849, d. Old Lyme, 23 Oct. 1920, son of Daniel and Ellen (Noyes) Chadwick.

While the family was at Warrenton, Va., Alice Ann came North one winter to visit her aunts Eliza Ann and Emily at Brooklyn Heights. While there the war between the states broke out and she was unable to return home. The only communications she had with her parents during the war were through Northern soldiers who carried letters or messages back and forth.

After one year in a Public School in Brooklyn she received a scholarship to Packer Collegiate Institute of Brooklyn where she was president of her class of 1864, which was a famous class. Following her graduation she was librarian at the Institute until she married.

ALEXANDER AND MARGARET () CARUTH

NEW YORK CITY

N-1 ALEXANDER¹, b. Ireland ca. 1816, m. MARGARET (), b. Ireland, ca. 1818.

They first appear in the census records of 1840 for the 16th ward of New York City. The family at that time was composed of Alexander, his wife, and a female child under 5 years of age.

In 1849 he leased property in the 16th ward lying between 29th and 30 Sts., and in 1857 purchased the property outright. In both indentures he was described as a cartman. Here at 314 W. 30th St. he built up a large and successful trucking business.

In the census record of 1860 there appears the name of a William Caruth, age 21, born in Ireland, living with Alexander and employed as a carman (truckman). This William was, no doubt, a nephew newly arrived to this country.

Issue, first prob. b. New York City, the others definitely b. there.

N-2 FEMALE CHILD² (in Census of 1840 as under 5 years of age).

N-3 CHARLOTTE, b. ca. 1842.

N-4 ALEXANDER, b. ca. 1844.

N-5 JAMES, b. ca. 1846.

N-6 EMMA, b. ca. 1848.

N-7 WILLIAM, b. ca. 1853. Occu. sash and blind maker.

N-4 ALEXANDER² (*Alex*¹), b. New York City, ca. 1844.

Census records and directories show that he resided with his parents up to and including the 1870 census. In 1870 the business was listed as Caruth and Sons and the following year as A. Caruth and Son.

Apparently Alexander, Jr., married some time between 1870 and 1881 since in 1881 he was located at the new address of 321 W. 29th St., still in the trucking business. Also at this same address there was an Elizabeth Carruth operating a boarding house. Two years later neither appear in the directory and then in 1885-86-87, there are entries in the Brooklyn directory of an Elizabeth Carruth, widow of Alexander.

No issue known.

ROBERT AND ISABELLA (EWING) CARRUTH

BIRKENHEAD FARM

HOUSTON AND KILLELLAN PARISH, RENFREWSHIRE, SCOTLAND

O-1 ROBERT¹, b. 1707, d. Birkenhead Farm 1782, m. Govan Parish, Lanarkshire, 2 June 1740, ISOBELL EWINE (EWING) per parochial register; (a family journal records her name as Elisabetha and that branch refer to her as Elizabeth), dau. of Thomas and Janet (Reid) Ewing.

Both the Scottish and Utah branches have family records which are identical in some respects and with only slight variations in others. They both agree with the above vital records on Robert. The Utah records state Robert was born in Renfrew.

As to Robert's parentage, the Scottish records state, "In the book of members, Incorporation of Maltmen, Glasgow, under date 1703, appears the entry Samuel Carruth and this person is generally supposed to be our ancestor. He had large malt barns in or near Renfrew and was reputed to be worth £1,000 which was reckoned to be a large sum in those days." The compiler has been unable, as yet, to find any birth record of a son Robert in 1707 to such a Samuel. Also a search of the Commissariat Records failed to disclose the settlement of any Carruth estate traceable to this group.

The records of the Utah branch carry the indefinite statement that Robert's father was either William or James and that he was a Maltman in Renfrew. Since they knew nothing about the Scottish branch records it is understandable that they have felt that Robert was that Robert born in Renfrew, 12 Nov. 1709, to William and Janet (Cunningham) Carruth, in spite of the difference in the date of birth from their own records. However, when two such widely separated branches agree on a vital date there is usually a good reason and additional research is indicated. The parochial registers of the Clyde Valley may yet disclose a Robert, born in 1707, to a maltman or a family allied to a maltman.

Dumbarton and Glasgow, on the north bank of the Clyde, are only about twelve miles apart. Renfrew Parish, on the south bank, lies approximately midway. Carruths were not native to Renfrew. Although the Renfrew parochial registers commence in 1673 there were no Carruth entries found until 1696. The family obviously came from some other parish. In Dumbarton there was a Carruth group with a craftsman background, several coopers and one known maltman, Z-8 James. This James married first in 1686 and second in 1691. No births are ascribed to him on the Dumbarton register so it seems probable he had made his home in another parish, returning to Dumbarton for his second wife after the death of the first. In such a case his children would have been recorded elsewhere. Another possible tie between the Dumbarton and Renfrew groups is Z-26 Robert, born Dumbarton in 1670. There is no marriage record for him in Dumbarton but in Port Glasgow, just across the river, there is a birth record in 1701 for a Margaret, born to Robert Carruth and Margaret Kyle. This is the first Carruth entry in the Port Glasgow register. The family evidently moved away because there are no more Carruth entries there until a marriage of an Agnes Carruth in 1720. However, in 1704 there was born in Renfrew, on 29 June 1704, James, son to Robert Carruth and Margaret Keil which was very possibly the same family.

Certainly the members of this branch have an excellent opportunity to carry their family records back for several more generations.

To return to Robert, himself. He and his family evidently lived in Govan Parish until at least 1750, since the three known children were all baptized there. The baptismal records all give the mother's name as "Isobell Ewine" the same as her marriage record. The Utah records state that his son James was born at Sheils, Govan, so that may have been their home during all this period. Sheils is on the south bank of the Clyde almost upon the Renfrew Parish border.

The time of their daughter Elizabeth's birth (bpd. 28 Dec. 1745) must have been a trying period for the family. This was during the Rebellion of 1745-6. In the retreat from Carlisle Prince Charles' army entered and lay in and around Glasgow the last week of 1745. The advance elements entered the city on Christmas-day and on the following the Prince arrived with the main body. The troops had seen hard campaigning and their clothes were in a dilapidated condition with most of the men barefooted. Foraging parties quickly overran the surrounding countryside, including Govan and Renfrew. A patrol reached as far as Blackstown, a mile or so from Birkenhead. The two fields in Birkenhead farm in which the horses were hid from the soldiers are still known as "The Forlorns-East and West". It is said that Robert was intercepted by a party of these Highland soldiers between Fulwood Mill and Birkenhead when he was forced to give up all or part of the grain or meal which he had with him.

Birkenhead, which was for so many years the home of this branch, was a part of the old Semple estate of Fulwood which appears in a charter of 1573 from John of Fulwood to his son and heir Robert. The portion of the charter relating to these lands lists them as the lands of Mekill Fulwod, Birkinheid, Blakburne, Turnyngschaw, Littill Fulwode, Eist Subar, Commonesyde, Newwaird, and Calderhaich with manors, mills, woods, tenantry, etc. This Semple family stems from Lochwinnoch Parish, near the lands of Carruth, and appears in connection with many Carruth records. Birkenhead farm contains about one hundred acres and lies on the south side of Gryffe Water in the united parishes of Houston and Killellan. These parishes were joined in 1760; prior to then the farm was in Killellan Parish.

We do not know for sure when the family first settled on Birkenhead but it was probably near the 27th of Oct. 1765. The "Rent Book" of the Elderslie Estate which was among the family papers dated from then onward. Robert was succeeded in the tenancy by his son James and Birkenhead was occupied by his descendants until, at least, 1911 at which time the tenant was a Robert Carruth Young.

Was not quite sixteen years of age when his father died leaving him with the responsibility of caring for the family. The lease of Birkenhead still ran for several years so he took over the operation of the place. He evidently satisfied the landlord because when the old lease expired a new one for ten years was given James and he carried on, saw that his brother William was educated to the age of fifteen and apprenticed to a trade.

Church and sailed with them on the Carnatic in 1848 enroute to America.

A journal kept by him constitutes the Utah branch family records referred to in the biographical material of O-1 Robert. This journal contains an autobiography of O-27 William, a biography of O-56 William written by his daughter O-85 Margaret (Carruth) Rhead, and an autobiography of O-86 William Henry. It also contains several genealogical tables of Carruth, Barr, and Ellwood families. The journal has been microfilmed by the Utah Genealogical Society from whom copies may be obtained.

Although the Record Book was originally dated Birkenhead January 1st, 1847, it was not until ten years later that he commenced to set down his material. During this time he had collected a genealogical account of his relations and it was in this account where the birth date of O-1 Robert appears as 1707, coinciding with the records of the Scottish branch.

He attended school until he was fifteen and was then apprenticed to a cabinet-maker in Paisley for a term of five years. This he failed to complete breaking the contract after two years and returning to Birkenhead where he remained until, as he writes, "Mormonism brought me to this place".

In Chapter II, Settlement of Utah, is an account of the movement of the family to America. They settled first in Salt Lake City later removing to Little or South Cottonwood, about eight miles south. There he built a wickiup of willows and mud. On 13 Nov. 1849, he left for California in a company of about forty Brethren bound for the "Gold digins". They took the southern route travelling with ox teams. He returned via the northern route arriving in Salt Lake City, 2 June 1851, after an absence of over eighteen months. In the meantime his son William had been born.

The summer of 1852 found him farming on shares on South Cottonwood Creek and the next year he speaks of spending considerable time in the Rangers as 2nd Sergeant but apparently saw no action against the Indians. In 1854 he, with others, fenced about 800 acres of land, his share being about 100 acres. Following the harvest he sold out and removed to Cedar Valley, about forty miles from Salt Lake City. The move was unfortunate, the grasshoppers wiping out his crop, so he sold out and returned to South Cottonwood. Here he went to work for his brother-in-law Andrew Cahoon and eventually repurchased his former property.

Again in July 1861, he sold out his South Cottonwood property and started out in search of a new home, eventually buying a place on the East Weber River about two miles below Coalville in Summit County. This became the family homestead and was occupied by several generations. Today the property is covered by water from Echo Dam.

Issue, all b. Utah, first Salt Lake City, second to seventh South Cottonwood, eighth Coalville, Summit County.

Dairy farmer, res. (1952) Callochant Farm, Kilbarchan Parish, Renfrewshire.

Callochant is on the edge of the valley of the Black Cart Water and is about three miles from Carruth House. The valley of the Black Cart formed a natural migration route from the earliest days and from the low hill on the south side of Callochant can be seen the whole area which was the cradle of the Carruth family. To the northwest lies Carruth and the moors of Kilmacolm Parish around Dippeny with Greenock and Port Glasgow just beyond. To the north is Dumbarton on the north bank of the Clyde River and behind it lies Loch Lomond. To the northeast, down the valley, are Johnstone, Paisley and Glasgow while up the valley to the southwest is Lochwinnoch, Kilbirnie, Beith and Dalry. All Carruth country. To one accustomed to American distances it seems incredibly compact.

To this whole family the compiler is deeply indebted for their warm-hearted Scottish hospitality during the summer of 1950, and is especially indebted to Miss Nancy for the many, many hours she spent copying old family records that they might be included in this volume for the benefit of all.

Issue, both b. Callochant Farm, Kilbarchan Parish, Renfrewshire.

Credit must go to Mr. Blaine W. Carruth for practically all the records used in the presentation of this branch of O-27 William and Margaret (Ellwood) Carruth who were among the original pioneers who settled Utah.

In addition to his unselfish generosity in cheerfully furnishing copies of his own carefully prepared records he has also taken steps to preserve the "Family Journal" for posterity. This "Family Journal" was commenced by O-27 William, the original pioneer, and has been carried on by the succeeding generations so that today it is a continuous picture of this branch from William's childhood days at Birkenhead Farm in Scotland to the present times. It is a valuable piece of Americana. Through his forethought and efforts the journal has been microfilmed and copies of the microfilm may be obtained from the Utah Genealogical Society at Salt Lake City for a very nominal fee.

He, both wives and all the children are buried West Laurel Hill Cem., Bala-Cynwyd (near Philadelphia), Pa.

The following has been taken from the 1904 edition of Who's Who in Pennsylvania.

"John G. Carruth; manufacturer, b. in Paisley, Scotland, 25 Feb. 1851; educated there; came to America in 1867 and secured a position in a large Philadelphia mercantile establishment, in which he was rapidly advanced to the post of general manager. In 1876 he resigned this position and began the manufacture of woolen, worsted and cotton goods, his business growing so great that in 1894 he built the large Endurance Mills in which the best grades of goods are manufactured. Mr. Carruth was one of the founders of the United Life Insurance and Trust Co., is president of the Industrial Trust Title and Savings Co. and was one of the originators of the Philadelphia Bourse; he is a Director in the Ninth National Bank and the Philadelphia Casualty Company, and a member of the Union League, Trades League and Manufacturer's Club. He contributed a dormitory house at the University of Pennsylvania as a memorial to his daughter, Jean May. Address 1300 Broad St., Philadelphia, Pa."

As the above was published in the 1904 edition it was probably written prior to the death of his first wife. By that time he had become very successful financially. Following the passing of his first wife he made his home at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, for the last twenty years of his life.

His second wife, Adelaide K. () Potts, thought to have been the widow of Chas. W. Potts, of the Potts family identified with the iron industry, had great wealth in her own right.

T-1 JAMES DICKSON¹, b. Glasgow, Scotland, ca. 1881, d. Seekonk, Mass., 24 Apr. 1944, son of James and Isabelle (Dickson) Carruth, m. Little Greenlaw Farm, Newton Mearns, Renfrewshire, Scotland, 13 Apr. 1919, MARGARET W. DOUGEN, b. Grangemouth, Stirlingshire, Scotland, ca. 1896, dau. of James and Margaret (Paterson) Dougen.

Came to the U.S.A. in 1923 bringing with him his wife and daughter. They settled in Rhode Island, living in Pawtucket, Saylesville and later in Seekonk, Mass.

He was very fond of horses, especially Clydesdales. At one "Summer Show" in Glasgow near 1907 he saw a Hackney Mare owned by a James Caruth, a veterinary of Ballymena, Antrim, Northern Ireland. The mare's name was "Latest News" and she was a champion. Later when James was in Toronto, Ont., he was thrilled to see the same mare again.

By trade he was a pattern-maker. As a man he was an upright Christian gentleman in every respect.

Issue, b. Grangemouth, Stirlingshire, Scotland.

WILLIAM AND JANET (NEILL) CARRUTH

BURGH OF DUMBARTON, SCOTLAND

Z-1 WILLIAM¹, birth and parentage not yet proven but he may have been born near 1575 and died at Dumbarton near 1635. His known son John was made a burgess in 1635 "by right of father" indicating his father was deceased and John assumed the rights of a burgess formerly held by his father. Since William died near 1635, a normal life span would indicate his birth near 1575. He may have been the William in Carruth, brother of John in Risk, mentioned in the settlement of John's estate in 1618. (See Chapter I.) Dumbarton is only about six miles from Carruth.

He first appears in the "Dumbarton Burgh Records of 1627-1746" under the date of 9 July 1627, at which time he was one of the "baillies" of the burgh. Bailie is an obsolete title in Scotland for an officer corresponding to the English alderman, a city or borough magistrate ranking next below the mayor. In Scotland "burgh" is pronounced "borough". Since these burgh records commence with 1627 we do not know when William first arrived there but he must have been a mature man at this time to have been appointed to this office.

The next reference to him, 24 Jan. 1628, seems to indicate that he operated a tavern near the waterfront. It is an account of an assault by two sailors against a third who filed the complaint. The complaint "allegand that thay come to William Coryuith's house yesterday qr he was drinking and struik him and bled him in his heid," etc.

The following 20th of Nov. 1628 saw the court convened to try JANET NEILL, spouse of William Corruith, for witchcraft. She was ordered held for further trial and on 1 Dec. 1628, William petitioned the provost and baillies to have his "wyff" Janet Neill released into his custody but without success. She was still in the Tollbooth on 9 Jan. 1629. The records do not show her release or execution so her fate is not definitely known. When their son John was made a burgess in 1635, the entry carried the notation, "The mother of this burgess was tried as a witch." The fact that the entry reads "tried as a witch" instead of "executed as a witch" leaves a hope she was eventually released.

It was during this early part of the seventeenth century that King James was building up his Plantation in Ulster and great numbers of young Lowland Scots crossed the narrow waters to pioneer the Protestant colony in Ireland. Dumbarton was one of the ports from which they sailed. It seems reasonable to believe William and Janet had more sons than just the John who appears in the records and it is highly probable they were among those who appear on the 1631 muster rolls of the Belfast group and in Donegal. (See Scotch-Irish Carruths)

Issue, birthplace or date not known; there were probably others.

Z-2 JOHN²

Z-2 JOHN² (Z-1 *Wm.*¹), birth and death records not known. Occu. cooper; entered as burgess of the Burgh of Dumbarton, 6 Mar. 1635, "by right of father William Corruth, burgess". The entry carries the note "The mother of this burgess was tried as a witch".

On 15 April 1651, he appears on a "Roll for payment of Col-lonell Campbell's regiment of Dragounes quartered in the toun of Dunbartane and terretory thairof, fra the 22 of Feb. last inclusive till the 16th day of Apryll instant 1651, etc." His assessment was three pounds.

The next record would indicate that he owned property in the west side of the town. Dumbarton is bisected by the River Leven. The portion east of the river is in the Parish of Dumbarton and west of the river in the Parish of Cardross. In the Valuation Roll of the County of Dumbarton — 1657, there is given, by parishes, the valuation of all the "Freeholders of the Shire". John is listed under the Parish of Cardross with his freeholdings valued at six pounds.

Issue, prob. all born Dumbarton. There may be others.

Z-3 JOHN³

Z-4 WILLIAM

Z-5 PATRICK

Z-6 ROBERT

Z-7 MARGARET

Z-3 JOHN³ (Z-2 *John*², Z-1 *Wm.*¹), his birth record is not known but he died prior to the birth of his twin children, 13 Aug. 1668. There is no record where he was made a burgess but the old burgh records are incomplete. We know, however, from his son's records that he was a cooper, like his father, and also a burgess.

It is not known when he married MARGARET McMAINES. Her name was obtained from the birth, death and/or baptismal records of their children in the parochial registers.

Issue, all probably born Dumbarton; there may have been others.

Z-8 JAMES⁴

Z-9 DANIEL, d. Dumbarton, 5 Mar. 1663.

Z-10 WALTER, d. Dumbarton, 14 Mar. 1663.

Z-11 DAVID, d. Dumbarton, 29 Dec. 1663.

Z-12 THOMAS, d. Dumbarton, 13 Oct. 1667.

Z-13 JOHN, twin, b. Dumbarton, 13 Aug. 1668.

Z-14 MARGARET, twin, b. Dumbarton, 13 Aug. 1668, d. 27 Aug. 1669.

Z-4 WILLIAM³ (Z-2 *John*², Z-1 *Wm.*¹), birth record not known, probably died Dumbarton, 21 June 1691, married JANET SMOLLAT, entered as burgess of Dumbarton, 6 Dec. 1662, occupation not given.

He appears as witness and undertaker on the baptismal record of his brother Z-3 John's twins, 13 Aug. 1668. Such use of the word "undertaker" in the 17th century indicated sponsorship for the children and not his occupation.

There was a Tobias Smollott, provost of Dumbarton in 1698, who may have been a relative of William's wife. William's brother Z-5 Patrick had a son Tobias, an unusual name in Scotland.

Issue, all probably born Dumbarton; there may have been others.

Z-15 JOHN⁴, d. Dumbarton, 22 June 1665.

Z-16 JEAN, d. Dumbarton, 28 May 1667.

Z-17 MARGARET, d. Dumbarton, 23 Sept. 1667.

Z-20 JANET, b. Dumbarton, 20 Apr. 1684, bpd. 20 Apr., witnesses James Inglis and Z-5 Pat. Corute.

Z-5 PATRICK³ (Z-2 John², Z-1 Wm.¹), birth record not known, died Dumbarton, 16 Dec. 1721, married 1st, prob. ca. 1665, MARGARET SCOTT; married 2nd, Dumbarton, 3 Feb. 1711, JANE PAUL; entered as burgess of Dumbarton, 29 Oct. 1664, by right of father, John Corruth, cooper and burgess; occu. tailor.

Was witness to the baptism of Margaret Ingles, dau. of James Inglis and Z-7 Margaret Carruth. Also witness to the baptism of Janet Carruth, dau. of William Carruth and Janet Smollet.

Issue, by 1st m., Margaret Scott, all b. Dumbarton; no known issue by 2nd m.

Z-21 JOHN⁴, b. 4 Oct. 1668, d. 25 Dec. 1668.

Z-22 MARGARET, b. 21 Mar. 1677, m. Dumbarton, 18 Mar. 1693, JOHN GEMILL, resident in Glasgow.

Z-23 MARION, b. 1 Apr. 1681, d. 9 May 1681.

Z-24 TOBIAS, b. 19 Sept. 1682, nothing further known.

Z-6 ROBERT³ (Z-2 John², Z-1 Wm.¹), birth and death not known but was deceased prior to the death of his son Thomas on 27 Apr. 1687, married 1st JANET MERCHANT or MARCHANT; married 2nd JANET or JEAN BUCHANAN; occupation not known nor does he appear among the list of burgesses.

He is assumed to be the son of Z-2 John because there are no records in Dumbarton indicating another family of Carruths and because his children were in the same age group as those of the known grandchildren of Z-2.

Issue, all born Dumbarton; there may have been others.

By 1st wife, Janet Merchant or Marchant.

Z-25 WILLIAM⁴, b. 5 Apr. 1668, bpd. 6th.

Z-26 ROBERT, b. 24 May 1670.

Z-27 JOHN, b. 28 Feb. 1677, d. 22 May 1682.

By 2nd wife, Janet or Jean Buchanan.

Z-28 JAMES, b. 18 June 1679.

Z-29 DAVID, b. 17 Jan. 1682, d. 22 July 1687.

Z-30 THOMAS, b. 28 Mar. 1685, d. 27 Apr. 1687.

Z-7 MARGARET³ (Z-2 *John*², Z-1 *Wm.*¹), birth not known, died Dumbarton, 12 Feb. 1714, relict of JAMES INGLIS or ENGLISH. Assumed to be the dau. of Z-2 John. The baptismal record of her first child was witnessed by Z-5 Patrick, proven son of Z-2 John. Also, her husband together with Z-5 Patrick witnessed the baptismal record of a dau. of Z-4 William. These baptismal records indicate close relationship and there are no records known of another Carruth family in Dumbarton, hence the assumption of her parentage.

Her husband was entered as a burgess of Dumbarton, 20 Oct. 1666, as apprentice to Robert Marshall, mason and burgess.

Issue, surname INGLIS or ENGLISH, all born Dumbarton.

MARGARET⁴, b. 23 July 1668, bpd. by Rev. George Stirling, witnesses Z-5 Patrick Carruth and James (?).

THOMAS, b. 21 Sept. 1679.

KATHERINE, b. — Jan. 1681, bpd. 29th.

MARGARET, b. 12 Sept. 1684, bpd. 17th.

ISOBEL, b. 14 May 1686, bpd. 23rd, d. 27 Apr. 1687.

Z-8 JAMES⁴ (Z-3 *John*³, Z-2 *John*², Z-1 *Wm.*¹), a maltman, entered as burgess of Dumbarton, 26 Dec. 1685, by right of father, the deceased John Corruth, cooper and burgess. He may have been the James who died at Dumbarton in April 1738, but it is believed that he removed elsewhere.

He apparently married twice, 1st MARGARET MARSHALL (MAR-SELL) on 1 May 1686, following his entry as burgess, witnesses James Dugald and Margaret Buchanan; 2nd MARGARET GLEN on 6 Nov. 1691, no witnesses listed.

No issue known by either marriage but it is thought that he removed elsewhere and their records may be in another parish. There were a group of Carruths first appeared in Renfrew Parish near this time who were maltmen. (See O-1 Robert and Isabell (Ewing) Carruth)

Z-13 JOHN⁴ (Z-3 *John*³, Z-2 *John*², Z-1 *Wm.*¹), twin, sailor, b. Dumbarton, 13 Aug. 1668, d. Dumbarton, 19 April 1707. His birth record discloses the prior death of his father and reads: "Johne & Margrat Curruthes, soune & daughter to ye deceased Jon Curruth & Margrat McMaines". It was witnessed by John Smollat, Wm. Porterfield and Z-4 Wm. Curruth, undertaker. (This use of "undertaker" in 17th century Scotland referred to sponsorship for the child.)

On 7 April 1694 he was made a burgess of Dumbarton, by right of father, John Corruth, cooper and burgess.

Married twice, 1st to KATHERINE LECKY or LERKIE, banns 3 Nov., marriage 29 Nov. 1694; m. 2nd to MARGARET NAISMITH, banns 9 Nov., marriage 26 Nov. 1700.

Issue, by 1st m. Katherine Lecky or Lerkie. None known from 2nd m.

Z-31 MARGARET⁵, b. Dumbarton, 24 Nov. 1695. Birth record gives parents as John Corruth and Margaret Scot. Margaret Scot was wife of Z-5 Patrick and they had a dau. Z-22 Margaret who married in 1693. Mother's name on record obviously incorrect.

Z-32 CHRISTIAN, b. Dumbarton, 6 Oct. 1699. In these Scottish records Christian and Katherine were used interchangeably.

Z-19 JAMES⁴ (Z-4 Wm.³, Z-2 John², Z-1 Wm.¹), b. Dumbarton, 26 May 1678. Nothing further has been found regarding him in the Dumbarton records and it is probable he removed elsewhere. The James who died Dumbarton, April 1738, is thought to have been Z-36 James, the dyster.

Z-25 WILLIAM⁴ (Z-6 Robt.³, Z-2 John², Z-1 Wm.¹), b. Dumbarton, 5 April 1668, bpd. the 6th, witnesses Johne M'intyr and John Robison.

Since he was the only William of this generation in the Dumbarton records the following birth records are assumed to apply to him. The mothers' names are from the birth records.

Issue, by 1st m. JEAN PORTERFIELD.

Z-33 GRIZELL⁵, b. Dumbarton, 20 Aug. 1707, bpd. 24th.

Z-34 ELIZABETH, b. Dumbarton, 23 Nov. 1710, bpd. 3 Dec.

Issue, by 2nd m. MARGARET ARNOT.

Z-35 KATHERINE, b. Dumbarton, 2 Nov. 1729, bpd. 3rd.

Z-26 ROBERT⁴ (Z-6 Robt.³, Z-2 John², Z-1 Wm.¹), b. Dumbarton, 24 May 1670, bpd. by Rev. George Stirling, witnesses, Johne () and Johne Robison; deceased at the time his son James was made burghess 26 Dec. 1730.

There are no further entries regarding him in Dumbarton so it is probable that he removed elsewhere. In connection with this would point out that across the river in Port Glasgow there is a birth record of 14 Jan. 1701 of a daughter Margaret to Robert Corruth and Margaret Kyle. There are no other entries for them at Port Glasgow but they are apparently the Robert Carruth and Margaret Keil who had a son James in Renfrew, 29 June 1704. (See O-1 Robert and Isabell (Ewing) Carruth)

Issue, from Dumbarton burghess records.

Z-36 JAMES⁵

Z-28 JAMES⁴ (Z-6 Robt.³, Z-2 John², Z-1 Wm.¹), b. Dumbarton, 18 June 1679, bpd. the 22nd, no witnesses listed. Nothing further has been found regarding him in the Dumbarton records and it is probable he removed elsewhere. The James who died Dumbarton, April 1738, is thought to have been Z-36 James the dyster.

Z-36 JAMES⁵ (Z-26 Robt.⁴, Z-6 Robt.³, Z-2 John², Z-1 Wm.¹), there is no birth record for him at Dumbarton but he is thought to be the James b. Renfrew, 29 June 1704, to Robert Caruth and Margaret Keil.

Was a dyster by occupation and was made a burghess of Dumbarton, 26 Dec. 1730, the entry reading, "son to deceased Robert Corruth". Married Dumbarton 19 Mar. 1731, AGNES CRUMB.

The Dumbarton death record of April 1738 is believed to apply to him. The death record of his son the previous year reads, "James Corruth, a child of James Corruth". It is felt that if there had been a second adult James in town the death record for the child would have carried additional information, for example, "a child of James Corruth and Agnes Crumb" or "a child of James the dyster".

Issue, birth record not known.

Z-37 JAMES⁶, d. Dumbarton, 5 May 1737.

SUMMARY

The foregoing records of the line of William and Janet (Neill) Carruth include all the Dumbarton records of Carruths found dated prior to 1800, with two exceptions.

There is a marriage record dated 17 March 1723 for a "James Smith and Mary Carruth in the Parish of Drymen who gave up their names to be proclaimed in order to marriage". Drymen Parish is in Stirlingshire and it is improbable that she belonged with the Dumbarton group.

Secondly there is a marriage record for a "William Corath and Margery Robertson, both in this parish (Dumbarton) who gave up their names for proclamation upon 30th October 1790".
